

300 ARE ARRESTED . . .

Protesters Attempt To Serve 'Eviction'

Washington (AP) — A march by antiwar demonstrators attempting to serve an "eviction notice" on President Nixon was broken up Tuesday by police who arrested approximately 300 of the protesters on minor charges. The confrontation lasted about an hour and produced no serious violence.

The marchers were halted about a block from the White House and some of them sat down on the sidewalk or attempted to break through the police lines. This brought the arrests on charges of obstructing a sidewalk or disorderly conduct, both misdemeanors.

Police surrounded those sitting down and began taking them one by one to nine buses which had pulled up behind the police lines. They were charged with disorderly conduct, a misdemeanor.

Most of the estimated 1,000 who marched from the Washington Monument to the White House at the conclusion of a rally remained on the sidewalks and behind police lines. Many of these, however, sat down on the sidewalks and lighted candles which they carried.

202 Arrested

Police Chief Jerry Wilson said later that 202 were arrested on disorderly conduct charges. After this report, about 80 to 90 others were arrested on charges of obstructing a sidewalk.

Shortly before 6 p.m. EDT police announced all sidewalks and crosswalks in the area were open to normal traffic.

The demonstration, sponsored by the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, had started a few hours earlier at the Washington monument grounds. As the marchers moved from there toward the White House they chanted "Evict Nixon" and "Peace Now."

Lacking a permit to march, the crowd was intercepted by police.

Confrontation

The confrontation at 15th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue occurred when officers tried to funnel the marchers another block farther from the White House and marchers at the rear tried to force those ahead onto Pennsylvania Avenue.

Inside the White House grounds, several dozen uniformed security officers were joined by Secret Service agents as the demonstrators left the monument grounds. Hundreds more District of Columbia policemen were posted on sidewalks surrounding the executive mansion and others cruised the streets on motorcycles.

"We are not here to disrupt this city nor confront police," organizer Rennie Davis told the crowd before it began the march.

Earlier, Father James Groppi, a civil-rights activist, had spoken via telephone to Nguyen Van Minh Vy, identified by the organizers as a member of North Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks, and Nguyen Van Tiem, identified as deputy chief of the Viet Cong peace-talk delegation.

Both Davis and Father Groppi were among those arrested.

Vy told the demonstrators via a public address system that "the key to prisoner-of-war camps is in his (the President's) hands, go to the White House and get it."

CARTOON . . . shows how English may fare.

That New Money Won't Even Shine

Washington (AP) — If the world's finance ministers succeed in replacing gold as the cornerstone of the international monetary system, the English language may never recover.

The finance ministers are talking of supplanting gold with Special Drawing Rights, or SDR, an artificial asset that amounts to nothing more than a bookkeeping entry.

Exactly what impact this would have on the monetary markets is a matter of considerable debate, but there's no question that switching from gold as the standard measure of worth would have an enormous influence on the language.

Can't you hear Bing Crosby crooning it now? "When the blue of the night meets the SDR of the day . . ."

Or "Silver threads among the SDR. . ."

"Silence is SDRen" somehow just doesn't have the ring. And what would you say of a bright young man on his way up? "Everything he touches turns to SDR?"

Teachers would be telling the story of SDRlocks and the Three Bears.

James Bond would be trying to catch SDRfinger.

Benefactors worth their weight in SDR naturally would have hearts as pure as, in case you've forgotten, "Special Drawing Rights."

People would get SDR fever, having forgotten the lesson learned at their mother's knee: "All that glitters is not SDR."

Mothers also would teach the SDRen rule, and it would stand about the same chance its predecessor did anytime an SDRen opportunity arose. Nobody would kill a goose that lays a SDRen egg.

This is serious business with the world's finance ministers, who may yet decide that gold, indeed, is dead.

Where are you, King Midas, now that we need you?

Rogers: U.S. To Respect U.N. Expulsion Decision

. . . Financial Retaliation Demanded In Congress

Washington (AP) — The United Nations' decision to expel Taiwan will be respected by the United States, Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Tuesday, but the Nixon administration regards it as "a most unfortunate precedent." And some members of Congress demanded retaliation.

"This administration deeply regrets the expulsion of the Republic of China and thinks the precedent is a most unfortunate one and will have adverse effects in the future," Rogers said.

Angry Senate and House conservatives urged a cut in U.S. contributions to the United Nations and some members demanded even more drastic action. Others called for continued support of the United Nations as the only hope for world peace.

'New Ball Game'

Declaring "we have a new ball game," Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, moved to send the $3.2-billion foreign-aid authorization bill, which contains $139 million for U.N.-related activities, back to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Saxbe noted that 42 of the 76 nations that voted to expel Nationalist China and 12 of the nations that abstained from voting are listed as beneficiaries in the bill.

To begin a heated and emotional debate now might well lead to ill considered action regarding aid for those nations, he said.

He equated the U.N. action with "wholesale blackmail. It was a regular lynching party, and when they won they took the rostrum to say how they had clobbered the United States."

However, Saxbe later withdrew his motion when he became convinced it could not carry.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the United States should quit the United Nations outright and send its headquarters off to "someplace like Moscow or Peking."

Senate leaders of both parties, Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said they have long believed the United States pays too big a share of U.N. expenses and favor cutbacks on that basis, not as punishment for Monday night's vote to seat mainland China and oust Taiwan.

The U.S. contribution now totals some $249 million a year.

Sens. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., and Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., were drafting legislation to reduce the U.S. payments.

But other senators cautioned against a punitive cut in the American contribution.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said that would set a dangerous precedent, under which every time a U.N. member lost a vote it could retaliate by withholding funds.

"Our difficulties in the United States will not be diminished by petulant and threatening postures upon the stage of world opinion," said Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he hopes the United States will recognize "the new and extraordinary opportunities that now exist with Peking as a member of the world community."

Point Of Budget

The White House referred questions to Secretary Rogers. At the State Department Rogers told newsmen he hopes the United Nations won't be weakened but he pointedly told reporters the world organization faces a financial crisis and there is a problem "of whether the United Nations is living beyond its means."

"I think that may be the case," he added.

While noting there are some senators who think the United States is carrying too great a share of the U.N. financial burden, Rogers denied the Nixon administration will attempt to retaliate against the organization.

Rogers said "it just isn't so" that the United States did not really try to prevent Taiwan's expulsion.

"We just didn't have the votes," he said.

Rogers said one thing won't be changed, and that is America's commitment to defend Taiwan and to maintain other obligations to the Nationalists.

The U.N. action sparked a round of speeches in the House, most of them angry denunciations of the United Nations but a few urging its support as a peace agency.

'Nixon Diplomacy' Hit

Two of the speakers included the Nixon administration in their criticism of the U.N. action. Rep. John R. Rarick, D-La., called it "the fruit of the Nixon diplomacy" in seeking to improve relations between the United States and Red China. And Rep. John G. Schmitz, R-Calif., said the battle to save a Nationalist China's U.N. seat was lost when Nixon's foreign-affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, went to Peking.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., one of the few to speak approvingly of the vote, said the seating of Peking would make the United Nations a more effective peacekeeping instrument.

"A government representing 14 million people has been replaced by one representing 800 million," he said.

While the furor in Congress mounted, Kissinger, Nixon's No. 1 foreign affairs adviser, returned from Peking where he completed arrangements for the President's visit to the Red Chinese capital. There is speculation the journey may be made within the next several weeks.

Ziebarth Considering Bid For Senate

State Sen. Wayne W. Ziebarth of Wilcox appeared to be testing the political ice Tuesday as he tentatively announced his candidacy for the Democratic U.S. Senatorial nomination.

Ziebarth said in a prepared statement that his senatorial candidacy could prompt him to resign the seat in the State Legislature which he has held since 1968.

Noting that the campaign would require 100% of his effort, the 50-year-old lawmaker said it would be impossible for him to continue managing his 2,500-acre farm, devote the necessary energy to the Legislature and campaign for the nomination.

'Full-Time Job'

"The Legislature with annual sessions which I supported has become a full-time job.

"I can do justice to two of the . . . endeavors," but he added, "to try to do a good job with three assignments would be out of the question."

Therefore, he concluded, "I will continue to feed my family and I will be a candidate for higher office."

Volunteers Needed

The question of resignation, Ziebarth said, hinges on whether his senatorial campaign can muster enough volunteer support to allow him to devote adequate time to the Legislature.

"It is becoming increasingly more difficult for me to face the prospects in service on the Nebraska State Legislature under these conditions (the campaign)."

Ziebarth indicated that he would make his formal decision known in 10 days.

Ziebarth is the fifth public figure to express interest in the Democratic Senatorial nomination.

Three of whom have formally announced their candidacy: State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, Don Ferguson of Lincoln and Phyllis Lyons of McCook. University of Nebraska economist Dr. Wallace Peterson as yet has not formally decided.

Uninvited Cubans Lodged At Hotel

New Orleans (AP) — Twenty-two Cubans who unexpectedly landed in a Russian built turbo-prop airplane at the New Orleans airport were put up in a hotel after the pilot refused to fly them back to Havana, as ordered by U.S. officials.

The group came to the United States earlier Tuesday to attend a sugar cane meeting in New Orleans, a spokesman said, but the U.S. government ordered them back home immediately. The pilot replied that he would not fly back without instructions from his government, the State Department said in Washington.

The group — 19 passengers and three crewmen — were taken from customs offices at the airport, where they had been locked up for more than six hours, to a hotel for an overnight stay.

Meanwhile, a State Department spokesman in Washington said officials were in contact with the Cuban government through the Swiss Embassy in Havana, "in an attempt to work out arrangements for their departure."

A State Department press officer, Charles W. Bray, said the Cuban pilot flatly told American officials that he would not fly his plane back to Cuba without orders from his government.

Their sudden arrival caught New Orleans officials off guard.

The State Department said the Cubans had filed a flight plan about 8 a.m. with the Houston, Tex., Air Traffic Control for a morning flight from Havana to New Orleans. Officials said the flight was so quick that New Orleans authorities were not notified.

The State Department had denied a Sept. 24 request for visas for the group to attend the sugar cane conference. The group carried luggage and five large boxes.

SIGN ON CAMPUS . . . urges support in court for Rozman.

Students Urging Attendance At Trial

An effort to draw attention to the Stephen Rozman trial has been launched by students associated with the University of Nebraska Coalition for Peace and Justice.

The trial on the suit brought by former NU-Lincoln Prof. Stephen Rozman begins Wednesday morning in U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

Rozman is seeking $100,000 damages and reinstatement to his job as an assistant professor of political science.

He filed the suit after NU's Board of Regents voted last winter not to renew his contract, citing alleged "inappropriate actions" during antiwar activities on the campus in May 1970.

This week, posters went up on the campus urging attendance at the trial, which is expected to continue through Friday.

"If not many show up (Wednesday), we'll be leafletting Thursday morning," said John K. Hansen, a UNL student from Newman Grove.

Hansen said he believes the case is on "an important issue."

"There's a lot of importance in the case and a lot of people simply don't know about it," he said.

A sign near the fountain at the Nebraska Union urged passersby to "come and show your support in Judge Urbom's court."

Judge Warren Urbom will hear the case.

Rozman said on the eve of the trial that he has been told to expect "a fairly rapid decision" in the case.

He said he would take the stand Wednesday morning, and he added that other witnesses will include former UNL President Joseph Sosniak, Chairman Richard Spelts Jr. of a special regents, commission which studied the May 1970 events, Regent J. G. Elliott of Scottsbluff, Chairman Henry Holtzclaw of a special faculty committee which concluded Rozman "was not guilty of inappropriate actions," and other faculty members and students.

The trial is to begin about 9 a.m. in the old Post Office Building at 10th and P Sts.

United Nations, N.Y. — Diplomatic sources said Tuesday Communist China was expected to take its newly won seat in the United Nations sometime this week. Reports from Peking quoted the acting foreign minister, Chi Peng-fei, as having said the timing of the arrival of the delegation was not being considered.

U.S. Welcomes Seating

Washington — In a statement approved by the President, Secretary of State Rogers welcomed Communist China's admission to the United Nations, but said the organization had made a "mistake of major proportions" by

Chiang Kai-shek Speaks

Taipei — In a message to the Chinese people on the mainland and on Taiwan, Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek said his government would never recognize the validity of the "illegal" vote expelling his nation from the U.N. (More on Page 3.)

Opponents Criticize Sato

Tokyo — In Japan, Communist China's major rival in East Asia, the U.N. vote to admit the Peking government brought a bitter attack on Premier Eisaku Sato from the four opposition parties, and also from within his own party for siding with the United States in a losing cause.

Reaction In Congress Emotional

Washington — Reaction in Congress to the U.N. votes was emotional and often angry. (More on Page 1)

Golda Says Rogers Sells Out

Jerusalem — Prime Minister Golda Meir told the Israeli parliament that Secretary of State Rogers had abandoned his support for the Israeli negotiating position and was now supporting the Egyptian position for an interim agreement that would reopen the Suez Canal. (More on Page 2.)

Supreme Court Avoids Issue

Washington — The Supreme Court avoided the controversial issue of busing to achieve racial balance in Northern schools when it declined without comment to review a busing order that had touched off violence and boycotts in Pontiac, Mich. (More on Page 3.)

New York — A former policeman, who was dismissed from the force for taking $100 from a drug dealer and who admitted taking $1,500 a month in bribes, told the Knapp Commission that Harlem policemen pay off informants in heroin in return for stolen goods such as suits. (More on Page 49.)

Goldberg Claims LBJ Fibbed

Washington (UPI) — Arthur J. Goldberg said Tuesday "nothing could be further from the truth" than former president Johnson's claim that Goldberg was bored on the Supreme Court and asked to be appointed U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldberg said he issued a statement "to avoid the necessity — now and in the future — for reliance on the Orwellian history contained in the president's memoirs."

Goldberg, now a private lawyer here, referred to Johnson's forthcoming book "Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency 1963-1969," and newspaper installments of the memoir now being published.

Goldberg said he had received a copy of the book in advance of publication and sought to make his statement at the same time newspapers published the installment referring to him.

Goldberg not only disputed Johnson's account of his stunning decision to resign from the high court to take the U.N. post, but denied another statement of the former president that Goldberg had sought appointment as secretary of health, education and welfare.

The truth, Goldberg said, was that Johnson aide Jack Valenti offered him the HEW post and the president himself "offered me appointment as attorney general." Goldberg said he turned down both offers.

"I recite these facts and viewpoints not out of pique, but to set the record straight," Goldberg said in a statement. "Americans should not have to derive their information about these events only from the president's self-serving and biased statements in a document which purports to be, but in fact is not, the history of the events which have so profoundly affected all of us."

Goldberg said, "The simple fact is — and it is corroborated by official statements made by the president and by me at the time — that I took absolutely no initiative on this matter. The initiative was taken by the president. He made a series of urgent telephone calls to me both at my chambers in the Supreme Court and at the hospital, where my wife's mother was confined by a serious illness."

Goldberg went to some lengths in his statement to make clear that he opposed the U.S. role in Vietnam even before he took the U.N. post.

"To me, the great problem of the country of those years was to wind down and end the war in Vietnam and to save the United Nations," Goldberg said. "I also believed — perhaps mistakenly — that the president had the same objectives and that I could influence constructively the course of events in this desirable direction."

"From the very inception of my mission to the U.N. in 1965, I had urged de-escalation of the war," he said. Goldberg said he consistently opposed measures heating up the war and said it was his memorandum in March of 1968 advocating an end to bombing that was cited by Johnson himself as "the most important factor in his conclusion to curtail the bombing"

Space Chief Yangel Dies

Moscow (AP) — Scientist Mikhail K. Yangel, the man believed to be the head of the Soviet Space program, has died of a heart attack, Tass reported Tuesday night.

The Soviet government news agency said Yangel died suddenly Monday "of a heart attack caused by postcardiac sclerosis."

The Tass obituary, which called Yangel "the outstanding scientist and designer in space rocket technology," was signed by Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny, other government officials and the Soviet Academy of Science.

Yangel was 60 years old the day he died.

Golda Says U.S. Policies Hurting Chances For Peace

Jerusalem (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir said Tuesday current U.S. policies on the Middle East could not only sabotage chances for a partial peace but also encourage Egypt to prepare for a new war.

"We are in readiness to return the war to the enemy," she said, "but we repeat, and suggest, to Egypt one of two possibilities—negotiations without prior conditions on a lasting peace or at least agreement on a special arrangement for reopening the Suez Canal."

In a special hour-long foreign policy speech to the Knesset (Parliament), Mrs. Meir lashed out both at Secretary of State William P. Rogers' six-point Suez Canal plan and at the U.S. decision to delay the sale of more Phantom warplanes to Israel.

encouragement for its intransigent stand, something liable to foil the agreement itself."

"The halt in the supply of planes to Israel upset the arms balance in the region and no doubt encourages the Egyptian rulers in their preparations to violate the cease-fire and open a military offensive against Israel if Israel does not agree to the Egyptian dictates."

Specifically, Mrs. Meir took issue with Rogers' speech of Oct. 4 holding out the possibility of compromise on the duration of a Suez Canal cease-fire and on the crossing of the waterway by Egyptian troops under a settlement.

Mrs. Meir said Israel demanded an unlimited cease-fire and would allow no Egyptian troop crossing.

"Overstepped"

Too, she said, the United States, by attempting to link a canal agreement to an overall peace settlement, had "overstepped its good services," a move "liable to bring about deadlock and damage prospects for negotiation."

"This is an additional reason for our criticism of Rogers and his making them (his proposals) public," she said.

On the Phantom issue, she said President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has not concealed his aim of getting the United States to pressure Israel into making concessions by withholding the fighter-bombers.

Health Security Worth Cost, Meany Says

Washington (UPI) — President George Meany of the AFL-CIO told Congress Tuesday a proposed $60 billion annual federal health insurance program would be worth its high cost. But farm and business interests protested that it would be too expensive and create more bureaucracy.

The testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee concerned a bill called health security, drafted by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and introduced by a group of House members.

"Dollar for dollar, health security is the best value on a cost basis," said Meany. "In the long run, health security would cost less than the other proposals."

The measure, opposed by the Farm Bureau and National Federation of Independent Businessmen, would provide health insurance administered by the government and financed from the general treasury. It is one of a dozen different bills now before the committee.

"The trade union movement believes that is a wise expenditure," Meany said. "We aren't here to apologize for it or to make it appear smaller than it really is, because a cheap health care program would be just that—cheap."

Although Meany's position was supported by Tony Dech-ant, president of the National Farmer's Union, Fred Poole, representing the Farm Bureau, said the tax revenue needed to pay for the program would "become intolerable."

Meany said, "Neither the administration proposal, nor the insurance industry proposal, nor the AMA proposal would control costs or protect the consumer."

The American Medical Association's plan would require the government to pay the medical bills of poor persons with no tax liability. But Meany said this would also pay the medical bills of millionaires "who pay no taxes because of loopholes in the tax laws."

Israel will not be prepared to agree to political conditions which prejudice its security and future, even in exchange for a promise of weapons..."

Peking Hails 'Victory Of People Of World'

... Chiang Kai-shek Says U.N. Vote 'Infamous'

London (AP) — Many world capitals applauded Tuesday the entry of Red China into the United Nations and Peking called it "a victory of the people of the whole world."

Nationalist China breathed defiance.

Peking's acting foreign minister, Chi Peng-fei, said the U.N. decision demonstrated the complete bankruptcy of the policy long pursued by U.S. imperialism in obdurately obstructing the restoration of the legitimate rights of our country in the United Nations and the U.S. imperialist scheme of attempting to create tie-chains in the United Nations.

President Chiang Kai-shek told his Nationalist Chinese countrymen on Taiwan: "The destiny of our nation is not in the hands of the United Nations. It is squarely in our own hands."

Decision 'Infamous'

In an address from Taipei, Chiang called the U.N. decision "infamous" and referred to "our military strength and economic prowess."

Chiang declared Nationalist China would continue to wield a strong influence in the changing balance of international power and was still determined to overthrow the Chinese Communists.

Shortly before Chiang spoke, a small protesting crowd demonstrated in front of the U.S. Embassy in Taipei.

A number of Asian officials voiced regret that the United Nations had expelled the Chinese Nationalists.

In the first Soviet commentary, Moscow radio in a broadcast to Japan welcomed the U.N. decision to seat the Soviet Union's antagonist, adding: "It is a pleasant thing for the Soviet government that the basic Soviet policy of strengthening the United Nations as a tool for peace had brought a success."

Britain Hails Vote

Britain, which has voted for seating Red China since 1961, hailed the decision, saying the world needs Peking's help in solving problems.

A West German Foreign Ministry statement declared: "Whoever wants an international easing of tensions cannot ignore China. The family of nations cannot successfully work toward cooperation when a country of this magnitude remains excluded."

An official source in Paris gave this French view of Red China's inclusion in the United Nations: "An act of good sense and realism, both in fact and in law."

A statement from the Vatican said the seating of Red China could aid the cause of peace and justice and was in the spirit of the 1965 appeal of Pope Paul VI for universality in the world body. A second statement expressed regret at Nationalist China's ouster.

Satellites Silent

There was an absence of comment from most European Communist countries, possibly reflecting the Soviet-Chinese feud.

In independent-minded Communist Yugoslavia, the Tanjug news agency welcomed the decision, saying it gave China all its legal rights in the United Nations.

Reaction was more mixed in Asia.

The Philippine Foreign Office welcomed Communist China to the United Nations but said "the principle of universality was not served" by removing the Nationalists. President Ferdinand E. Marcos said the Philippines would retain its "fruitful and friendly" relations with Taiwan.

Japan, which has been in a quandary over China policy for a long time, said it will "continue positive efforts" to normalize relations with Communist China.

Long-Run Benefit

Prime Minister Eisaku Sato told the House of Representatives that the U.N. decision will in the long run benefit Japan's interests. Sato repeated his position that Japan's effort to keep a seat for Nationalist China was transitional pending a settlement of the Peking-Taipei feud.

Two of Nationalist China's allies in anti-communism, South Korea and South Vietnam, expressed regret over Taiwan's ouster from the United Nations. South Vietnam called it an injustice.

But much of the comment from both pro-government and opposition legislators in South Vietnam indicated a feeling that Peking's seating was realistic and might contribute to a settlement of the Vietnam war.

Officials in Australia and New Zealand welcomed the seating of Red China but expressed disappointment that Nationalist China was removed from the United Nations.

Congratulations

Pakistan and Ceylon quickly sent messages of congratulations to Peking. An Indian government spokesman said this was "a moment of special satisfaction in that we have consistently supported this since 1949 and therefore we welcome the decision."

Several Asian officials expressed hope that Red China now would work within the United Nations for a more peaceful and stable international order.

Among them was Deputy Foreign Minister Sanga Kittikachorn of Thailand. He said he hoped Peking now would halt its support for the so-called wars of liberation in Southeast Asia. He emphasized Thailand would retain its relations with Nationalist China.

Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak of Malaysia said he looked forward to Peking's playing a constructive role toward "a peaceful and prosperous international order."

Uncertainty Fills U.N.'s New Order

... Says Analyst

By GEORGE SHERMAN (C) Washington Star

United Nations, N.Y. — Stock-taking is the order of the day in this skyscraper complex on the East River. The party is over. The drama of the voting on the China issue is passed.

For many, there is a feeling of genuine accomplishment. Everyone realizes that the decisive ouster of Taiwan and the stunning setback for the United States has ended an era.

After 26 years, the last vestiges of the hold the United States and the united Western front once had over this world organization have been erased.

But the heady elation of the majority of Monday night is also giving way to calmer reflection, for the new era ushered in by the admission of Peking is full of uncertainty. More questions are being asked than answered about the impact of the vote on the United Nations and world politics.

Respectability Gained

Peking has gained respectability in the international arena at last. But no one knows for sure whether this gain for Peking — and what seems to be its more moderate policy — has been achieved in a way to undercut still further the eroding U.S. support for the United Nations.

The blow to U.S. prestige has been enormous. An all-out campaign of arm-twisting and persuasion by the American superpower has failed against some of the tiniest states in the world.

President Nixon's pronounced policy of ending Peking's isolation without sacrificing Nationalist China has failed, too. For the first time in the memory of observers, every Western ally of the United States — including Britain, Canada, the Scandinavian nations and all Western Europe — deserted Washington on a major vote.

Japan Loses Face

Among Pacific nations, Japan — already upset by Nixon's surprise visit to Peking and the U.S. surcharge on imports — suffered still another blow from the Nixon policy. With obvious reluctance, Japan became the major co-sponsor of the U.S. effort to save Taiwan's seat in the General Assembly.

Monday night, U.S. Ambassador George W. Bush tried to put the best light possible on the vote. The United States could take care of itself, he said of the apparent setback in prestige. But he allowed that the U.S. public and Congress would be "greatly concerned" about what the General Assembly had done.

What happens next is clearly up to Communist China, U.S. officials said privately. Peking can either give the United Nations new vitality or cripple it — perhaps for good.

Albania and Algeria, the spokesmen for the Peking cause here, publicly portrayed Peking as the new champion of the underprivileged, underdeveloped world in the Security Council. In this view, Peking will use the Chinese power to veto "superpower collusion" of the Soviet Union and the United States.

Nutritious

One that needs reconsideration, he said, is the refusal to permit inmates to form a black-oriented association at the penitentiary.

Supreme Court Won't Look At Pontiac Bus Plan

Washington (AP) — A unanimous Supreme Court declined Tuesday to review a massive busing plan for schools in Pontiac, Mich., scene of bombings last summer.

At the same time, the court turned down an appeal challenging a desegregation plan for schools in Forsyth County, N.C.

Pontiac school officials had contended in their appeal that whatever segregation exists in the blue-collar community is a result of housing patterns.

The Forsyth officials, meanwhile, had complained that their schools were subjected to wrongful racial balancing.

The court made no comment on either of these claims. The flat rejection of the appeals indicates that they may hold no weight with the justices at this point.

In other actions the court rejected unanimously an effort to convert an abandoned public-school building in Brighton, Ala., into a private all-white school and ruled unanimously that Virginia cannot upgrade a two-year predominantly white college into a four-year school because it would interfere with the racial integration of the nearby black college.

The operator of a Washington state drive-in was granted a hearing in a new obscenity dispute. The central issue in the case of William Rabe of Richland is whether police may suppress a movie shown at a drive-in on the theory it could offend passing motorists or neighbors.

In the Pontiac case, U.S. District Judge Damon J. Keith of Detroit has ruled that school officials intentionally promoted segregation by the way they located new schools and arranged school-district boundaries. His busing plan was approved in May by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati. Some 10,000 of the 24,000 public school children have been bused since the new term began in September.

On the night of Aug. 30, ten school buses were destroyed by bomb explosions. Twenty-nine arrests were made.

The appeal by the school board questioned whether its failure to counteract residential housing patterns amounts to intentional segregation. The board told the court school authorities had tried to reduce racial imbalance before Judge Keith ruled.

The Supreme Court has never heard arguments on a Northern school case.

Chambers, Luedtke Reach Impasse On How To Achieve Prison Reform

By DON WALTON Star Staff Writer

State Sens. Ernest Chambers of Omaha and Roland Luedtke of Lincoln Tuesday agreed on how to get prison reform in Nebraska, but reached an impasse on how best to accomplish

"Only the Legislature can provide the money needed to get the job done," Luedtke said. "You are going to have to let us get the money."

But Chambers said he has found the Legislature unresponsive.

"Bitter experience has taught me that working within the legislative framework is non-productive," he said.

Frustrated Away "Tired old men waste and fritter away time on frivolities."

"Prison reform is too urgent and serious a matter to be tossed totally to the political whims, fancies and empty promises of men who have already shown they cannot be trusted."

Chambers and Luedtke engaged in a free-wheeling dialogue during a Free University teach-in on penal reform at the University of Nebraska.

Committee Boss Luedtke is chairman of the legislative study committee on law enforcement which has recommended development of a comprehensive penal reform plan by 1975.

Although a member of the committee, Chambers has not attended any of its meetings and has questioned its sincerity in seeking prison reform. Committee members, in turn, have criticized Chambers for his attitude.

"The many fruitless hours I spent in committee meetings and floor debates last session convinced me that this legislative system cannot produce progress and justice," Chambers said.

Not A Ripple

While he spent much of the 1971 session visiting the penitentiary and discussing prison reform with Gov. J. James Exon, Chambers said, "not a ripple was made in the Legislature" toward prison improvements.

"The Legislature has slept soundly on the issue of penal reform for generations," he said.

"Now that a climate for change has been produced by a combination of my persistence and prison incidents around the country, some of the snoring ones stir to life and try to make political hay by condemning my 'unilateral actions' of working directly with inmates, officials and the people—rather than through the Judiciary Committee."

Chambers said he "would be stupid to trade a productive approach for a non-productive one."

Delaying preparation of a penal reform plan until 1975 is "a political hoax," Chambers said.

Unreasonable

"With the abundant research already available, three years is an unreasonable delay for producing only a plan."

Luedtke said planning takes time and is imperative if the state is to gain large federal funding for the program.

But state funding will also be necessary, and "if you can convince that governor that we've got to spend some money, then you've really done something," Luedtke told Chambers.

Full Legislature

The committee is committed to prison reform, Luedtke said. "The big if is not what the committee will do; it rests with the full Legislature."

In answer to questions, Chambers said he is "sure" Warden Charles Wolff will reconsider some of the prisoner "demands" which he rejected earlier this month.

One that needs reconsideration, he said, is the refusal to permit inmates to form a black-oriented association at the penitentiary.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The historic United Nations vote to seat Communist China as a member and expel the Nationalist Chinese will go down as a milestone in the ever-changing complexion of the world. The ultimate impact of that action will not be known for many years, probably, but it stands as an unquestionably important development.

For one thing, what will it do to the foreign policy of the United States? There will be efforts made now to reduce our participation in the U.N. and, perhaps, to act in whatever ways we can against those nations that might have but failed to support us in the crucial U.N. vote.

The list of such nations is long, including such staunch allies as Canada, France, India, Israel, Turkey, The United Kingdom and Ireland. In fact, there was not one single European nation voting with the U.S. on this important showdown question.

U.S. support came dominantly from the South Pacific, most of South America and some of Africa. The truth is that if the U.S. adopted a policy of recriminations, it would be isolating itself from most of the rest of the world.

For this reason alone, such an action would be suicidal. But it would be even more ridiculous from other points of view. The U.N. action represents a changing pattern of world affairs that the U.S. itself has helped to set in motion with President Nixon's planned visit to Communist China.

That plan alone undoubtedly contributed to the stunning U.S. defeat in the U.N. Beyond that, the China question had come to be a somewhat ludicrous one. Fourteen million Chinese on Formosa representing 730 million Chinese on the mainland was an anachronism the world simply would no longer accept.

This may not be exactly what we like but it is time for us to realize that we alone do not establish the geography and politics of the world. This is what the U.N. vote tells us and the way of wisdom is to recognize it and act accordingly.

It is doubtful that the vote represents a major victory for communism. For one thing, the new recognition of Communist China is seen by many as a major problem for Russia and that means that one communist side won and another lost, even though Russia voted for the mainland seating.

But Russia faces the threat of Communist China as the focal point of the world communist movement, as well as the threat this nation invites of itself in sharing a common border with the Soviet Union.

The vote does represent an independence of thought among the many old and new nations of the world. But the new and underdeveloped nations of the world are the ones that have slowly turned the tide in the U.N.

They are not looking to the big established powers because they are looking for independence and for economic stability. Still heavily with us today is an attitude of anti-colonialism among many nations of the world.

The nations beyond the big four or five in the world seek a new era of internationalism in which they have some kind of equal share. They seek a point in time where they are not dependent upon others for their existence.

The United States, Russia, France, England and Japan represent what has come to be known within our own country as the establishment. Communist China, on the other hand, is the revolutionary with whom the aspiring nations identify, whether they emulate her or not.

The establishment simply is not going to be able to call all the shots in the future as it has largely done in the past. But is this not at least in part the basis of current U.S. foreign policy?

Has not the President of the U.S. established a 10 per cent surcharge on imports because this nation presumably has assuming too large a financial burden in international trade? Has the President not told the world that we intend in the future to help our friends but not to assume their responsibilities for them?

Clearly, the U.N. vote will have a big impact on many parts of the world, especially Asia where Communist China will now enjoy new respectability. But that vote is also an opportunity for this nation to build a more equitable and peaceful world.

Movement For Amnesty For The American Exiles

WASHINGTON — With the war in Vietnam winding way down, pressure is beginning to build for a general amnesty for young American exiles in Canada. Historically, there is every reason to believe that such an amnesty eventually will be declared. A campaign has begun to bring it about during the Christmas season, when the spirit of forgiveness abounds.

There are somewhere between 50,000 and 100,000 draft evaders and military deserters in Canada alone. Some 500 men are confined in federal prisons for resisting the draft. Hundreds of other young men are facing trial for refusal to submit to compulsory military service.

A group of 16 lawyers, writers and educators recently issued a statement proposing that such persons be allowed to return to the United States "freed of any legal impediments and invited to share here the opportunities and responsibilities of building a better nation." The alternative "would be a class of political exiles, haunting us for decade after decade."

President Nixon is authorized by the Constitution "to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States." It is recalled that President Lincoln issued the first Civil War Amnesty Proclamation, Dec. 8, 1863, providing for a general amnesty for persons who would sign an oath of allegiance to the Union. President Andrew Johnson declared three general amnesties in 1865, 1867 and 1868 — all requiring an oath of allegiance.

"If President Lincoln could declare a general amnesty one year and a half before Lee's surrender at Appomattox," writes James Reston, Jr., in the New Republic, "President Nixon can declare a universal amnesty this year." A universal amnesty would contain none of the conditions and exceptions that a general amnesty contains. Reston points out that Congress could pass an Amnesty Act if it wished.

Even in the absence of a formal amnesty, the word could be passed in the Justice Department to end prosecution of certain cases involving draft law exiles. At the present time, however, the law-enforcement machinery seems to be continuing a policy of vigorous prosecution.

Timing of any amnesty would be a delicate matter. In effect, it would amount to a de facto repeal of the draft at a time when conscription still is considered a military necessity. Nevertheless, it is certain that even a limited amnesty would be popular with the majority of American young people aged 18 to 21. They will be voting in the millions in 1972.

One of the candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.), already has stated that, "If I am president, when the war ends I will extend an amnesty to those who, on grounds of conscience, have refused to participate in the Vietnam tragedy."

The political considerations threaten to obscure the human plight of the exiles.

'I Don't Think You Ever INTENDED To Put A Woman On The Supreme Court!'

Rain Dampens Veterans Day

Certainly the steady rain in Washington and the change of the traditional date had their effect as only a few hundred persons filled about one quarter of the open amphitheater at Arlington National Cemetery Monday for commemorative services for American veterans.

The rain also resulted in a much smaller-than-anticipated turnout for a Veterans Day "march for victory" sponsored by radio evangelist Rev. Carl McIntire, marches that have inspired what can charitably be called modest crowds on past occasions.

And the weather forced postponement of an afternoon of antiwar demonstrations planned by the Peoples' Coalition for Peace and Justice for the same day.

But had it not rained, one wonders whether throngs of Americans in the nation's Capitol would have gathered at Arlington, filling the grounds to capacity in honor of the veterans or whether any demonstration, either in support or in protest of the war in Vietnam, could have been carried on with a representative turnout or with any depth of feeling.

The war is draining America of emotion, sapping its vitality and the interest of the people. People are generally tired of any reminder of war—which is not to say that the sacrifices made have been forgotten. But the sense of gratitude felt is more a private thing.

Rep. John Y. McCollister from Nebraska's Second District, who has been a supporter of President Nixon's Vietnam strategy, said in Omaha that he believes the American people want to forget about the war and get out of southeast Asia. As Sen. George McGovern has done, McCollister proposes—and believes most Americans would accept—amnesty for young men who have fled the country to avoid the draft because of their moral opposition to the Vietnam war. We don't believe most Americans would support a government grant of amnesty, but we're sure, as McCollister suggests, that they want to forget about the war and get out.

Use of Statistics Hit

AFL-CIO chief George Meany, recently tamed down enough to sit on the Pay Board, now has accused the Nixon administration of injecting politics into the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which compiles the government's reports on living costs and unemployment.

"The announcement several days ago that the publication of quarterly reports on employment and unemployment conditions in urban poverty areas will be discontinued during 1972 — incidentally an election year — is the most recent of the shocking examples of what is happening to the Bureau of Labor Statistics," Meany said in a letter to Labor Secretary James Hodgson. Meany figures the department is trying to cover up the fact that the jobless rate in the nation's poorest neighborhoods now stands at 10.4% compared to the national rate of 6%.

Meany also cited the downgrading of veteran statistical specialists and the banning of public press briefings which occurred after one statistician described February's job figures as "mixed" while Secretary Hodgson called them "heartening."

Organized labor, business and the entire public has had confidence in the integrity of the agency's work, Meany said, which could be destroyed if the BLS and "the vital information it collects, interprets and publishes became political propaganda or became suspect as such."

The labor leader's blast follows criticism of the FBI's change in the reporting of crime statistics — a change, which, critics say, will not expose the failure of the administration's law and order campaign.

The same set of statistics can serve several masters, we suppose. But the administration is not being completely honest in dressing up figures and interpreting them to its own benefit. Decreases in the rates of increase of crime and unemployment, for example, are not all that heartening, and Meany and others are to be commended for pointing out the snow job.

JACK ANDERSON

POW Wives Bitter Toward Administration; President Aims To Avert Display Of Emotion

WASHINGTON — The families of some American war prisoners have accused the Nixon administration of manipulating them for political purposes.

The charge is hotly disputed by most of the worried next-of-kin. But we have detected some evidence of backstage management.

In the privacy of his oval office, President Nixon is fretting over the POW issue. As American forces withdraw from Vietnam and turn the fighting over to the South Vietnamese, he expects the antiwar fervor to die down in the U.S. But the continued presence of Americans in North Vietnamese prison camps could raise political havoc in 1972.

The President believes Hanoi is fully aware of the emotional impact of the POW issue on the American public and, therefore, will hold the prisoners hostage for a favorable political settlement.

He has tried every possible approach to Hanoi to obtain their release. He has focused world opinion on the prisoner issue in an attempt to bring pressure upon Hanoi. But it is now evident to the President that the North Vietnamese intend to wring every possible concession out of the U.S. before turning the prisoners loose.

Last July, the North Vietnamese offered to release the prisoners concurrently as the Americans pulled out of Vietnam. But in return, they demanded a total withdrawal of all U.S. troops and equipment in 1971.

Nixon is unwilling to leave the South Vietnamese without the weapons to defend themselves. He also intends to leave a residual force, probably fewer than 50,000 men, to help the South Vietnamese operate their equipment and to give them logistic support.

This has created a stand-off in the maneuvering over a settlement. The President thinks the presence of this force in Vietnam will give him a bargaining card that he can use to get the prisoners back. But the North Vietnamese insist the prisoners won't be returned as long as Americans remain in South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Nixon desperately wants to hush the issue at home. Any flareup of emotions, he feels, would play into Hanoi's hands. He has sought, therefore, to placate the prisoners' families and to keep them quiet.

The Defense Department has been instrumental behind the scenes in organizing some 2,700 family members into the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia. A Defense Department lawyer, Charles Havens, who had worked on the POW issue at the Pentagon, stepped into the non-paying job as counsel for the league shortly after leaving government.

Havens drew up a constitution which seeks to keep the league out of lobbying activities. He claims this is necessary for tax-exemption purposes. The idea, however, that the Internal Revenue Service would prosecute the wives of war heroes is ludicrous. More likely, the constitution is intended to discourage family members from agitating for the return of their men.

The league's advisory board was also selected with the active, if informal, advice of military officers. Most of the advisors are outspoken hawks on the war; some are retired military officers. No outspoken doves are active on the board.

President Nixon has been most solicitous toward the POW families. He has directed his national security advisor, Henry Kissinger, to give them private briefings on the peace prospects. Some wives were invited to a White House prayer meeting, others to watch an Army-Navy football game with the President. In return, here's how he has tried gently to manipulate them:

When he needed justification to free prisoners, he called in the league's charming coordinator, Joan Vinson, and other POW wives to stand by him.

After some league wives conferred with Pathet Lao and Chinese communist officials, the State Department tried to discourage them from presenting the communist views to the press.

There's suspicion that the Nixon administration had a hand in fashioning the proposals that were voted on at the league's recent convention. The wording, worked out by Havens, appeared calculated to block the militant minority from making the league more activist. Those who favored a more militant role would have had to vote to dissolve the league. The convention also swarmed with dashing officers, sent over from the Pentagon, who assisted the wives and, in some cases, berated wives who opposed Nixon's Vietnam policies.

The issue has split the league perhaps irrevocably. At the convention, the bitterness between the opposing factions was so thick you could cut it with a bayonet.

Joan Vinson, who helped to found the league, tried to steer a middle course between the extremes. But she has now been pushed aside by the league's conservative leadership.

The conservative wives, meanwhile, insisted to us that they have not been "used" by the administration but merely assisted in kindly fashion.

TOM WICKER

Mr. Nixon's 'Philosophy'

WASHINGTON—Sam Ervin and other civil libertarians no doubt will want to question William H. Rehnquist extensively on his Bill of Rights views, but no serious threat to Senate approval of President Nixon's two Supreme Court nominees is likely. A few ironies of the situation are nevertheless worth pointing out.

It has been extensively remarked upon, for instance, that the administration ended its short-lived policy of seeking advance approval for Supreme Court nominees from the American Bar Association, just at a time when that policy had saved Nixon from two misconceived nominations. Not only was the result two better qualified nominees than those originally chosen; but when the A.B.A. turned down Nixon's first choices, it probably also spared him and the nation another bruising and disillusioning confirmation battle in the Senate—a battle nobody needed.

The fact that Lewis Powell and Rehnquist were Nixon's second choices also sheds strange light on the rhetoric he used in naming them. Among other things, he said that Supreme Court nominations are the most important a president makes. He labelled Powell "a very great American" and Rehnquist "one of the finest legal minds in this whole nation today," and predicted that both would earn the kind of respect accorded Justices Black and Harlan, whom they will replace.

That's fine, and may even prove true; everyone should hope so. But if so, on what grounds did Nixon pass over these outstanding men in the first place, and send to the A.B.A. the names of two persons that body's reviewing group then labelled "not qualified?" That question is precisely this kind of gap between presidential rhetoric and presidential action that has brought presidential integrity into such disrepute — where once it was so nearly undisputed.

For another thing, if Powell proceeds to easy confirmation as expected, where will that leave Nixon's impassioned declaration of 18 months ago that the Senate would not confirm anyone who "had the misfortune of being born in the South," and that the defeat of G. Harrold Carswell had been "regional discrimination?"

It will leave the earlier statement looking more like political demagoguery than it did at the time, which is not easy to do. It also mocks the administration's past contention that Carswell was the best southern nominee then to be found; where was Powell? He is older now than he was in 1970, and anyway, Nixon himself told reporters that "ten of him is worth 30 years of most."

Moreover, in that angry statement accusing the Senate of discriminating against the South by rejecting Carswell, Nixon contended that the Supreme Court is best constituted when "each section of the country and every major segment of our people can look to the court and see there its legal philosophy articulately represented." The other night, the same President said that "with only nine seats to fill, obviously every group in the country cannot be represented on the court," and therefore his criteria were legal excellence and judicial philosophy.

But let this change be ascribed to growth in office, a process in which inconsistency can be a jewel. A final irony remains in the President's insistence that he had hunted for and found the kind of nominee who would "interpret the Constitution, and not . . . place himself above the Constitution or outside the Constitution . . . He should not twist or bend the Constitution . . . to perpetuate his personal political and social views."

That sounds fine, but it is a view that ill comports with Nixon's following lecture on "judicial philosophy" (right out of his 1968 campaign speeches), contending that "some court decisions have gone too far in the past in weakening the peace forces as against the criminal forces in our society."

This is not a constitutional but a "personal, political and social view" to which Nixon, like any American, is entitled. But the clear implication of his speech was that he had chosen two men who shared it ("it is with these criteria in mind that I have selected" them, he said). It remains to be seen, therefore, whether the President really has selected two nominees, however able, who will interpret the Constitution without bringing "personal, political and social" views to the task.

Rehnquist, in particular, as "the President's lawyer's lawyer," presumably has shared in Attorney General Mitchell's policy decisions, and has advocated many of them before Congress. When he interprets the Constitution on, say, wiretapping, it will be remarkable if he does not bring something of the Mitchell-Nixon attitude to the task; after all, he helped formulate it.

Cub Scouting

Lincoln, Neb.

Cub scout leaders seldom turn a boy away from a pack unless the dens are so overcrowded there is no room. Usually the dens are kept at a certain number of boys because they meet in the home of the den mother and there is a limited amount of space. Also, most den mothers run the dens without assistance because other mothers are too busy to help. Boys are energetic and it takes a bit of time and many hands to give each one individual attention.

All parents who wish to enroll their sons in cubbing should contact the cub master or any of the other leaders of the pack nearest their home, and ask if the both of them and their sons may visit a pack meeting. Then if the boy decides he wants to join, the parents can do him a favor and sign up with him and become part of the pack family. Packs usually need all kinds of help, especially den mothers.

The following is copied from "Cubs Wolf Book, Parents' Supplement"

"Cub scouting is for the whole family, not just the cub scout. There is fun for all at meetings of his pack and at home as he works on the skills cub scouting teaches. Share the work and the play with your son. He will enjoy his years as a cub scout more if you do — and so will you."

Those people who are confined to a wheelchair, for instance, can never depend on a reliable source of transportation such as a city bus line provides. For other citizens, this alone is the determining factor of whether or not they can participate in the community as active, independent, contributing citizens.

Many times handicapped people are forced to become dependent citizens by a society which highly values independence but yet are forced into this role of dependency by this same society.

The city is presently preparing itself for a new bus system. It is a shame that all of its people can't look forward to its implementation. Providing good bus service for the entire public surely should be a goal of the Lincoln Transportation System.

CURTIS ANDREWS

A Long Way

Lincoln, Neb.

Perhaps our increasing awareness may save us yet, in the matter of pollution, but everyone will agree that we have a long way to go. Still, if each of us does what he can, even on a very small scale, it may not be hopeless.

It is heartening to read of a group of dedicated youngsters actively pursuing the "recycling" idea, which not only removes papers and cans from circulation but places them back in some other usable form. The idea seems to be catching on and spreading.

I have noticed that the litter-collection receptacles on light poles in the downtown area gather quite a bit of what would otherwise be blowing or lying around on sidewalks and gutters.

The large-scale situation is something else again, such as the ruining of our forests and streams, where large profit is at the heart of such destruction. But here again we must all do that we can, even if it just writing to our congressmen in protest. We cannot allow everything good and beautiful to be gobbled up and despoiled because there is money to be made in such activities.

CONCERNED

For Everyone

Lincoln, Neb.

I have just finished reading the article entitled: "Good Service Stressed A City Bus Line Goal" (Star, Oct. 14). Naturally I agree with John Alden's statement as reported in this article: "The point of operation is to provide a service." I also wholeheartedly agree with this article in the opening sentence: "Providing good bus service to the entire public was re-emphasized Wednesday as the goal of the Lincoln Transportation System . . ."

This brings me to the purpose of my letter. Providing good service to the entire public includes just that — the entire public — young and old, rich and poor, black and white, and handicapped and not handicapped. Not one of these groups should be excluded from

County To Re-Evaluate Exempted Church Land

... Tax Status Of 50th, Randolph Site Questioned

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday agreed to re-evaluate church-owned property at 50th and Randolph allegedly being used for religious purposes which was exempted three years ago.

Charles Bates appeared before the board in protest to the property owned by the Temple Baptist Church being tax exempt on the contention that it was vacant land with nothing but weeds and grass on it used to park a car occasionally.

He said exempting property for religious purposes is "unfair and unjust to taxpayers."

"If they (the church) can pay $32,000 for a piece of property to put a car on, they surely can put a dollar in the kitty to pay the taxes," Bates said.

He told the commissioners that this property should have brought in approximately $1,000 in taxes for each of the three years it was exempt.

Assessor Fritz Meyer said he originally recommended that 25% of the property used for church parking be exempt and the rest be taxable which was the case until the church came before the board again contending the property was being used for a playground.

Meyer said he then inspected the property and found a backstop and ball field with youngsters playing ball and recommended that the property be exempt.

In other business, the commissioners met with Eugene Hogan, the new chief engineer at Lancaster Manor, and outlined his responsibilities.

It was agreed that he could make necessary purchases up to $250 without consulting the board.

Commissioner Robert Colin said he had had "a lot of phone calls" about the auditor's report of the county shop division of the county engineer's office.

"A lot of people want answers," he said, adding, "the board's entitled to know and the public is entitled to know the answers to questions."

Without being specific as to what questions he wanted answered, Colin suggested that if County Engineer Walter Hloppe didn't answer the questions, the county attorney should.

County Offers Plan For Placing Former Residents Of Westview

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday authorized County Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert to submit to the State Health Department the proposal he made to the board Tuesday for placement of the 40 former Westview residents forced out of the Westview facility by fire Sept. 21.

Trabert told the board that he was proposing that the cases of the 40 persons be reviewed and a determination be made by the Nov. 1 deadline set by the state on how many require no medication and little care and could be placed back in Westview as a board and room facility.

He said he thought steps should be taken to obtain a license for Westview as a board and room facility and estimated that about 20 of the former Westview residents could be placed back there on a temporary basis and that the county could provide a licensed practical nurse if necessary.

Trabert said that the others could probably be crowded into Lancaster Manor for the time being and that those at Westview on a temporary basis be moved out as quickly as it is possible to find places for them.

The alternative proposal sought by the state, Trabert said, would be to move them to other counties.

"I don't know where, but we'll have to find places for them in other counties," Trabert said.

He said he felt, under the circumstances, the state would be reasonable and that Joe Hageman of the State Health Department would cooperate with the county.

Hageman had written a letter to the board and Trabert last Thursday asking to have in his office by Nov. 1 the county's action concerning the successful placement of all residents needing care in a licensed facility and an alternative plan for proper care of the other former Westview residents.

Douglas Believes Top Court May Swing To Conservative

Lancaster County Atty Paul Douglas said Tuesday the U.S. Supreme Court should swing to a "conservative" majority if President Nixon's latest two nominees are confirmed.

Speaking before the Lincoln Rotary Club, Douglas said the battle over Louis Powell and William Rehnquist is directed at their philosophy rather than legal ability.

Douglas said the Warren court swung to the left during the sixties in preserving the rights of the individual, and now the conservatives feel it is time to swing back a little.

Perhaps the prosecutor had all the advantages before the Warren court, Douglas said, but this country experienced an increasing rate in crime during the 1960's.

The prosecuting attorney suggested it may now be time to pay more attention to the preservation of society rather than the individual.

While a conservative court is seen with the nomination of Powell and Rehnquist, Douglas said this may not happen, explaining several justices have swung to liberal or conservative viewpoints after going on the court and away from those held before appointment.

Anderson, Kutak Appointed To Justice Standards Post

Washington (UPI) — Law Enforcement Assistance Administration chief Jervis Leonard announced Tuesday two Nebraskans have been appointed to a national advisory commission on criminal justice standards and goals.

Named to the commission were Omaha Police Chief Richard L. Anderson and attorney Robert J. Kutak, also of Omaha. Anderson is a member of the Nebraska Crime Commission.

Leonard said the commission's job is to establish for the first time, national goals, standards and priorities to help "every criminal justice planner in the nation to chart where he is, where he wants to go and how to get there."

The study would take about nine months to a year, the administrator said and would cost an estimated $1.5 million.

The special advisory committee is headed by Delaware Gov. Russell W. Peterson who also heads the National Governors Conference Committee on Crime Reduction and Public Safety.

Gene Confirms He's Presidential Candidate

College Park, Md. (UPI) — Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy confirmed Tuesday that he was a candidate for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination but said he was "not prepared to make a formal announcement."

"I don't know if there is going to be a specific announcement," McCarthy said. "It might just be one of those things that people wake up and discover some morning."

McCarthy told students at the University of Maryland, where he lectures on poetry once a week, that "I've not really made a decision to make a total, all-out unrestrained candidacy in the way I did in '68."

McCarthy was the first major anti-war candidate to oppose President Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1968 primaries.

The former Minnesota Democrat discussed his campaign at the beginning of an hour-long question and answer session with more than 400 students.

The Minnesota campaign manager for McCarthy said Monday that McCarthy would mail 100,000 letters to supporters telling them of his campaign plans and announcing an increase in his staff to begin work on his campaign.

Attorney John Connolly of St. Paul, said the letters were to be mailed Tuesday to persons who backed McCarthy's 1958 presidential bid and to his more recent supporters.

McCarthy said he would work in states that have no presidential preference primaries.

"We're going to work in non-primary states — see if we can get delegates — and challenge in some quasi-primary states and then take a look at the total picture as it develops along the way," McCarthy said.

He said domestic problems would be the major issue in the 1972 campaign.

'Domestic Problems' "Probably the issue which will have the most appeal — since everyone is going to have about the same position on the war — will be what we propose to do about domestic problems, like poverty and the operation of the economy and the related difficulties such as crime, drugs and so on," he said.

The candidate backed by the Democratic Party will be less important than the party's positions, McCarthy said.

"Whoever it is secondary," he said, "the candidate figures in only if he would be inclined not to honor promises by the party. I'm more interested in developing party positions," he said.

When asked why he would concentrate his campaign in non-primary states instead of wading into the major primary battles as he did in 1968, McCarthy said:

"In non-primary states you can gauge your vote, whereas in primary states with three or more liberal candidates to split about 60% of the vote, you can't make a practical judgment."

5 Battlefield Actions Flare Around Saigon

Saigon (AP) — Battlefield action flared near Saigon Tuesday, with five enemy attacks in the provinces surrounding the capital.

Killed were 18 government troops and one U.S. soldier. Seventeen South Vietnamese and two Americans were wounded. One enemy soldier was killed.

The attacks included the daylight ambush of a U.S. Army engineer convoy 50 miles northeast of Saigon and the ambush of a South Vietnamese payroll convoy 40 miles north of the capital. The payroll, estimated at $7,000-$10,000, was saved, field reports said.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of Military Region 3, which includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces, said four enemy regiments totaling about 2,500 troops have been ordered to step up attacks in the corridor north of Saigon.

A massive relief operation was under way in five northern provinces battered by typhoon Hester.

Government officials put the South Vietnamese death toll from last Saturday's typhoon at 100, and said 555,000 homes were destroyed and about 200,000 persons were homeless.

The U.S. Command said American aircraft had flown 900 mercy missions, evacuating more than 3,000 civilians from stricken areas and lifting in 20 tons of relief supplies.

The command revised the total of American casualties upward to three killed and 51 injured by the storm. Revised figures also showed 25 helicopters worth $6.3 million destroyed and 33 others seriously damaged. The command said other helicopters suffered minor damage.

Phantoms Leave In Saigon, the U.S. 7th Air Force announced that the first squadron of F4 Phantom fighter-bombers to be withdrawn from Vietnam left for the United States Tuesday.

The 380th Tactical Fighter Squadron, with 18 Phantom jets, was based at Phu Cat on the central coast. The departure of the fighter squadron was part of continuing U.S. troop withdrawals.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command said at least 30 Cambodian soldiers were killed in four day of fighting around two small towns about 30 miles south of the capital.

Many other soldiers were reported missing after as many as 1,000 enemy troops overran a two-company garrison at Sai Va, the Cambodian command reported.

Ferguson Calls Action By U.N. 'Slap In The Face'

Donald L. Ferguson, candidate for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination, Tuesday said that the United States has suffered its worst "slap in the face" in the United Nations since its founding in San Francisco, through the expulsion of Taiwan.

"It is shameful that our State Department had no indication of the potential and overwhelming defeat which the United States would suffer when the U.N. voted 76-35 for expulsion," Ferguson said. "Our leaders were confident of a successful vote for two Chinas, but were unable to read even our own allies."

"This is another example of the wavering leadership and the ineptness of U.S. foreign policy," he added.

Ferguson said that the defeat symbolizes the dramatic need to put skilled diplomats in sensitive positions.

School Issue Finally OK'd At West Point

Lincoln Star Special

West Point — The fourth time proved a charm for passage of a proposed new junior-senior high school for this community.

By a vote of 871 for to 764 against, West Pointers Tuesday gave approval to the $1,485,000 bond issue. The proposal was previously turned down in 1965, 1966 and 1969.

Although there are 94 absentee ballots to be counted Thursday, they cannot reverse the outcome which needed only a simple majority for passage, Supt. Earl E. Lowe said.

Approximately 160 more votes were cast Tuesday than in the 1969 election, Lowe reported.

It will be four to six months before construction can get under way on the new building, the superintendent revealed, and he predicted the fall of 1973 as the earliest time for use of the new facilities.

School Bond Issue Nixed At St. Paul

Lincoln Star Special

St. Paul — Voters in the St. Paul school district gave an emphatic "no" to a $1,494,000 school bond issue in a special election here Tuesday.

The unofficial vote was 211 votes for the proposal, and 735 against, the Howard County clerk's office reported. Thirty-three absentee and two disabled ballots will not change the outcome.

Observers said the turnout of voters in this first ballot on the school issue was "fairly good."

The funds had been proposed for building and equipping an addition to the present school facilities and repairing some of the old facilities.

Lincoln church news is carried on a special page in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Frankfurter and Noodle Casserole

Approximately 25¢ per serving.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 8 oz. Skinner Egg Noodles | 1 Tbsp. Worcestershire |
| 1 lb. frankfurters | 1 10 oz. can condensed tomato soup |
| 1 medium onion chopped | 1/2 cup water |
| 2 Tbsp. margarine | 1/2 tsp. salt |
| 1/4 pound Cheddar cheese, shredded | |

Cook noodles as directed on package. Drain. Cut frankfurters into long thin strips, lengthwise, and brown with the onion in margarine. Add remaining ingredients and cook, stirring frequently, until cheese melts. Combine with noodles and place in a buttered casserole. Bake in 400° oven 25 minutes. Serves 6-8.

Rising From Ranks Of Unknown, Sen. Gravel Is Busy

By DAVID E. ROSENBAUM
Washington — At 3 o'clock one day last week, Sen. Mike Gravel, carrying a briefcase, a shaving kit and a clean suit, left Friendship International Airport near Baltimore on a plane to Los Angeles.

After a fundraising speech that night for a California representative, Gravel, an Alaska Democrat, boarded a return flight to Washington, arriving at 6:30 Thursday morning, just in time for a shower, a shave and 15 minutes of picketing the White House to protest the planned nuclear test at Amchitka Island in the Aleutians.

He could not stay in front of the White House any longer because he had to drive to Warrenton, Va., for a lecture that afternoon and be back in time for a flight to Canton, Ohio, for an evening speech to a county Democratic committee.

This kind of frenetic schedule has become commonplace for Gravel since the night four months ago when he convened a midnight hearing of his Senate subcommittee on public buildings and grounds and read part of the secret Pentagon papers on a war in Indochina into the subcommittee's official public record.

Was Unknown
Overnight, Maurice Robert Gravel was transformed from a little-known, 41 year-old freshman Senator from Alaska into a nationally prominent politician, wooed by his party's presidential aspirants and sought as a public speaker from coast to coast.

Back home in Alaska, many political experts believe Gravel is in such serious political trouble that they doubt he can hold his party's nomination, much less the Senate seat, when he comes up for re-election in 1974. But the trouble preceded his reading of the Pentagon papers, which, the experts say, has neither helped nor hurt him significantly.

Gravel is clearly basking in his newfound prominence.

"I admit it. I thrive on public exposure and hard work and traveling," the senator said on the drive to the Baltimore airport, the only time he had for an interview during the week.

He certainly got the exposure last week. In addition to his trips to California, Virginia and Ohio, he spoke in San Antonio and Waco, Texas, Tuscaloosa and Point Clear, Ala., New Haven, Conn.; Plandome, N.Y., and New Haven, Conn.

Publicizes Books
Sandwiched between the trips to Canton and New Haven was a stopover in Boston to publicize the four-volume set of books just published by Beacon Press entitled "The Senator Gravel edition of the Pentagon papers." The book contains all the material that the senator placed in his subcommittee's record that night in June.

Beacon is a non-profit publishing house, owned by the Unitarian-Universalist Church, of which Gravel is a member. He is making no money from the publication.

Sen. Mike Gravel

But he freely acknowledges that the speaking tours are lucrative. Last week, for example, he was paid more than $4,000 for his lectures.

"It's the one honest way a senator has to supplement his income," Gravel said, adding that it was difficult for a senator, with all his expenses, to live on his public salary of $42,500.

Gravel has three favorite issues, both in the Senate and on his speaking tours: The draft, the war in Indochina and the potential dangers of relying on atomic energy as a source of power.

No Big Victories
He has not won any noticeable victory on these fronts in the Senate. He led two attempts to filibuster the draft extension bill this year, and both debates were ended on the first cloture vote — a rare occurrence in the Senate, which is always reluctant to cut debates short.

Still, he feels that his constant traveling, causing him to be absent regularly from the Senate when one of his issues is not the current business, is the best means to reach his goals.

Some members of Congress he says, can achieve their legislative ambitions by working in the committees. But Gravel does not have the seniority for that.

Other senators, he notes, are cloakroom lobbyists, tirelessly buttonholing their colleagues and trading favors to accomplish their ends. But this is not Gravel's style, and he admits that some of his associates in the Senate find him a bit abrasive.

"My feeling," he said, "is that the more I become nationally known the more they will have to listen to me in the Senate and the more I can chip away, bit by bit, for what I want."

Support Wanted
As a result of his new prominence, many of the men seeking the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination are angling for Gravel's support.

It now appears that early next year he will publicly announce for Sen. Edward S. Muskie of Maine, whom he hopes to be able to help on two scores.

First, Gravel's endorsement may bring Muskie some support from the left wing of the party. Second, Gravel's parents are French-Canadians, and he speaks French fluently, a considerable advantage in some of the heavily Canadian small towns in northern New Hampshire.

Alaska politicians believe that Gravel's national exposure will do little for his political future in Alaska. He has no organization and no base of support there, they say. And his emphasis on national issues rather than Alaska's special problems will make him vulnerable to defeat by a number of men of both parties.

"They're already scrambling to see who's going to run against him in the primary" three years hence, one Democratic politician said.

Britisher Hits New Tax Credits

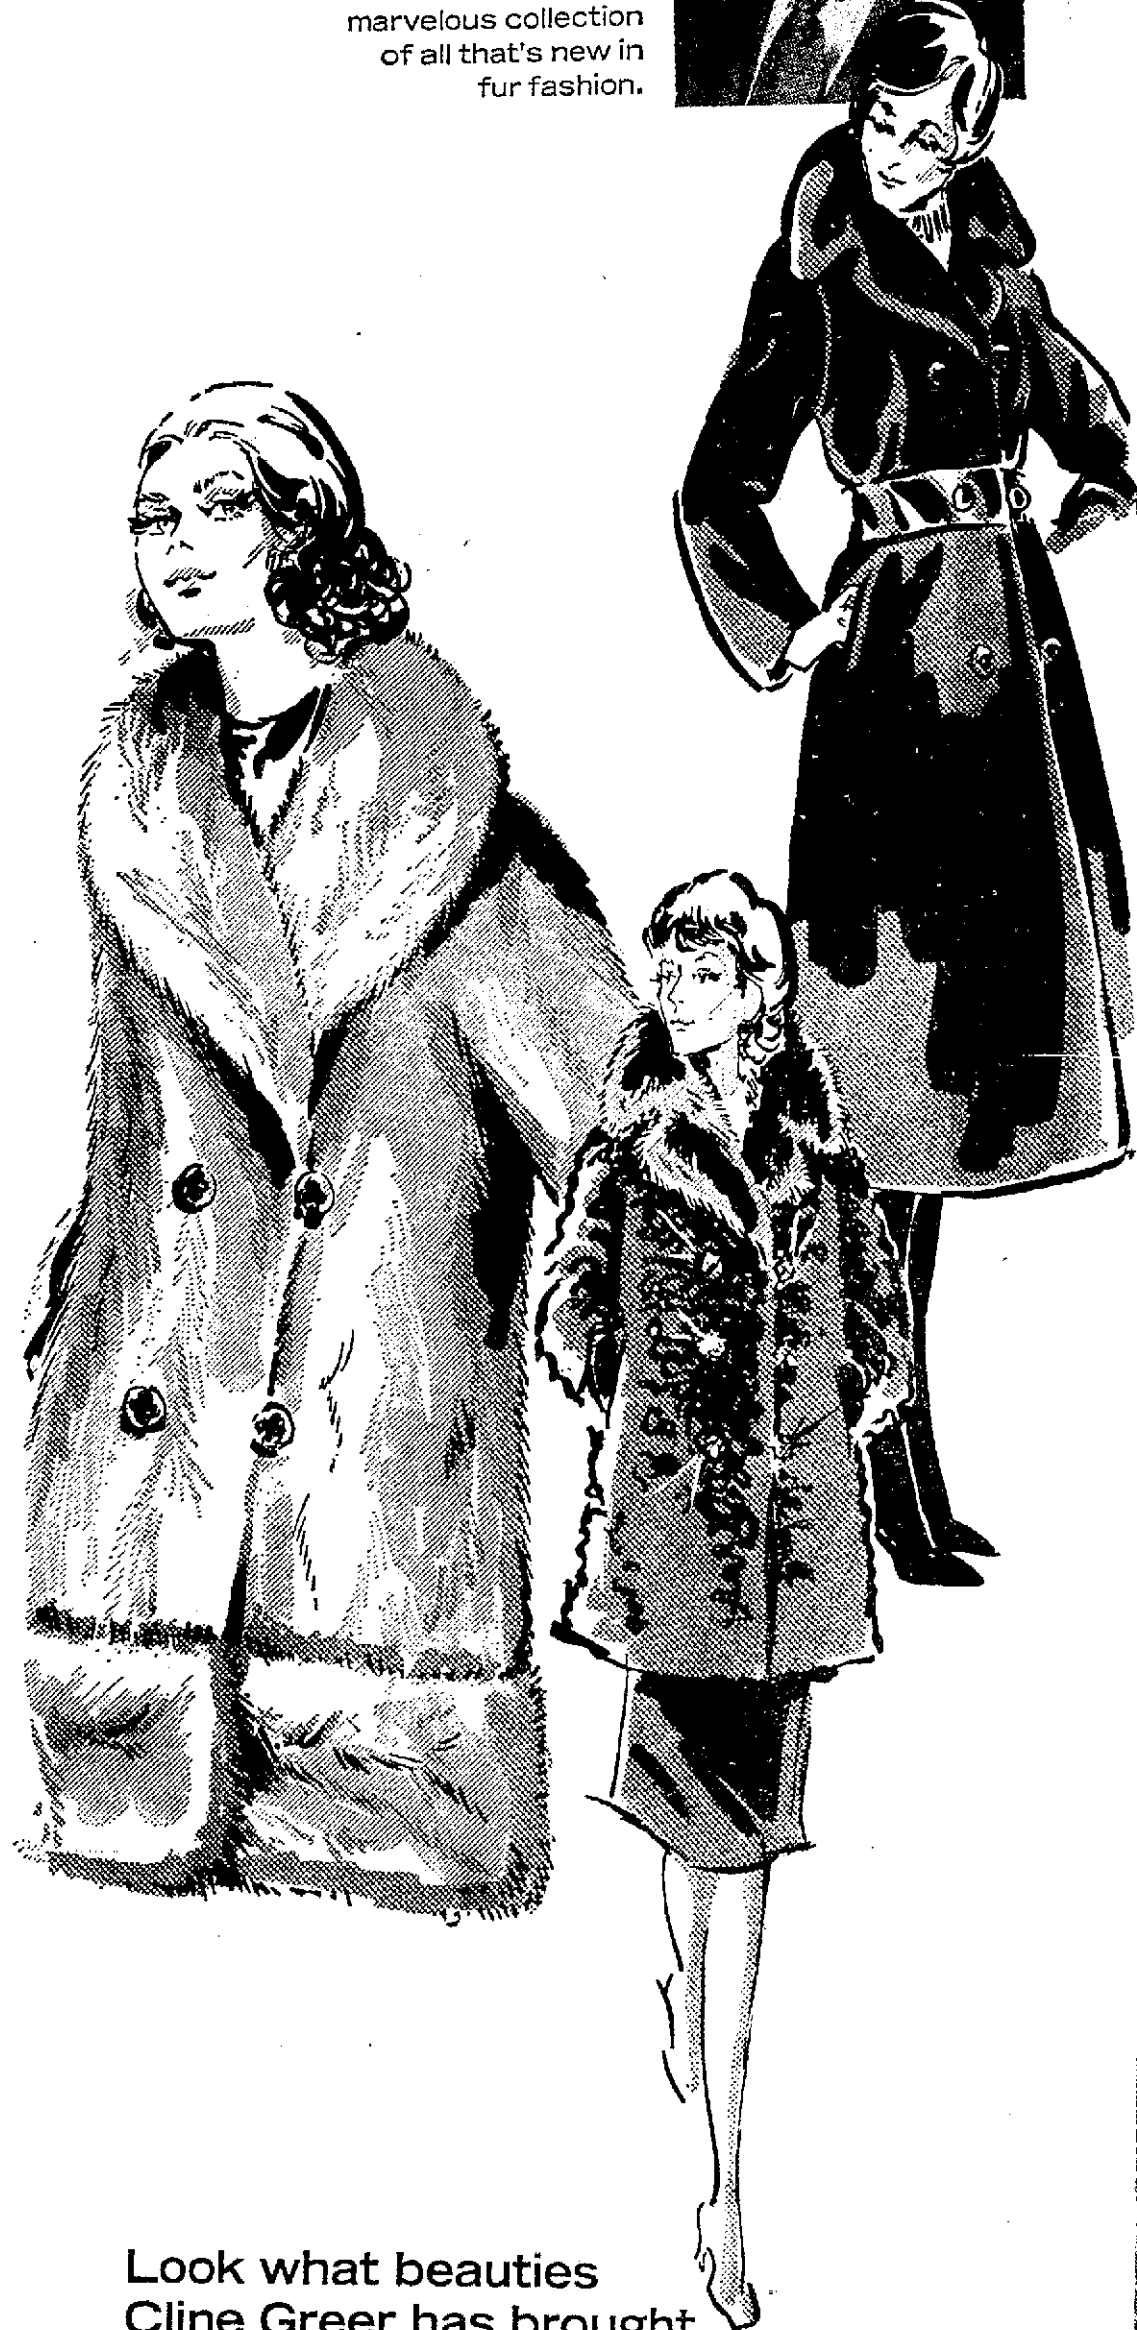

London (AP) — Britain has complained "in the firmest terms" to the United States about its new tax credits on U.S.-built plants, the trade and industry secretary told the House of Commons.

The disclosure by Secretary John Davies followed an angry speech by Commons member John Bruce-Gardyne. He called the tax system discriminatory and an "outrageous breach of trade agreements."

Roy Mason, Labor Party trade spokesman, said the recent U.S. tax revisions could lead to a trade war.

'Morning-After' Pill Proven 100% Effective

(c) Washington Star
Washington — The use of a "morning-after" pill to prevent pregnancy has proved 100% effective in 1,000 women who voluntarily participated in a study of the medication.
The study was carried out by Dr. Lucile Kirtland Kuchera of the Ann Arbor, Mich., Veterans Administration Hospital and University of Michigan Health Service. It is described in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.
The report says that although at least 40 pregnancies might have been expected in the group of 1,000—which had not had contraceptive protection during intercourse—there were no pregnancies.
More Remarkable
This was all the more remarkable because most of the women had been exposed at the mid-point of their menstrual cycles, when the risk of pregnancy is greatest.
The drug used in the study was diethylstilbestrol, a form of the hormone estrogen. Patients suffered no serious side effects from its usage, the study says.
Patients began taking two pills a day within 72 hours after sexual intercourse and continued to do so for five days.
Most reported that they menstruated at the expected time, although a few said that the flow was either lighter or heavier than usual.
Used In 1940s
Diethylstilbestrol was used in the late 1940s to help pregnant women threatened with spontaneous abortions to carry their babies to term. But its use was discontinued when there were reports that girls born to mothers thus treated ran an increased risk of vaginal cancer.
In a telephone interview, Dr. Kuchera said that, despite those reports, the incidence of vaginal cancer has remained low.
Despite the drug's apparent safety, she said, patients were told that this was "an emergency type of treatment" and that, should they continue to need contraception, they should use other means.

Space-Age Men, Ideas Combat Forest Fires

Los Angeles (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service is using space-age men and ideas to try to cope with an ancient problem: fire.
Carl C. Wilson, regional director of research at the service's Fire Laboratory here, said that as employment declines in the space and defense industries, "we are obtaining some of the most talented people for our work."
He said two of the lab's newest devices "are examples of our use of men and ideas from the aerospace and weapons industries."
The devices Wilson was discussing are a special camera that can "see" through smoke and an instrument to measure things like temperature and wind direction and velocity at the heart of a fire.
The lab here is one of three in the nation. The others are at Missoula, Mont., and Macon, Ga.
$1.2 Million Budget
Operating on a $1.2 million annual budget, the Los Angeles lab handles projects for the Forest Service's Pacific Southwest Forest and Range Experiment Station based at Berkeley, Calif.
The main target of lab projects is the brushfire. During two months last year — from Sept. 15 to Nov. 15—brushfires destroyed over 600,000 acres of California watershed and 885 homes, causing an estimated $200 million damage and killing 14 persons.
Wilson said a 65-man staff studies fire meteorology, mass systems of fire fighting, fire management, fire behavior and fuel break design. The lab also designed a fire danger rating system for California and a fire weather handbook as well as tactical manuals for the use of helicopters in fire fighting.
Works Through Smoke
The new camera is one of the lab's most important developments. Wilson said. Developed by a former aerospace researcher, it can pinpoint "hot-spots" through the smoke, and enable the best use of men and apparatus.
Another invention now being worked on looks like a weathervane. Cooled by water under pressure of freon gas, the device can operate at the heart of a blaze, measuring temperature, wind direction and velocity.
The lab also is experimenting with plants, trying to find slow-burning types that can adapt to California's arid mountains.

British Fight Blazing Battle With Snipers On Irish Line

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops fought a blazing gunbattle with guerrilla snipers Tuesday at the border with the Irish Republic. Hours later a powerful bomb smashed a police station outside Belfast, wounding 13 persons.

As huge funeral crowds in Newry mourned the deaths of five Roman Catholics killed over the weekend by army gunfire, the deaths of two more persons raised the fatality toll in this violence-ridden British province to 135 since the wave of strife began in 1969.

One victim was a 26-year-old man who was gagged, blindfolded and shot through the head — apparently by an execution squad of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The other died of bullet wounds suffered in a weekend gunfight.

Police said the blast ripped through a precinct station at Larne, 17 miles north of Belfast on the Irish Sea, wounding six policemen and seven civilians and apparently blowing out the entire front of the building.

Snipers' Fire

British army headquarters said snipers from across the border fired on troops preparing to blow up a frontier road to cut down arms smuggling from the neighboring Irish Republic. A spokesman said the soldiers fired back in a 45-minute skirmish and reported two of the snipers appeared to be wounded.

In Dublin, the Irish government denied that the fire came from the republic's territory. Justice Minister Desmond O'Malley issued a statement saying Irish border police were "completely satisfied that the shots were fired on the six-county side and none was fired from County Donegal."

In the border-area town of Newry, where soldiers killed three men trying to rob a bank Saturday night, thousands of residents lined the streets and jammed into a church as the three coffins were carried through town. Two army helicopters watched from overhead for trouble.

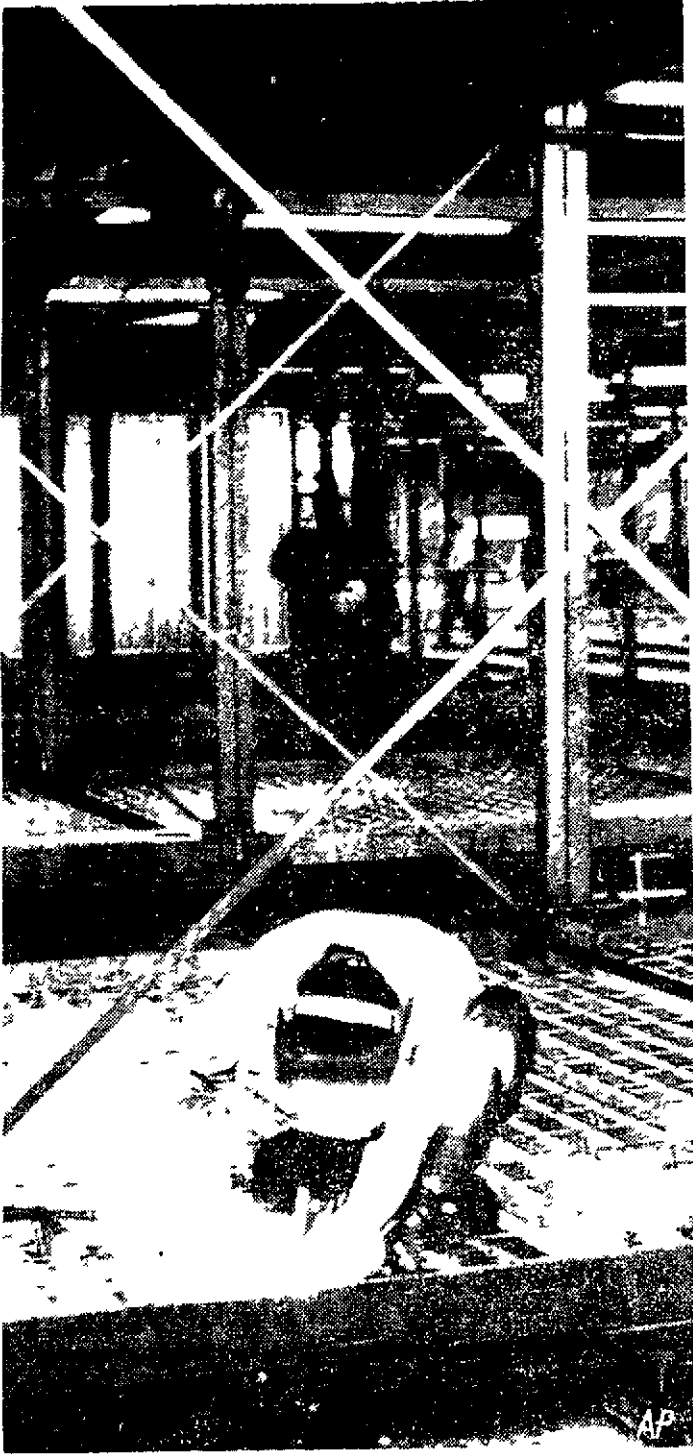

Troops moved in when stone-throwing youths smashed a few windows but no major incidents flared. Civil rights leaders charged the army had committed murder by shooting down the mob and urged the people to quit selling supplies to British soldiers.

In Belfast, an angry crowd of more than 2,000 watched the funeral of two sisters killed by army gunfire at a roadblock Saturday. A mob attacked troops when soldiers tried to photograph marchers in the cortege — apparently as suspected members of the IRA.

On the political front, about 15 rebel members of the provincial Parliament and Senate met with nationalists in a ballroom at Dungiven Castle to form their own rival parliament.

Breakaway leader John Hume told "the Assembly of the Northern Irish People" that the rebel parliamentarians "had lost faith in the government of Northern Ireland... The age-old Irish problem is no nearer a solution... Citizens are separated from citizens by barbed wire."

The rebel parliament declared it was "the principal representative body of the non-Unionist (meaning Roman Catholic) community."

Agent Youngblood Is Eased Out Of White House Duties

By LEE BYRD

Washington (AP) Rufus W. Youngblood was a guardian shadow to five presidents and an unforgettable hero to one of them. So why, to hear him tell it, couldn't he get a cup of coffee at the White House?

"I wish I knew," said Youngblood, coming off yet another round of golf. He's played a lot of golf in the last four months, after quietly retiring, at age 47, as the Secret Service's No. 2 man.

"If you know who is shoving the spear in your back, you can grab him by the collar and hit him in the mouth. But a little innuendo here, a little there... what the hell am I supposed to do?"

By Youngblood's account, his duties as deputy director were slowly rendered superfluous after President Nixon took office.

He makes it clear he holds Nixon blameless. "He's a real gentleman," said Youngblood. "All the presidents I've served have been good people. They don't cause you any trouble. It's these second-or-third-string quarterbacks who come in and say 'Let's get rid of this guy because he was there with LBJ.'"

Youngblood said he was subjected to petty harassments and backbiting, apparently because Nixon aides considered him too closely identified with Lyndon Johnson when the Texan was president.

As an example, he said, he was phoned one day in March of 1969 and told that his membership in the White House mess, where he frequently lunched, was terminated.

The man who called, a naval attache, wouldn't say who gave the order, Youngblood said.

"I got my $25 refund and that was that," he said.

Youngblood's responsibilities included supervision of the White House detail and he still traveled some with the President. He could have stayed on in the $36,000 post, he said in his gentle Georgia drawl, "but I don't want to waste the taxpayers' money."

Youngblood was publicly decorated by the Treasury Department for exceptional service in protecting Johnson on the day that President John F. Kennedy was assassinated. Johnson said the agent's performance was "as brave an act as I have ever seen anyone perform."

As Oswald Fired

When Lee Harvey Oswald opened fire on the presidential procession, Youngblood jumped into the vice president's car and threw himself on top of Johnson. When the motorcade reached the Dallas hospital, he guarded Johnson with drawn revolver and then, upon word of Kennedy's death, rushed him secretly to the presidential jetliner.

In his memoirs, Johnson wrote that "when a man, without a moment's thought or hesitation, places himself between you and a possible assassin's bullet, you know you have seen courage. And you never forget it."

Youngblood agrees he "sort of grew up" in the Johnson administration. But he insists that his loyalties, in line with Secret Service tradition, always have been to the presidency itself, not any particular man.

"I once told LBJ that what I did in the voting booth was strictly between me and the Lord," said the lanky, slightly balancing Youngblood. And he added that Nixon officials could "have no idea in the world" what his politics are.

Moreover, he notes, he served six years at the White House during the Eisenhower administration, and still counts Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower "among my best friends." He also made tours with Presidents Harry S. Truman and John F. Kennedy.

Although Youngblood would reflect only upon his own case, other sources indicated that several more agents who made mark in the Johnson administration have been shunted out of the coveted White House assignment causing considerable, if guarded, disgruntlement in the ranks.

They include Thomas L. Johns, who was bumped from assistant director to a post in Birmingham, Ala., and Clint Hill and Emory Roberts, both of whom earned high ratings for their actions during the Dallas tragedy.

The White House has declined comment on the assertions that politics has influenced Secret Service assignments. "I don't think we'll be saying anything about that," said press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. Referring to Youngblood, Ziegler then added: "If you wanted to sell a book, wouldn't you say something like that?"

Youngblood says he isn't planning a book, although "I've thought about it."

His last trip with the President was to Spain, Yugoslavia and Ireland in early fall of 1970. One of his first assignments for Nixon was to help draw up security arrangements at his Key Biscayne, Fla., complex.

A Change

Although Youngblood once issued the White House travel assignments himself, he says that after Nixon took office "the manifests were already made up when they came across my desk."

Mostly, he said, the circumstances leading to his retirement were "sins of omission rather than sins of commission."

"I'd hear about meetings that had already been held, and didn't know they were going to be held."

Why didn't he press the issue with Director James Riley or White House personnel? "You don't invite yourself to a party, do you?" he said.

Youngblood, who is married and still has three of his four children living at his home in nearby Vienna, Va., may start a second career in law enforcement.

He acknowledges he recently had "a little chat" with the mayor of Atlanta, Ga. Police Chief Herbert Jenkins of Atlanta reaches retirement age in January.

Pact Is Signed

Dacca, East Pakistan (AP) — The U.S. relief organization CARE has signed an agreement with the provincial government to build 30,000 low-cost cyclone-resistant houses in the storm prone delta region of East Pakistan. The three-year project will cost an estimated $3.3 million.

E. Germany, Poles Agree To Access

Warsaw (UPI) — Poland and East Germany have agreed to open their common border by next year to give their citizens free and easy access, simply by showing police identification cards, to each nation, Polish Government sources said.

The decision marked a major event for both nations, although their other borders — even Poland's frontier with the Soviet Union — remain closed to all citizens except those who have gone through the time-consuming process of getting a visa.

The sources said Edward Gierek and Erich Honecker, the Communist Party leaders of Poland and East Germany, respectively, agreed in September that their border should be open, with no passport formalities and minimal customs controls. The agreement probably will go into effect at the start of 1972, they said.

Political observers said the agreement was a direct result of recent changes in both party leaderships. Former Polish first secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka and former East German party leader Walter Ulbricht had feuded for years. The result was a chill in Polish-East German relations.

Gomulka and Ulbricht were replaced within the past year by Gierek and Honecker, and things have been improving — both economically and politically — ever since.

60 Millionaires To Propose Deal To Presidential Hopefuls

The New York Times

New York — A group of 60 millionaires decided at a luncheon meeting here Tuesday to ask presidential candidates to support a series of congressional, governmental and campaign financing reforms as the price for their contributions.

The guest list at the luncheon meeting, held at the 21 Club, read like a "Who's Who" among political contributors.

One millionaire told his fellow guests that their potential contributors represented perhaps one-quarter of the funds necessary for a presidential campaign. The eventual presidential nominees are expected to spend a minimum of $20 million each.

Consomme And Steak

The millionaires agreed over their consomme and sliced steak that they would ask presidential candidates to come individually before the group in the next few months to discuss such proposals as abolition of the congressional seniority system, democratization of the political parties, modernization of state and local government structures, strict limitations on campaign spending and ultimate government financing of political campaigns.

"It was the establishment taking on the establishment," said one participant who asked not to be identified. The meeting was not announced publicly and participants were reluctant to talk about it afterward.

The conferees did not draw up a list of presidential candidates to be invited, but it was apparent that the group, although it included some Republicans, would concentrate its pressure on Democratic candidates.

One of those present, Marvin Rosenberg, president of Cameo Curtains, Inc., and a long-time financial backer of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he did not think President Nixon would be invited to appear before the group.

The meeting was organized by Howard J. Samuels, president of the city's Off Track Betting Corp.; Edgar Bronfman, president of Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd.; Charles Dyson, chairman of Dyson-Kissner Corp., and Arthur G. Cohen, chairman of Arlen Realty and Development Corp.

Those In Attendance

Among those present were John W. Gardner of Common Cause, the citizen organization, Dean Alan K. Campbell of the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University; Stewart R. Mott, a major General Motors stockholder; Abraham Fenberg, a New York banker, Eli Sagan of New York Girl Coat Co., Inc.; Jay Wells, president of Wells Television Co. of Massachusetts; Charles Bassine of Spartan Industries, and Carol W. Haussaman, philanthropist.

An informant said the millionaires "sounded like college students" as they discussed the asserted failures of the "system."

"Let us resolve that no candidate, whatever his party, will feel free to expect our support if he does not address himself to the burning issues," said Bassine.

Gardner, informants said, decried the "tyrannical" congressional seniority system and said "society's confidence in its institutions has been leaking away." He added: "This is a group that can do something about it."

Several of those who attended the meeting said they did not see the session as benefiting any particular presidential candidate.

Informants said some of those present had already contributed to the campaigns of several Democratic presidential prospects but that most had kept their wallets and checkbooks closed so far.

RANSOM RECOVERED . . . police nab pair; hostages sit in car.

Newsmen, Helicopters, Policemen Follow Speeding Armed Robbers

San Diego, Calif. (AP) — Two armed robbers with two terrified hostages led police on a high-speed, 165-mile chase Tuesday until they were captured and the hostages released unharmed at a sheriff's roadblock.

The gunmen, who began their six-hour flight after a supermarket holdup in Long Beach, surrendered peacefully about 60 miles east of San Diego on an isolated stretch of Interstate 8.

The driver, spotting the roadblock, tried a swift U-turn, but confronted police, sheriff's and highway patrol cars that had been in pursuit.

Gave Up

Officers shouted at them to surrender, and the two threw out their rifles released the hostages and gave up, said Chief Deputy Warren Kanagy of the San Diego Sheriff's Department.

The two later were identified by Long Beach police as Mark Richard Griffie, 18, and H. L. Madden, 21, of Long Beach. They were taken to the San Diego County Sheriff's office for booking, authorities said.

Police identified the hostages as Henry Davis, 58, a porter at Lucky Stores the robbery site in Long Beach and Sarah Kelleher, 37, a bakery employee at the store.

At one point the robbers were holed up in a home in exclusive Laguna Hills with three additional hostages, including a 6-year-old child, police said.

None Injured

The child and her father were released and another hostage there escaped. None was injured, police said.

The men demanded a $20,000 ransom, but fled with only $5,000 taken from the holdup rather than wait while the ransom was being raised. They also demanded and got an unmarked police car for their getaway.

The radio-equipped car was supplied but officers kept after it as it sped along freeways and streets, observed from the skies by police helicopters and trailed at a distance by a motorecade of law officers and newsmen.

France To Sign With Soviets 'Declaration Of Principles'

Paris (AP) — France has agreed to sign a "declaration of principles" with the Soviet Union governing future Paris-Moscow relations, but official sources said Tuesday night deep policy differences remain on some concrete issues discussed with Soviet Communist Party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev.

President Georges Pompidou subscribed to the declaration, without precedent in Western dealings with Moscow, but stood firm on France's ties with the West. He resisted Soviet pressure for a friendship treaty to mark Brezhnev's visit to France.

A joint statement issued Tuesday night outlined areas of accord, but remained silent on such key questions as the Soviet proposal for mutual force reductions in Europe.

A source close to the French president said the statement was an indication that, although agreement on some points was easy, "it was less simple" on others.

Private Session

The statement was issued after a private bargaining session that ran two hours beyond its scheduled time and disrupted the carefully planned program for Brezhnev's second day in France.

Shortly after Brezhnev left Pompidou for his guest quarters in the Trianon palace at Versailles, the French president summoned Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann; Francois-Xavier Ortoli, the industrial development minister; Heive Alphonse, secretary general of the Foreign Ministry and Roger Seydoux, French ambassador to Moscow.

One result was cancellation of what the French call "an intimate dinner," with which Pompidou and Brezhnev would have rounded out their day at a chateau near Paris.

The joint statement said "a common point of view became clear" on questions of bilateral political consultations, on Europe and on "certain aspects of European security."

"Great Importance"

It said the two leaders, agreeing on the "great importance" of technical and scientific cooperation, "envisaged" measures to deepen and develop it.

The declaration of principles was intended to represent the "new step forward" the Soviets have been urging France to take, sources said.

Sources described the document as the limit of President Georges Pompidou's willingness to develop a special political relationship with the Soviet Union.

The declaration was said to contain three main points on which the two powers say they agree.

The desirability of dissolving the political military blocs which divide Europe, the inviolability of existing European frontiers and the principle of noninterference in the internal affairs of other countries.

Pompidou Skeptical

The sources said that even though Pompidou agreed to the declaration he remained skeptical about the sincerity of Soviet intentions.

Simultaneously with the declaration, the French and Russians will sign a new economic agreement providing for increased trade and investment, the sources said.

The economic accord reflects the Soviet need for Western investment and technology and the French desire of finally reaping some tangible benefits from their opening to the East.

Sources said the declaration was a compromise between Brezhnev's insistence on a treaty aimed at loosening French links with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Pompidou's reluctance to go beyond the French-Soviet protocol signed last year.

Northeast College Enrollment Hits 737

Norfolk (UPI) — Enrollment at Northeastern Nebraska College during the fall semester has reached 737 fulltime students and a total of 1,245 including regular courses and courses in continuing education.

Two additional classes are to be organized before the end of the semester, officials said.

Order Fails To Postpone Elections

Winnebago — Despite a temporary restraining order issued by the Federal District Court in Lincoln, a second election was held Tuesday for three positions on the Winnebago Tribal Council.

Officials were unable to locate members of the council who voted 5-2 on Oct. 13 to hold the second election after declaring an Oct. 5 election invalid.

A hearing has been set for Oct. 29 in the court to determine if that election was valid.

Elected to the council Oct. 5 were Mrs. Nikki Solomon, Matthew Cleveland and Louis Mallory who defeated incumbents Joe Rainman and Paul DeCora. The other incumbent, Virgil Free, resigned from the council. The council called a hearing Oct. 13 to hear testimony and accepted a petition signed by 74 persons that contended the election was invalid because persons under the influence of liquor received ballots.

Testimony was offered by Alvin Kelsey who said votes were bought for quantities of liquor and by Joe Rice who said wine was provided members of his family.

The council then scheduled a new election for Tuesday. Results of the election were not divulged.

Candidates elected Oct. 5 would have joined Sterling Snake and Louis LaRose to create a majority for younger members of the nine-member council.

State GOP Approves 5 Delegates

Grand Island — The names of five Nebraskans approved by President Nixon as delegates to the White House Conference on Aging were announced Tuesday by State Republican Party Chairman Milan Bish of Grand Island.

Bish said the five are Isabelle Craig and Harry C. Heald of Lincoln, Irwin Ellestadt of Omaha, Robert Harrison of Norfolk and Adelaide Stubbs of Shelton.

Bish said he and GOP National Committeewoman Pat Smith of Lincoln made the nominations.

"We feel so strongly that more consideration should be given to senior citizen problems that we have called a special executive committee meeting in Lincoln Oct. 30 on proposals of the State GOP Senior Citizen Advisory Board," Bish also reported.

"We will endorse specific recommendations for the delegates to carry with them to the conference on aging."

The Republican delegates are in addition to a number of delegates previously selected by Gov. J. James Exon.

United to Add Omaha-Chicago Nonstop Service

Omaha (UPI)—United Air Lines has advised Omaha business and aviation leaders it will start additional nonstop service to Chicago's O'Hare International Airport on Feb. 1.

The new eastbound flight to Chicago will leave Omaha about 2 p.m. while the westbound flight from Chicago will depart at about 5 p.m.

Mechlin Moore, executive assistant to the United president, also reconfirmed the following improvements in Omaha air service announced by United on Oct. 8:

—Nonstop jet service to New York's LaGuardia Airport will be provided by next June, with an early morning departure planned for the eastbound trip and a late afternoon return flight.

—Daily schedules to O'Hare Field will be expanded to seven flights by next April 30.

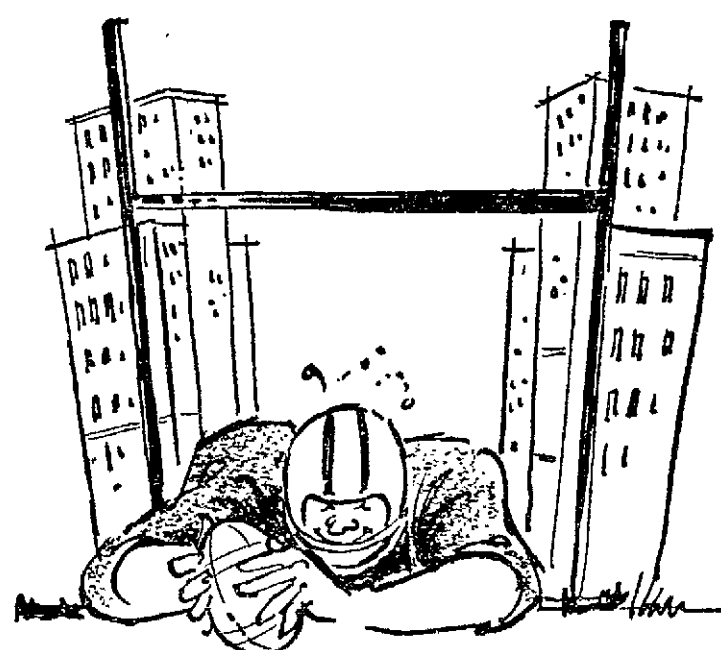

INSECTICIDE KILLS EAGLE

Laurel, Md. (UPI) — Federal wildlife officials said Tuesday a bald eagle found last year along the Potomac River south of Washington probably was killed by an agricultural insecticide.

An autopsy performed at the Interior Department's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center said the eagle's carcass contained lethal amounts of dieldrin, used by farmers to kill ground insects.

Wahoo Turns Out To Pay Tribute To Composer Howard Hanson

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Wahoo — This town of more than 3,800 people can lay claim to a Pulitzer Prize in music, a Nobel Prize in biology, a niche in the Baseball Hall of Fame, and several Oscars.
This week Wahoo pays tribute to one of its "Famous Five" favorite sons — composer Howard Hanson, world-renowned for his teaching, conducting and promotion of American contemporary music as well as his own prize winning compositions. Hanson, presently Composer Emeritus at Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., turns 75 Thursday.
Hanson's birthplace and early home, a two-story wooden frame house at the corner of 12th and Linden on U.S. 77, has been restored over the last seven years by the Wahoo Woman's Club. It now serves as a museum commemorating the achievements of Wahoo natives George Beadle, Noble Prize-winning geneticist, Clarence Anderson, renowned artist; Darryl Zanuck, movie producer; and "Wahoo Sam" Crawford, Hall of Fame baseball star — as well as Hanson.

The tall, lanky Swedish composer, for 40 years the director of the Eastman music school, is honored by musicians all over the world for his tireless efforts in exposing the work of contemporary composers to the musical public. His own Fourth Symphony won the Pulitzer Prize in 1947.
Remembered by Wahoo residents as a typical Midwestern boy who played marbles, war, Indians, and "Run Sheep Run," Hanson began studying piano and composing piano pieces at the age of seven. Although neither of his parents, Hans and Hilma

Hanson, was distinguished in music, they recognized his talent immediately.
Howard soon took up the cello, and directed the Wahoo High School orchestra at the age of 15. He graduated a year later, and was persuaded by a language professor at Luther Academy to study classics because of the youngster's mastery of several languages. Hanson recalled the persuasion was so strong that he signed the papers, walked out the door, and didn't come back to the school for more than 30 years.
Already an accomplished pianist, Hanson wanted to be a composer.
Continuing his education, Hanson attended the music school at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln and the Institute of Musical Art in New York City, now the Juilliard School of Music. He received his degree and did graduate work at Northwestern, where, at the age of 19, he received an invitation to become a professor of musical theory at the College of the Pacific in San Jose, Calif.

Two years later, upon the retirement of the dean of music, he became the youngest college dean in the country. While at Pacific, he learned he had been awarded the Prix de Rome—a fellowship to study and compose in Italy. He was the first American ever accorded the prize.
During his stay in Italy he composed several major works, including "North and West." Returning home, he met George Eastman, who had just spent millions of dollars founding a music school in Rochester, N.Y., and was looking for an American musical figure capable of administering the conservatory.

At 27, Hanson became the youngest director of a major music school in the world, and served in that capacity until his retirement in 1964. Remembered for his vigorous personal style of administration, Hanson reputedly knew every student who entered Eastman.
Hanson tirelessly performed the works of his American contemporaries, and in 1929 became the first person ever to systematically use the radio medium to take contemporary American music to the public. He has been awarded more than 30 honorary doctorates, including one from the University of Nebraska.
This week Hanson is being honored at Eastman with a surprise celebration marking both his 75th birthday, and the 50th anniversary of the school whose history is nearly synonymous with his own.

DeCamp Says Exon 'Misinformed' On Lottery

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh Tuesday said Gov. J. James Exon's opposition to his proposed state lottery plan "may be based on misinformation."

Exon Monday said he opposes such a proposal at this time.

"But the governor indicated that my plan would be patterned after that in New Hampshire," DeCamp said.

"That is wrong. It will be patterned after the lottery in New Jersey. New Hampshire's lottery has been a failure, but New Jersey's has been an overwhelming success."

The maximum estimated annual revenue from the New Jersey lottery when it was first initiated was $30 million, DeCamp said. It actually produced $53 million in the first 10 months of operation, he said.

And, as for criticism that a lottery would hit lower income citizens hardest, DeCamp said, surveys in New Jersey indicate that "the biggest buyers are in the $7,000-a-year income class."

Furthermore, DeCamp said, the lottery "may have cut into illegal gambling in New Jersey by reducing as much as 50% the amount collected in the numbers racket, which especially hits the poor.

"It has proved to be a blow to organized crime," he said.

New Jersey sells tickets at 50 cents a copy and holds weekly drawings, DeCamp said.

"I have every reason to believe that a system patterned after that would work in Nebraska," he said.

DeCamp has proposed a lottery as a means of raising new state revenue. Initial funds would be earmarked for penal reform and building projects at the University of Nebraska.

Laird Strives To Get Allied Unity To Approach Reds On Reductions

Brussels, Belgium (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird tried Tuesday to line up the Western allies for a joint approach to Moscow on reducing armed forces in Europe.

Laird conferred with Lord Carrington of Britain, Mario Tanassi of Italy and Helmut Schmidt of West Germany.

Earlier he collaborated with Schmidt in presenting to the Nuclear Planning Group (NPG) of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a picture of what might happen if the Soviets made a major attack on southern Germany and the allies met it with a battlefield nuclear weapon.

Of the 15 members of the alliance, all but France agreed Oct. 6 to send an "explorer" to Moscow to sound out the possibilities of mutual, balanced force reductions. He is Manlio Brosio, the Italian who secretary-general of NATO.

But he does not have a common allied position to present to the Kremlin. Italy was worried — along with Greece and until September was the secretary-general of NATO.

But he does not have a common allied position to present to the Kremlin. Italy was worried along with Greece and Turkey—that an agreement to cut forces in Germany would lead the Soviet Union to build up its forces already in the Mediterranean area.

An attempt was made to reassure the Mediterranean countries by an allied agreement that reductions made on the central European front should not diminish security on the flanks. This was also reached Oct. 6, but the concern persists.

The United States and West Germany are pushing hardest for mutual force reductions, with some support from Britain.

Other European allies are more cautious because they are concerned that across-the-board cuts would be to the advantage of Moscow. Any U.S. forces withdrawn would have to move back across the Atlantic while Soviet troops would retreat only a few hundred miles.

DAV Chapter's Application For Liquor License Denied

Because the number of liquor licenses under the City's number limit is at the maximum, City Council members Tuesday recommended denial of an application for a Class C license sought by the Robert Flansburg Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans.

A spokesman for the veteran's group noted that they were seeking the application for their new location at 3845 No. 70th "for financial reasons" to support the newly-acquired property.

The spokesman outlined to the council numerous projects the group has for the Veterans' Administration Hospital and other community groups.

Councilman Merle Hale, who was the only council member to vote in favor of the application, suggested that perhaps the council could recommend approval on the condition of the availability of the license.

Other council members indicated that they felt it would be fine to approve a license for a group such as the DAV but did not think it would be fair or possible to put them "in line" for a license.

Speaking out in opposition to the application was David Tews representing the Lancaster County Beverage Association.

Tews said his group was opposing only on the basis of the submitted a letter from the numbers limitation.

Councilman Richard Baker Havelock Christian Church opposing the license and indicated that many residents of the area were opposed to a liquor license in the residential area.

Other Council action: Resolutions

- Set hearing Nov. 8 on application of Guy C. Dean Jr. doing business as the Yacht Club for a Class "C" license at 722 West Lakeshore Dr.
- Delayed for one week action on application of Richard E. Moulton for a Class C license at 1134 N. 2nd St.
- Set hearing for Nov. 8 on application of Louis J. Pasco for a package liquor license at 329-332 No. 4th.
- Approved appointment of John L. Hoppe to Auditorium Advisory Board to fill vacancy of Gene C. Eaton with term expires June 1, 1974.
- Created Storm Sewer District 24, 2nd Precinct, Nebraska Highway 2 southwesterly to the Burlington Northern Railroad right-of-way.
- Granted extension of time for one

Guidelines Needed By Mid-November

... On Teacher's Pay

The Lincoln Board of Education was told Tuesday that unless specific guidelines are available by mid-November for Phase Two of the President's wage-price freeze, the board may have to continue the freeze rate into another month due to payroll complications.

For payroll purposes, Supt-

Merger Of Two Airlines Recommended

Washington (UPI) — A Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) hearing examiner recommended Tuesday approval of the Delta-Northeast Airline merger, claiming Northeast's "prospects for survival" are dim without it.

Examiner Arthur S. Present termed Delta "a strong and successful airline" which could provide efficient service over Northeast's routes.

But Present attached a condition to his approval: that the new airline be barred from operating over Northeast's Miami-Los Angeles route segment.

The authority to use the route should be reexamined by the board, Present said.

Delta is the nation's fifth largest airline, and made a $41 million profit in 1970, a year in which the airlines industry as a whole lost $175 million. Northeast lost $10 million in 1970 and $25 million in 1969.

If approved by the CAB, the new airline would have a route structure stretching from New England to the Caribbean.

John Prasch told the board, school personnel must begin pay processing about the middle of the month.

Prasch has said previously he has assumed teachers can get raises after Phase One is lifted. But he said that decision cannot be made until firm guidelines are in hand.

If the schools are forced to draw up the November payroll on current pay rates, and then late-announced guidelines show raises are permissible, some "special rate" pay will be instituted to make up the difference, the board was told at its regularly bimonthly meeting.

Phase One is to end Nov. 13.

On another matter, officials told the board a first quarter payment of $871,455.72 had been received in state aid to schools funds.

The board was told the annual entitlement is expected to hit $3,485,822.89 this year, compared with last year's $3,350,000 and a 1971-72 budget estimation of $3,462,000.

Total funds to be received this year would require the equivalent of 8.933 mills if raise from local property taxes.

If the state aid law were fully funded, a financial report said, the district would receive an additional $5,490,628, and the total impact on local taxes would be 23 mills, rather than 8.933.

The board was also told, in a report on construction progress, that the new warehouse is about 85% complete and that the new Kahoa Elementary School in northeast Lincoln is about 45% complete.

Prior to the board meeting, members met informally with about 40 of the district's teachers to discuss concerns related to salary schedules.

New York — Whitney Young Jr. was posthumously awarded the Family of Man gold medal of the New York City Council of Churches at a dinner at the Waldorf Astoria. The award was for "a lifetime devoted to the cause of civil rights and for his massive contribution to the family of man."

Tenants Urged To Seek Rent Unit Representation

There is a need for tenants to organize and apply pressure demanding that tenants be included on the proposed 15-man national rent board, according to Jesse Gray, director of the National Tenants Organization at a meeting of the City-Wide Tenants Organization (CWTA) Tuesday night.

Gray said that in his opinion "half of that board should be tenants." This would give some assurance that some sort of rent control will be continued after the freeze on wages and prices ends.

Gray also said that people should send telegrams and letters to President Nixon, George Romney and John Connally urging them to maintain a continuation of the rent freeze until such time that rent controls can be worked out.

The rent controls should stipulate that if a landlord violates the provisions of the controls no rent should be paid until the violation is taken care of, Gray said. It doesn't work when you go ahead and pay

10 Million Steel Nuts And Bolts

New York (AP) — More than 10 million steel nuts and bolts will help hold together the most powerful electric transmission line in the United States when it is completed next year.

The 1,150-mile line, suspended in part from 2,300 steel towers, will pass through Indiana, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Canadians Of Ukrainian Descent Show Little Interest In Alexei Kosygin's Visit

By EDWARD COWAN

Vegreville, Alberta — Like a great many of the 500,000 Canadians of Ukrainian birth or ancestry, the people of this farm town on the northern plains have shown little interest in the Canadian visit of the Soviet premier, Alexei Kosygin.

"It's not a conversation piece at the coffee counter," commented Michael W. Kawulich, a lawyer, a few days ago.

"Demonstrate?" said Mrs. Anna Piduchney, who teaches Ukrainian and English in the junior high school. "I think that's below us, a march like that. We want to discuss things on a roundtable basis."

Roughly four of five Canadian Ukrainians were born in Canada, the descendants of the 238,000 Ukrainians who immigrated between 1891 and 1939.

The most strongly anti-Soviet element is found among the nearly 40,000 Ukrainians who have arrived since World War II.

Some of these displaced persons had voluntarily moved to Germany or Poland before the Red Army pushed the Germans out of the Ukraine. Explaining why some Ukrainians wanted a German victory, C. N. Suchoversky, president of the Edmonton chapter of the Ukrainian National Federation, an anti-Communist organization, said "we believed the Germans would give the Ukraine self-administration."

The postwar Ukrainian immigrants helped Hitler and we Canadians fought Hitler," said Frank Lakusta, a 58-year-old Canadian-born Ukrainian. He recalled that during the war he serviced United States aircraft bound for the Soviet Union. Lakusta, a farmer who lives in Edmonton, said of Kosygin, "we like to see a visit like this because (it may mean that) we can sell more wheat to the Russians."

Skilled Tradesmen
The post-war Ukrainian emigrants, many of them skilled tradesmen, professionals and intellectuals have settled in the cities, notably Winnipeg, Toronto and Edmonton. Canadian-born Ukrainians have been drifting from the farms to the cities, but many still live in towns like Vegreville. Originally founded by French Canadians, its 3,700 inhabitants are now more than half Ukrainian.

In Ottawa the other day, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau gave Kosygin a list of hundreds of Ukrainian families that wished to be reunited. Kosygin had asked for such a list when Trudeau raised the Ukrainian question in Moscow in May.

Kawulich, the Vegreville lawyer, who speaks Ukrainian, visited the "Old Country" last summer on a group tour.

"Many of the second- and third-generation Ukrainians know little of the language. What is being done to our people," he said. "If they open up the boundaries, I don't know if there would be a soul left. They know enough about the outside world that they want to get out—especially that younger element. They'd walk night and day."

When they settled on the prairies in a 100-mile-wide strip reaching from southeastern Manitoba to the Edmonton area, the Canadian Ukrainians invariably built a church and a hall, or cultural center. With the population drift from farm to city, and the birth of new generations, adherence to traditional religion, language and custom has weakened.

Mrs. Anne Cotek, a 55-year-old Edmonton hotel worker, was asked if Canada had been good to her people. She answered affirmatively, then added pointedly:

"The Ukrainians have been good for Canada. Everything we have we have worked for. During the hungry thirties my father had four children and he worked to pay off the relief. He worked on the highways and they paid him $5 a month." Mrs. Cotek, a direct, open-faced woman with large blue eyes, added that few Ukrainians were on welfare.

As for Kosygin's visit, she asked, "what's the purpose of it?" and answered:

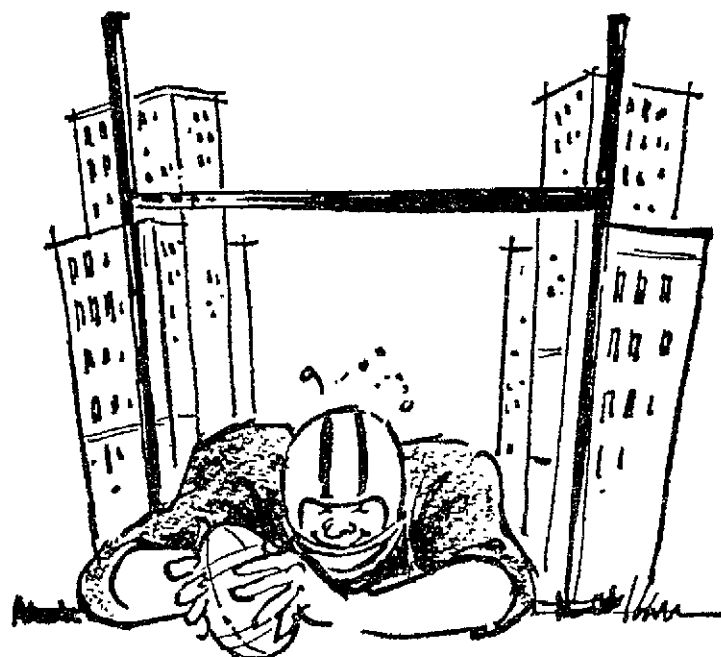

"I think it must be trade. Well, trade is good. We have to get along somehow. I have grandsons and I don't want to see them killed in a war."

The Rev. Michael Sopulak of Edmonton, a priest of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, expressed the hope that Trudeau would persuade Kosygin to let Ukrainians in the Soviet Union join their families in Canada if they wished. Father Sopulak also stressed that Canadian Ukrainians wanted the right to make visits to their relatives' homes in Russia. A common complaint is that Ukrainians who live in Russian villages are required to meet visiting Canadians in cities.

Russians Will Send Weapons
... TO INDIA

By HENRY S. BRADHSHER
(c) Washington Star

Hong Kong — The Soviet Union has secretly made a large new commitment of weapons for India, according to informed sources.

The arms agreement was made when relations between India and Pakistan were already tense, but it was made before the buildup of troops on the Indian-Pakistani borders during the last two weeks.

The Soviet Union has been the main foreign supplier of weapons to India for a decade. The new commitment was made after the Soviets signed a "treaty of peace, friendship and cooperation" with India on Aug. 9.

The sources did not disclose details of the agreement. It was viewed in the context of continuing Indian dependence upon Soviet arms, but it seemed to be directly tied to the mounting border tension and Indian arming of guerrillas in East Pakistan.

Subs, Fighters Supplied

India has in the past received jet fighters, helicopters, submarines and other sophisticated military equipment from the Soviets.

India has a large armaments industry and produces its own small arms, ammunition, tanks, vehicles and other equipment. If a war with Pakistan were to erupt, however, India would need its Soviet-supplied weaponry for such things as a naval and air blockade of East Pakistan.

The border buildup has heightened the danger of war between India and Pakistan, which has existed since last spring.

At that time, India began to arm and aid Bengali guerrilla forces seeking to wrest East Pakistan from the national government and make it independent. Moscow has accused Pakistan of repression in the East.

Moscow Neutral

During the 1965 India-Pakistan war over Kashmir, a disputed Himalayan state whose key area is controlled by India, Moscow assumed a fairly neutral position. After pressure by the United Nations and individual governments halted that war, the Soviets tried to arrange a lasting settlement at the Tashkent Conference in January, 1966.

At that time, Moscow was friendly with both India and Pakistan. This led in 1968 to a Soviet commitment of weapons to Pakistan in response to long-time Pakistani requests for military aid.

India's outrage, however, caused a curtailment of deliveries by Moscow to the Pakistanis, however. And when the Pakistani Army crackdown on East Pakistan began last March 25, Moscow quickly indicated its disapproval—in effect, supporting the Indian attitude.

There is little expectation that the Soviet Union would involve its own soldiers in an India-Pakistan war. But the treaty provides a warning that the Soviets might help if Pakistan is aided by China, which has supported and provided armaments to Islamabad.

44 Are Hurt In
80-Vehicle Pileup

Castelmadama, Italy (UPI) — Forty-four persons were injured in a chain-reaction pileup involving 80 cars and trucks on a main highway seven miles outside Rome.

Police said the pileup began when one car tried to go around another one in a no passing zone and one of them crashed into a guard rail. The pileup stretched more than one mile on the highway between L'Aquila and Rome.

UNL Gets 'Clean Bill Of Health'

... WITH SOME QUALIFICATIONS, OFFICIAL SAYS

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

"With some qualifications," the University of Nebraska's Lincoln campus has been given a "clean bill of health" by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, a university official said Tuesday.

And the university is already tackling problems identified in the association's report, which has been accompanied by word that UNL has been awarded full accreditation for another five years, according to Interim Chancellor C. Peter Magrath.

At a morning news conference, Magrath made public the 20-page report of a review team which visited the campus last April during the first trip of a North Central accreditation team since 1960.

As a result of the visit and a review by the accreditation association's Commission on Institutions of Higher Education, the campus was granted a five-year accreditation, with the next review set for 1976, and was asked to send to North Central for its review and preliminary accreditation any proposed new Ph.D. programs.

"Informal conversation" with North Central officials in Chicago, said Magrath, indicated "they doubt we have adequate resources for all the Ph.D. programs established."

He noted NU has already taken steps to re-evaluate all doctoral-level programs and has decided to phase out three of the current 45.

Magrath also noted the visitation team reported major concerns in administration of the merger of the former Municipal University of Omaha into NU and problems associated with internal delegation of powers.

Both Pluses, Minuses Identified At UNL By Accreditation Team

An accreditation team which visited the Lincoln campus of the University of Nebraska last spring identified both pluses and minuses in a report which has led to a five-year re-accreditation by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

"As state universities go," the visitation team said in its report summary, "the Lincoln campus... are probably about par for the course — better than many, not as good as the best."

"The challenge is there to be better."

Here is a breakdown of some of the report's comments indicating what the team saw as, first, the strong points of the campus, and then the problem areas.

The team:

—said "there is a deep sense of obligation and responsibility to meet the educational needs of the state with as high quality programs as possible."

—called "impressive" UNL's educational television station and said Kimball Recital Hall, Sheldon Art Gallery, University of Nebraska Press and the State Museum are "exceptional resources to contribute to the cultural life of the state and of the nation."

—commended UNL for "working hard to be responsive to the demands for involvement by the several constituencies," including students and faculty members.

—called the physical plant "generally attractive."

—said "there is a serious commitment to undergraduate education."

—observed that the faculty "has some impressive and active young people."

—said "a spirit of cooperation and goodwill prevails."

—commented "there seems to be a relatively free and relaxed atmosphere even though some problems exist."

On the "minus" side, the team:

—said "the number one problem in physical resources is the university library."

—said "considerable concern is expressed on the campuses that the board (of regents) has departed from its traditional role and is involving itself in administrative details."

—suggested more needs to be done in aiding minority students and in expanding the curriculum to include more minorities studies.

—said "it is doubtful whether the steps which have been taken (as of April) to review all Ph.D. programs will lead to the pruning necessary to continue only first-class programs."

—said although "student affairs seems in very good health," major needs exist in clarification of the role of student affairs in respect to the "chief officer of the university" and in "a conscious effort to recruit more minority staff, including women."

—suggested a "clarification and codification of the faculty role in university policy-making."

—said interpretation of university accountability to the citizens by "governor, legislature and regents often leads to actions that at best might be characterized as unfortunate for the health of the academic enterprise."

—said a "corrosion of educational quality" results from "arbitrary accounting and budget controls operated from the state capitol."

—called "long-range planning and statewide coordination" perhaps the most serious problem facing university leaders.

Those problems are being addressed through implementation of a report with a consulting firm and through a University Committee on Governance which is rewriting regents' bylaws and policies, he said.

Magrath said the North Central association pointed out concerns related to adequacy of financing in graduate programs and other areas.

"This is not new," he said. "We've been admitting this to ourselves privately and publicly."

Magrath said he was told that graduate programs and the availability of resources for them "is one of the great concerns nationally" of accreditation associations.

The interim chancellor said he would have preferred a 10-year re-accreditation, although he said, "I'm not disturbed by five years."

Although North Central formerly granted many 10-year extensions, Magrath said he has learned three, four and five-year reviews are common now.

"I'm never satisfied with an evaluation that doesn't give an A plus," he said.

But he said he asked North Central officials if UNL was "wobbly or in some sense weak" in general. "They said no," Magrath added.

HALO CAST ... doesn't dampen Larry's spirit.

Birthday Card Shower May Help Pay The Bills

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Milligan — Larry Capek just could find himself piled clear to his halo in birthday cards this week.

The former Nebraska Technical College student will observe his 20th birthday this Friday wearing an unusual "halo cast." That's a weird-looking contraption which immobilizes the youth's neck and invites "all sorts of cracks about my being a moon man."

Larry has been in the device since three delicate surgeries this summer correcting a severe "scoliosis," a rare curvature of the spine which was bringing on gradual paralysis. He returns next week to the University of Minnesota Hospital, hopefully to have the halo and a connected body cast removed.

More Medical Bills

Unfortunately, the trip also means more medical bills—which is partly where those birthday cards fit in. Bills already exceeding $20,000 are prompting both a card shower and fund drive for the victim and his farm parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Capek.

Surprisingly, the help originated with a dozen youngsters who sing with Larry's younger sister, JoAnn, in the local Methodist junior choir. None of them beyond the ninth grade, they're abundant youthful spirit to offset the shortcoming in maturity.

"The kids themselves came up with the idea to do something for Larry," said Mrs. Bernard Zelenka, who sponsors the choir along with Mrs. Fred Zelenka. "We have no particular goal and realize we can't do a lot, but anything accomplished will be some encouragement to the family."

$330 Collected

The Farmers and Merchants Bank of Milligan, handling the fund, reports some $330 to date. With a community pancake feed in prospect and the appeal widening, the Rev. Adrian Edgar and other backers are optimistic of much more.

A track and basketball letterman before graduating from Milligan in 1970, young Capek had entered the Milford school last February. He had enrolled in building construction in the hopes of joining older brother Randall, who recently started a local contracting business.

Although aware for years that he had some spinal curvature, Larry was not particularly bothered until last spring. Gradually losing control of his feet, he was taken to Omaha and then referred to Minnesota specialists.

Building Strength

The family was told that Larry was only the third Nebraskaan to undergo those particular surgeries—the first one required 10 hours—at the Minneapolis hospital. Though bedfast most of the time since, he has been building strength through occasional strolls around the farmyard, one mile south of Milligan.

"The only way I can get around is walking," said the soft-spoken patient, all smiles despite the six-month ordeal. "The halo doesn't give me head room to get in a car and it hasn't sprouted me angel's wings to fly."

A surgeon's prediction was almost enough to dispel the family's gloom—even the fact that its insurance would barely touch the medical charges.

"The doctor said that his back should be as strong as ever some day," beamed Mrs. Capek. "That's all that really matters."

Man Is Killed When Hit By Falling Door

Lincoln Star Special

Nebraska City — A 21-year-old Marine Corps veteran was killed here Tuesday morning while working at the Steinhart Terminal on the Missouri River.

George Halferty of Plattsmouth lost his life when a 1,400-pound feed bin door fell on him as he drove a fork lift truck into a bin in the terminal's loading area. The Otoe County sheriff's office said Halferty's truck apparently knocked over a steel pin holding up the door, causing it to fall on the victim.

Released from the Marines last spring after serving in Okinawa, Halferty had been employed at Nebraska City for only the past couple of weeks.

Survivors include his wife, Carol of Plattsmouth; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Halferty of Plattsmouth; brothers, William Halferty and Raymond Burgett, both of St. Charles, Mo.; and a sister, Betty of Plattsmouth.

Construction Requirements Outlined

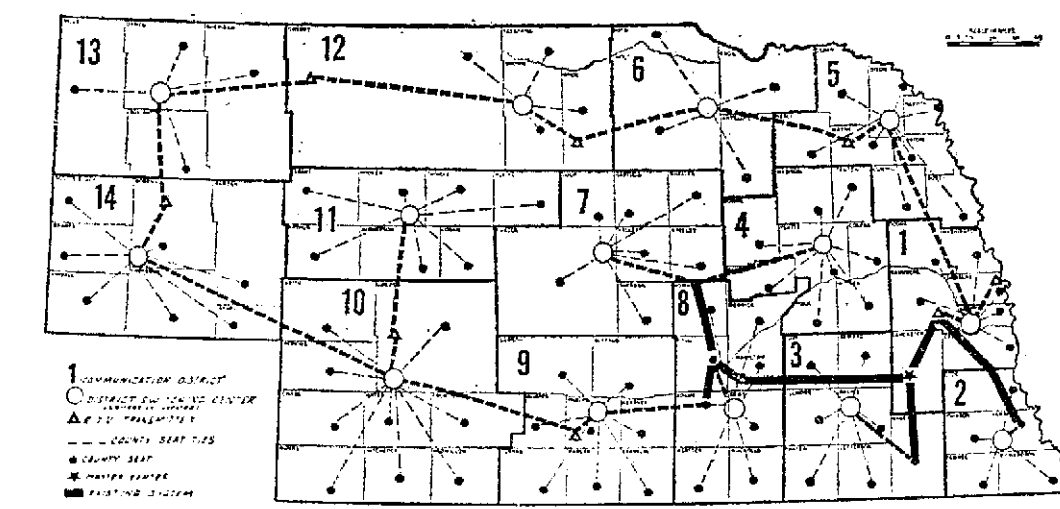

Representatives of approximately 20 communications firms met Tuesday with Department of Administrative Services officials for a question-and-answer period regarding bids for the state's telecommunications system.

The firms, of which about five were Nebraska-based operations, went over point-by-point conditions, terms and completion schedules for the project.

Under the proposed telecommunications system all departments, agencies and subdivisions of state government would be united under one communications system.

The microwave communication system began under former Gov. Frank Morrison's administration. So far the system has been completed in the Omaha-Lincoln-Grand Island area.

Tuesday's meeting produced no agreement on the exact date for bid-letting, since the companies disagreed as to whether they should be allowed 60, 90 or 120 days to prepare bids. Although the schedule was not settled, the instructions to the companies specify that the contractor whose bid is accepted shall commence work within 30 days after signing the contract. He then has 18 months to complete the system. Fines of $300 will be assessed against the contractor for every day work is delayed beyond the specified completion date.

After completion the contractor will lease the telecommunications services to the State of Nebraska with the option to buy. DAS officials indicated they would meet with the companies again Wednesday.

Woman Given Three-Year Term Suffers Apparent Epileptic Seizure

Omaha, Neb. (U) — A 23-year-old Omaha woman Tuesday had an apparent epileptic seizure on the fourth-floor rotunda of the Courthouse moments after being sentenced to one to three years on a child-stealing charge.

Mrs. Donna Stout was taken to Douglas County Hospital where she was checked and released to law enforcement officials.

District Court Judge John E. Murphy imposed the sentence on Mrs. Stout, who was arrested June 18 with Mrs. Pearl J. Hale, 29, at an apartment where they were charged with taking the then 2-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Goetz from Clarkson Hospital.

Baby Recovered

The baby, Michala, was recovered in Lincoln and returned to her parents unharmed.

Charges against Mrs. Hale are still pending. County Atty. Donald Knowles said Tuesday he would discuss findings contained in a pre-sentence investigation on Mrs. Stout with Patrick Krell, the county's chief adult probation officer, before deciding whether to proceed against Mrs. Hale.

Krell's office made the pre-sentence investigation which David J. Cullian, chief deputy public defender, reported on in Judge Murphy's court prior to the sentencing of Mrs. Stout.

Cullian said the investigation showed that Mrs. Hale, who has three children, had suffered a miscarriage earlier this year and that Mrs. Stout told her that she would help her adopt an infant.

Cullian said he investigation showed that Mrs. Stout fabricated several dates concerning the adoption and when those dates arrived and Mrs. Stout was unable to provide a child, she would make up another future adoption date.

Call Arranged

Cullian said in June Mrs. Stout told Mrs. Hale that final arrangements had been completed to pick up a baby at Eppley Airfield. He said investigation showed Mrs. Stout either placed a call or had one placed which resulted in herself and Mrs. Hale being paged at the airport and being told the baby would not arrive.

The Goetz baby was taken from the hospital June 17. Cullian said the investigation report showed Mrs. Stout's motivation was a "mother-daughter type relationship" with Mrs. Hale and her desire to keep Mrs. Hale "from being depressed."

Wanted To Help

Cullian said Mrs. Stout "couldn't stand seeing Mrs. Hale without a baby."

He also reported the investigation showed Mrs. Stout had a history of epilepsy.

After sentence was imposed, Mrs. Stout, who pleaded guilty to the child-stealing charge Sept. 15, left the courtroom. She had just walked through the doorway when she collapsed.

Mrs. Stout, who will be assigned to the Women's Reformatory, will be eligible for parole in five months, court sources said.

Nebraska Corn Harvest Reaches Halfway Point

The harvest of Nebraska's big corn crop is now half completed, government observers reported Tuesday.

This compares to 26% normally harvested by this time of year, according to the weekly crop and weather review by the state-federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

Damaged caused by corn borers and stalk rot last summer has now become quite evident and is causing harvest problems, the agency said.

Grain sorghum combining is 88% complete, compared to a normal 47%. About 95% of soybean acreage has been harvested, compared to a normal of 77%, and sugar beet and potato harvesting are nearing completion.

The condition of winter wheat was reported good to excellent in most areas, but fair to poor in several eastern counties where drought had occurred.

Absentee Voters Favor Fire Hall

Overton (U) — All three absentee votes cast in the $30,000 Overton fire hall bond issue were in favor of the proposal, giving it a 105-99 majority and official approval, village clerk Ralph Burns said Tuesday. A simple majority was needed.

Federal Agents Assist In Probe

... OF OMAHA INCIDENT

Omaha (U) — Special Agent Thomas Sledge of the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division said the federal government has now become involved in the investigation by Omaha Police of a Sunday night incident on Omaha's Near North Side.

The federal agent said the reason for the entry of the federal government is because a sawed-off shotgun was found in the basement of the Frederick Peak home at 3224 Pinkney St.

Donald H. Peak Sr., an uncle to the younger Peaks booked in connection with the incident, accused police of "setting up" some members of the Peak family. He said he is asking for a "full investigation" of the Sunday night incident by Mayor Eugene Leahy.

The elder Peak is the father of Duane C. Peak, 16, who admitted planting a booby trap bomb which killed Omaha Policeman Larry Minard in 1970. Duane Peak was found in juvenile court to be delinquent and was sent to the Boys Training School at Kearney. He has since been moved out of the state.

Sledge said U.S. Atty. Richard A. Dier will be given the file of the case for study of possible charges.

Omaha Police said the shotgun was found on a bed in a basement bedroom of the Peak home.

Frederick Peak, 21, his brother Albert, 24, and their cousin William L. Peak, 22, were arrested in connection with the incident.

Albert, Frederick and five policemen were injured in what Deputy Douglas County Atty. Francis Pane has termed a "brawl."

Donald Peak Sr. charged

police "tore up" the basement of Frederick's home; struck a 12-year-old Peak girl in the stomach and back with a nightstick and beat the three Peak men without provocation.

The brother of Albert and Frederick, Maurice Peak, 16, said Frederick had "peacefully" agreed to go with police in connection with an alleged traffic violation. The officers came to the house originally regarding the traffic violation.

Maurice said Frederick "accidentally" struck an officer while pushing one of his brothers away from the scene and was then struck with a nightstick.

The owner of the house and brother to Albert and Frederick, Russell Peak, 18, said there was no ammunition in the house. Police had reported earlier that ammunition was found in and near the shotgun.

More information was needed from police reports before the determination can be made if felony charges will be filed against the Peaks. Deputy County Atty. Pane said Monday.

Patrolman Gordon Elkins reported Albert shouted at police, "I'm going to get my shotgun and kill you pigs."

Frederick was booked by police on suspicion of abusing an officer and blocking the administration of justice. William was booked for feloniously resisting arrest, obstructing justice and reckless driving. Albert was booked for feloniously resisting arrest and reckless driving.

Bond was set at $1,000 for Albert and William and $200 for Frederick.

REPRESENTATIVE VALUES FROM

with complete confidence

Each diamond is electronically weighed to insure exact weight before setting. Every diamond is expertly graded according to color, brilliance, and cut by consulting Diamond Specialists.

Choose from America's largest selection of diamonds and styles of ladies or men's settings. We cannot be excelled in filling your style and budget requirements.

Since 1885 the Daniels family has served America as jewelers "extraordinary." Quality and integrity have been the corner stone of their 86 year tradition.

Custom design your own jewelry. Our own shop staffed with the finest craftsmen and artisans, will take your ideas and transform them into reality.

HOW CAN ARDAN SAVE YOU UP TO 50% ON YOUR DIAMOND SELECTION? Simple. First, we have a multi-million dollar buying power and deal directly with one of America's largest diamond cutters. This diamond cutting firm, along with a handful of similar firms, receives a large shipment of uncut diamonds once a month from the International Diamond Syndicate. Second, we manufacture much of our jewelry in our own shop, and can, therefore offer you a choice of unlimited styling plus savings. Contrast Ardan's combined jewelry manufacturing and large buying power with the typical retail jeweler who buys diamonds from a ring manufacturer. The ring manufacturer makes a profit on the rings plus a profit on the diamonds they usually purchase from a diamond wholesaler. The diamond wholesaler, who makes a profit, often buys from the Diamond Exchange in New York. And naturally the Diamond Exchange, who buys from the cutters — perhaps Ardan's own diamond cutter — makes a profit. Ardan eliminates all the "Middle Men" and sells on a small profit margin to offer diamonds to you at the greatest savings.

ARDAN DIAMOND GUARANTEE

1. Each Ardan diamond has been meticulously tested for quality, brilliance, cut, proportion and color.
2. Each Ardan diamond has been electronically weighed.
3. Each Ardan diamond has been marked for quality in strict accordance with standards set by the National Bureau of Standards, United States Department of Commerce.
4. Each Ardan ring is free of original defects of workmanship or material.
5. Each Ardan center diamond will be accepted at FULL PURCHASE PRICE, less tax, as an exchange for a diamond of reasonably greater value.
6. Each Ardan diamond ring has a lifetime service warranty which entitles you to FREE inspection, cleaning, polishing, and tightening of diamonds.

POSTCARD

Stan Dolaplan

At midday Athens is a warm 78 degrees. By night it has dropped to 70. The Athenians (and the tourists) sit at outdoor cafe tables, drinking little cups of sweet Turkish coffee while the world passes on parade.

Shops (shut from 1 to 4) open again until 8. It keeps the streets lively. Traffic is the world's worst. Taxis are cheap—15 cents is the flag drop. There are thousands of them, and bitter fights to get them.

The busiest man in town is the doorman at the grand Grand Bretagne on busy Constitution Square. He is up and down the street like a rabbit. Pleading with cabs halted in traffic to sell the empty front seat.

Behind him is the line of impatient tourists.

"Well, how long will it be? I never saw anything like this back home. They ought to get organized."

From Stockholm by wire dispatch: "A Greek worker, age 25, has been fined a respectable sum in Swedish crowns for kissing a 20-year-old Swedish girl for 10 minutes."

"The passionate Greek (as newspapers called him) wanted to continue the kiss of duration. The Swede, suffocating, managed to push him away. Ran to the nearest police station while the Greek pursued with pursed lips."

High on the hill, floating above Athens, the pillar ruins glow in changing lights of the "Son et Lumiere" spectacle. In daytime, the Acropolis is magnificent: The pillars are bleached white in the sun.

Vice President Spiro Agnew's visit causes alarm in both camps: The government and the exiles overseas. Letters from exiles (printed in the Greek papers) denounced it as a Nixon approval of the present Greek government.

At home, Secretary of State Rogers tries to soften the Agnew visit. "We have expressed our disappointment because the Greek regime has not moved faster toward a representative government."

Says the newspaper Estia: "Like the one under which gangsters and Black Panthers reign in America? Under the 'Greek regime prevails law and order which President Nixon promised but has been unable to secure for the American people..."

No military on the streets of Athens. Except those on their way to office work. Normal amount of police—Europe arms its police with small caliber pistols modestly hidden in a flapped holster.

When a country has internal troubles, police walk in pairs with tommyguns. (France during the Algerian affair. Spain after the Civil War.) Not so here.

The airport is guarded. This is the crossing pattern for planes to and from Israel and the Arab countries.

"Let me see," said the girl in the travel office, "you can fly from here to Madrid on Royal Jordanian Airlines." (King Hussein's silver birds.)

I said: "Are you out of your overloving mind?"

Great green melons and green and purple grapes are in season now. The moussaka is wonderful—Greeks can do more with eggplant than any other cooks. The thin, flaky pastry dropping with honey—baklava. Grilled Aegean lobster. Spiced lamb wrapped in grape leaves.

Greek tourist business is up. A New York public relations firm worked on it. In three years, tourist figures went up 58 per cent. The Greeks thanked them—and fired them. It looked so easy, they said, they decided to do it themselves. Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co., 1971

Human Dignity League To Meet

A major organizational meeting of the League for Human Dignity will take place on Tuesday Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the first floor auditorium of the Lincoln Center Building.

According to Curtis Andrews, NOVA student working as community organizer with the league, the group will initiate guidelines for "identifying, determining and documenting the needs of handicapped persons in Lincoln and Lancaster County."

"This is the first step in the implementation of long-range goals," said Andrews, whose group is seeking a research grant for this purpose.

With funds from a grant the league can hire outreach workers to canvass the area and reach a greater number of handicapped persons, Andrews explained.

More specifically, the league will try to isolate and solve the transportation problems of the handicapped within the community. Also related to this is the accessibility of buildings, both public and private, for those with physical disabilities.

Headed by an executive committee with Jean Stever as chairman, the league is staffed by a nucleus of 12 volunteers, most of whom are handicapped.

At present the group is concentrating on the needs of those persons with visual and orthopedic disabilities.

The Tuesday evening meeting is open to the public.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Wednesday

Sagittarians are usually sympathetic to needs of animals. Virgo persons give most attention to their pets. Capricorn natives are possessive in connection with their domesticated animals, birds. Leo enjoys anecdotes about unusual exploits of pets. Pisces persons tend to be more desirous of cats than they are of dogs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are able to obtain money's worth. Key is patience. Select quality. Be a comparison shopper. Realize that all that glitters is not worthless. Means take unorthodox approach when you go.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Deal with those at top; bypass red tape. To do this, you need confidence. Get rid of senseless self-doubt. Sagittarius individual will open doors. One you admire is not out-of-reach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check details. Apparent minor matters build to crescendo if neglected. Aquarius individual plays prominent role. What you seek is not necessarily at a distance. Don't overlook the obvious.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be analytical. Seek reasons. Don't be satisfied that something merely happened; find out why it occurred. Key now is change. Variety. Excitement of discovery is on agenda. Opposition could melt.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pace may be slower than you like—time, however, is on your side. Avoid tendency to rush, act on impulse. Be especially considerate of needs affecting mate, partner. Review recent actions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Much occurs in quiet, almost secretive manner. Don't judge by surface indications. Gossiping relative, neighbor does not have answers. Look behind scenes. Welcome chance to aid one who is confined.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): People tend to respond to your statements, actions in intense manner. Nothing seems medium—it's either hot or cold. Accent your own style; be creative. You do know what is best for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What appears to be opposition is for your own good. Protect security. Build for future. Immediate gains not as desirable as long-range benefits. Realize this and respond accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold off on short journey. Get lay of land. Be familiar with directions, instructions. Relative who seems positive may be hiding doubts. Study Leo message. Do your own checking, evaluating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friend may be well-meaning but misinformed. Need now is for additional information. Protect valuables. Don't give up something for nothing. Express needs. Response will be positive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): One who makes flashy promises should be viewed in skeptical light. Examine various avenues, alternatives. Change of pace is necessary. Trust your own judgment, intuition. Be independent.

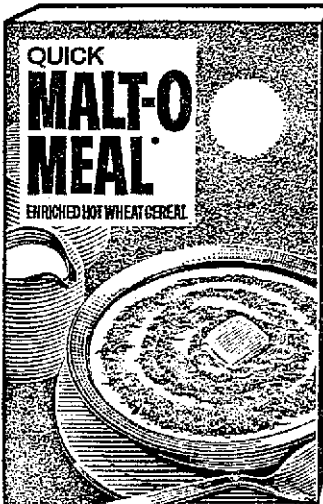

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on writing, publishing. You are able to put ideas to work. Some restrictions are lifted. News from afar is positive. Encouragement is received. What was a barrier turns out to be paper tiger.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you draw people to you with their problems; law and medicine fascinate you. In November, you can make valuable social contacts. In recent months, you have had numerous contacts with Leo persons. What was started this year is due to bear fruit.

Professorship Honors Mr. Branch

The University of Nebraska Foundation announced Tuesday it has named one of its professorships for distinguished teaching in honor of the late Perry W. Branch, who served as the foundation's first executive officer for 20 years.

Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, who now holds a foundation professorship at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will have the title of Perry W. Branch professor of geology. The Board of Regents has approved the change.

How come this kid has more money saved than you do?

Because over the years his parents have invested in U.S. Savings Bonds—in his name, for his future—by participating in the Payroll Savings Plan at work.

He probably doesn't even know. And right now, he couldn't care less. But when he's older, that money can be used for a lot of things—a car, a college education, or even a new home.

The Payroll Savings Plan is an easy way to save money for you and every member of your family. When you join, an amount you designate will be automatically laid aside from your paycheck and invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. It's a painless way to save.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 3½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and make your son the richest kid on the block.

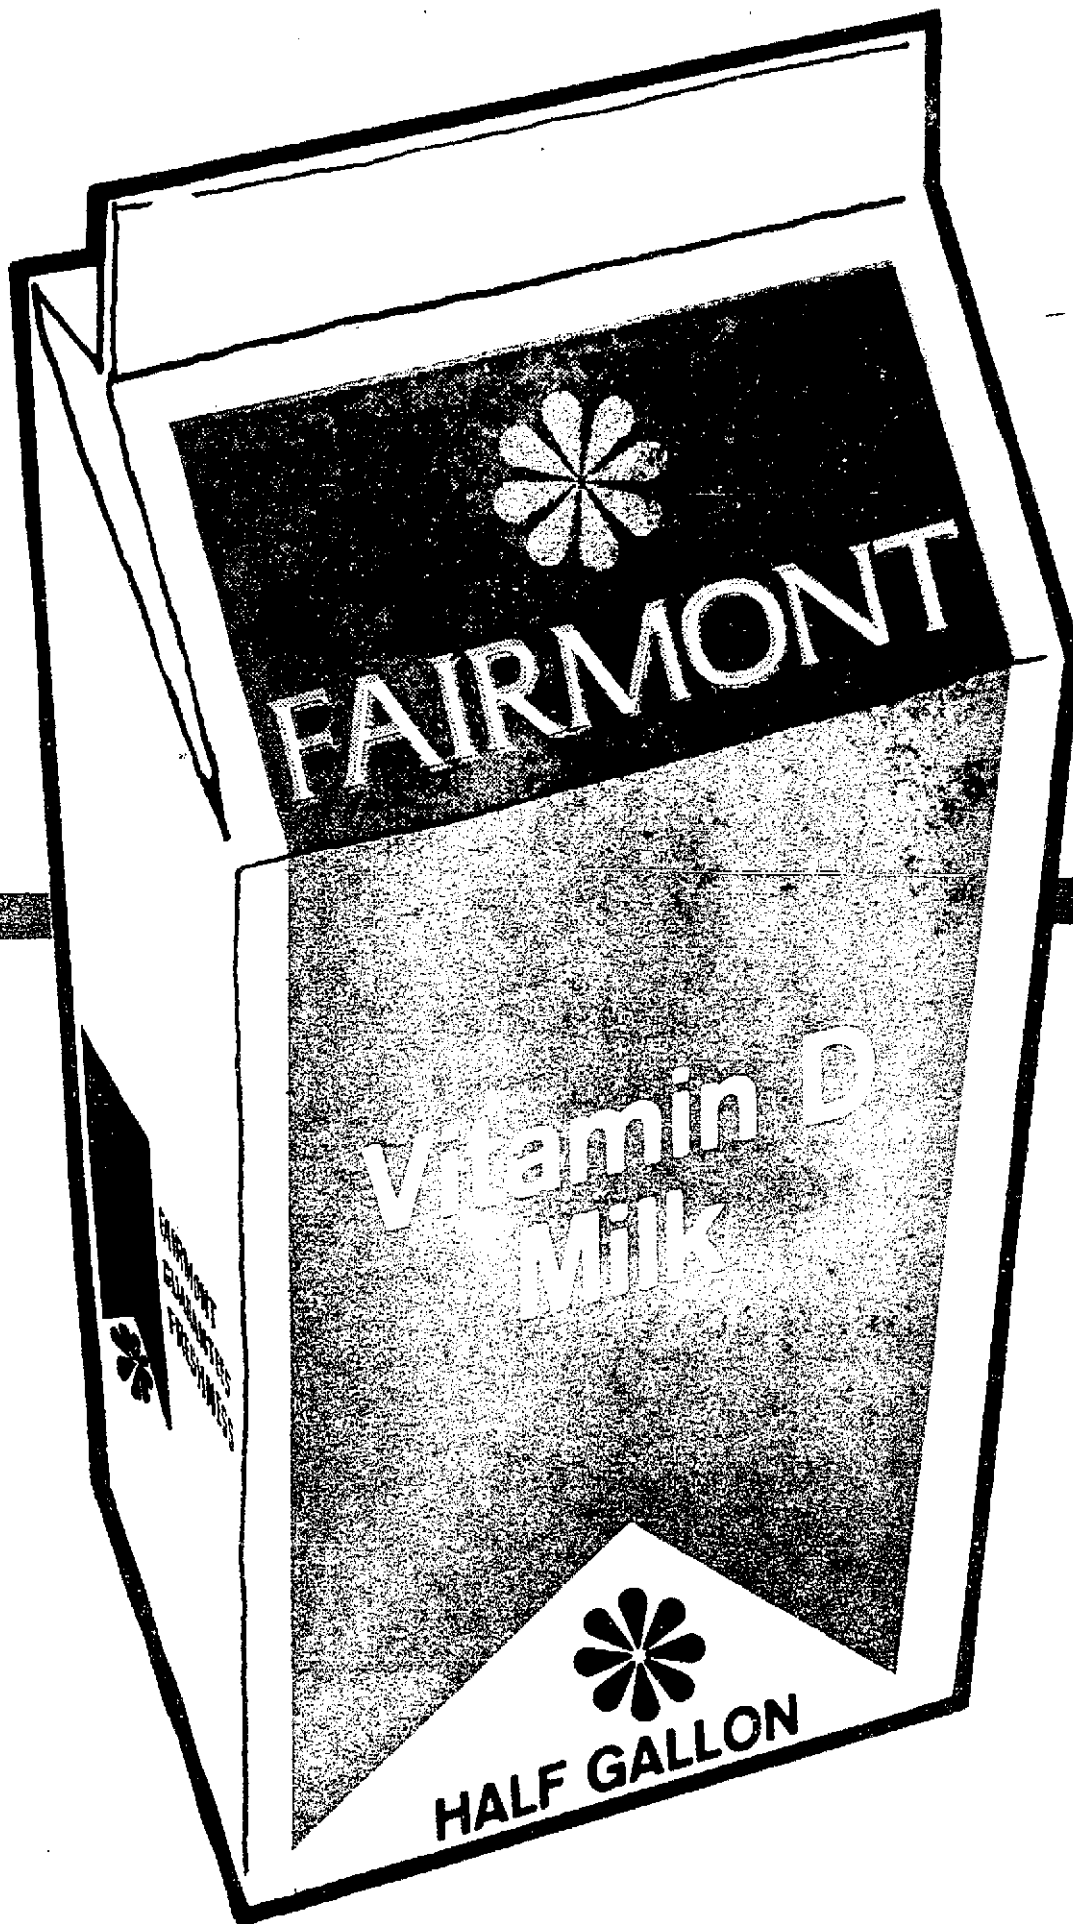

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a good way to save.

Exon: ADC Cuts Most Justifiable

By DON BEMAN
United Press International
Gov. J. J. Exon says cuts in aid to dependent children (ADC) payments were the most justifiable means of heading off deficit welfare spending.

On Aug. 1, the State Welfare Department launched a program to cut ADC payments to some ADC recipients. The method was termed "ratable reduction."

Some, however, have criticized the move saying all welfare recipients should have been included in the cost reduction effort and not just one segment.

State Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha, who said he was not criticizing the decision, recently disclosed the ADC cuts resulted from overages in medical care for the elderly spending.

Decision Explained
Exon said the decision as he saw it was not which segment of the welfare spectrum would be penalized, but which area could best withstand cuts in order to head off the projected deficit.

"The main consideration was that this (ADC) is the area we were most justified in making some savings," the Governor said.

The method initiated by the Welfare Department, he said, does not touch those with the greatest need for aid. He said those affected were those who had outside incomes.

Composite Incomes

A study he ordered in Lancaster County showed some recipients had composite incomes of $595 a month. But he said the same study showed the average family not on welfare made $545 a year.

The governor also said had the decision been made to cut back in other welfare program areas, the state would have lost considerable amounts of federal funds.

The ADC program, he said, is matched on a dollar for dollar basis. Other areas, he said, are matched on a four or five to one basis.

Higher Levels

"Basically, what this boils down to is, we made cuts in the higher income levels of ADC in order to eliminate having to make more severe cuts in other programs," Exon said.

That decision could very well have been to cut aid to the elderly, he said, but added it was felt those ADC recipients already receiving money from other sources could best withstand a cut.

A court case, however, has been filed in federal district court challenging that decision.

The suit was filed by two ADC recipients, one from Omaha and one from Lincoln. A three-judge panel has been named to hear the case.

Engineering Service Told

The extension service theory, long applied to agriculture, is being extended to the field of engineering by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dr. George L. Dickey, an associate professor of mechanical engineering and management systems engineering, has been assigned by the NU College of Engineering and Architecture to spend part of his time as director of the engineering extension program.

He said the program will have three main thrusts—to provide a technical information service, provide some group education programs and serve a technical assistance referral function.

Nebraska formerly had a program known as the Industrial Research Information Service (IRIS), established in 1965, but federal funding for it was discontinued in 1969. NU has continued to supply a technical information service since then on a limited basis.

"Nebraska has many small industries, particularly in the agri-business field, which often need assistance but cannot justify an engineering staff," Dr. Dickey said. "Their problem may be in technical areas or in management. Our role will be to help them pinpoint the problems and to bring them in contact with experts who can help them with solutions."

7 Students Win GM Scholarships

The General Motors Corporation has awarded scholarships to seven students in the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The recipients and the amounts of their awards include:

Mark A. Molacek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milo W. Molacek of Clarkson, $925.

James O. Deepe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Deepe of Geneva, $875.

Thomas W. Hanks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Hanks of Nebraska City, $1,100.

Playhouse Honors Donors

On Tuesday afternoon, construction workers busily attended to their respective jobs on the new Lincoln Community Playhouse, with no idea that they were setting the scene for a gala party that evening.

The new Playhouse has miraculously taken form, much sooner than anticipated. It was because of this early progress that members of the Lincoln Playhouse Guild felt it was time to invite all of the gracious people who have contributed to the new building to a preview showing.

Since there have been so many kind donations, the over 700 donors who were invited to attend the 'Donors' Party' were divided into two groups, with parties both Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The evenings' programs include a toast of champagne, a tour of the new quarters and a musical review of songs that have been in previous shows.

Although the new building is still in construction stages, with cement walls and flooring, it is expected to be ready for occupancy by December. The new quarters offer all of the needed facilities that the Playhouse has lived without for these many years.

A tour reveals a large foyer area, with a separate ticket office and cloak room. Offices for theatre staff are situated behind the box office.

To the left of the foyer is a good-sized studio theatre that will be used for both rehearsals and small audience plays. Entry to the main theatre area is from the side of the seating area. Seating capacity is approximately 350. The large pro-scenium stage can also be converted to a thrust stage, and there is seating on the side for these occasions.

Actors and actresses will live in gracious manner in their off-stage hours. To the left of the stage there is a spacious Green Room, a make-up room, dressing rooms and cast showers. Behind the stage there is a large storage area.

The lighting system will be greatly improved with a light board with one hundred dimmers, compared to the ten dimmers on the present lighting board.

When the decorating is completed, there will be panelled walls, a lipstick red grand curtain and striped seats in lipstick red, gold and plum.

Although the Playhouse will be completed in December, it is planned that the next Community Playhouse production will be presented in the old playhouse, as it will take time to get adjusted to all of the new, modern and welcome facilities.

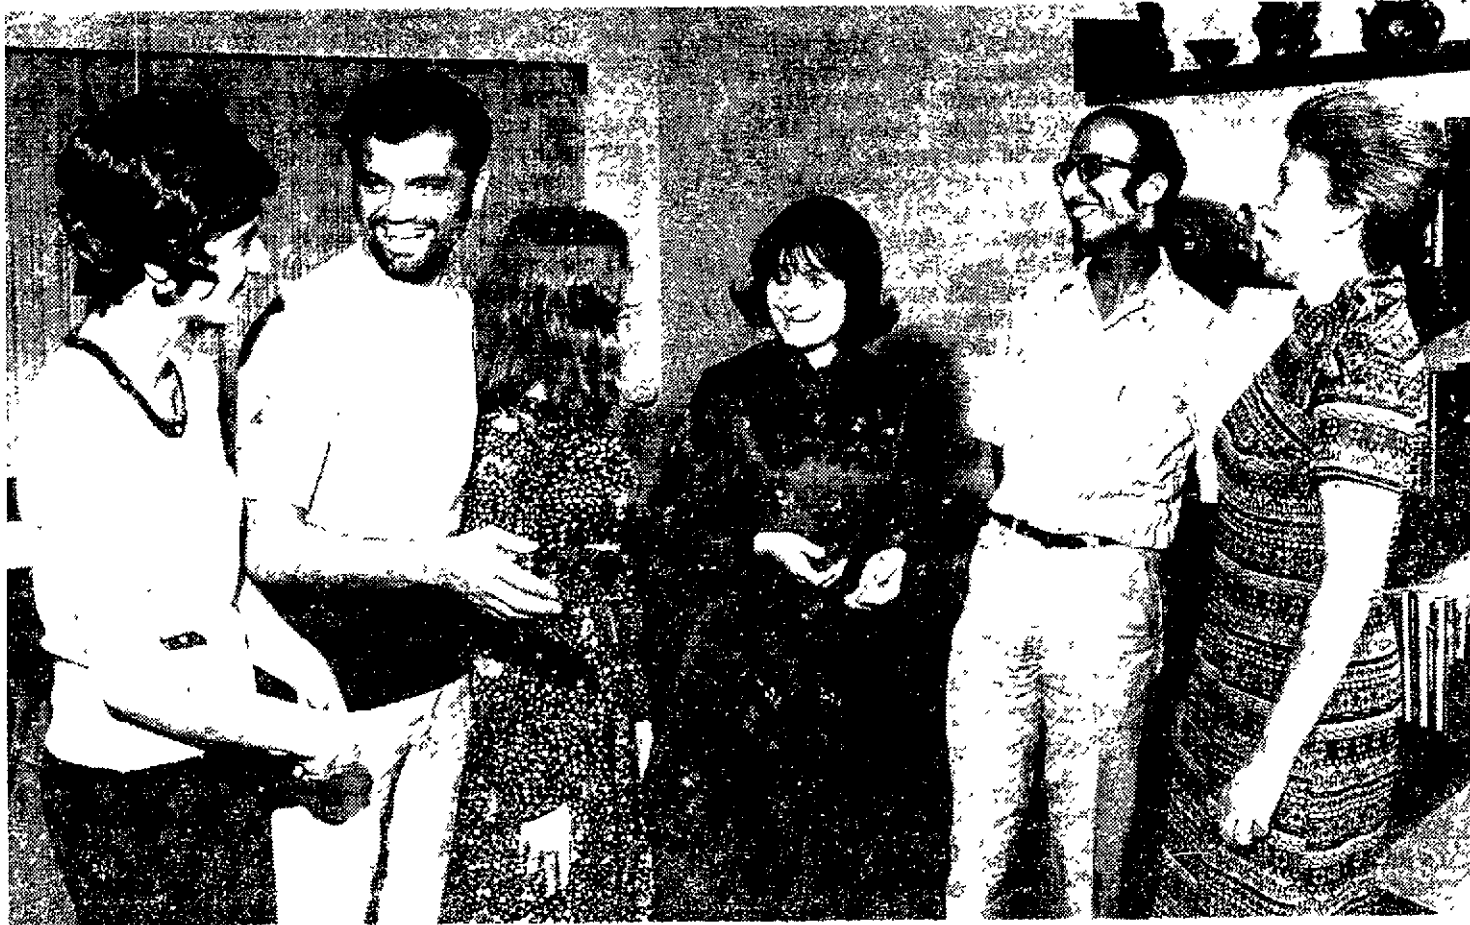

We'll begin with the Fifty Fifty Club. Last week, when the club had its first dinner dance of the season, we called it the Fifty Fifty Dancing Club.

But next Tuesday there will be no dancing when the members meet at The Knolls. There will be dinner, of course, but instead of tripping the light fantastic tables will be placed for bridge.

Well, we can tell you that Miss Barbara Eaton of Lincoln, who is attending the University of Arizona at Tucson, has pledged Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority — and that Miss Linda Misle, also from Lincoln is wearing the pledge pin of Alpha Epsilon Phi.

And there will be those who will be interested in more away-from-home news. We have learned that as of Thursday, Oct. 21, the Kappa Sigma fraternity on the Nebraska campus has a new legacy. He is Matthew James Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Simmons of Woodridge, Ill., and his mother is the former Sandra Reeder of Dayton, Ohio. The young man's mother was graduated and received her Master's degree from the University of Dayton (Ohio), but his father is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Kappa Sigma. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Simmons of Lincoln are the paternal grandparents, and the maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reeder of Dayton.

Lincoln Welcomes Lebanese Vocalist

A very special visitor was the guests of honor at a party which took place Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Munson. Getting acquainted with a number of Lincoln residents—and reacquainted with friends from her native Lebanon — was Miss Najla Abujauda, who will present a vocal concert this evening at 8 o'clock at Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery on the University of Nebraska campus.

In addition to four western operatic arias, Miss Abujauda will present several special numbers which have been composed and arranged for her voice. These latter selections are of particular interest due to the fact that Miss Abujauda is the first to utilize an operatic style with the Arabic tongue. Lebanese poets have penned the lyrics for these special numbers which feature a blending of musical traditions of East and West.

Among those in attendance at Monday evening's get-together, were Mr. and Mrs. Simon Aprahamian of Lebanon. Mr. Aprahamian, who is studying for his Doctoral degree in nutritional biochemistry at the University of Nebraska, and his wife were friends of Miss Abujauda before coming to the United States—and we're sure that the three had a great deal of catching up to do.

A Child's World Can't Be Ignored

Dear Mrs. Woollen:

My teenage daughter is dating someone I don't approve of. This young man has been in trouble with the law, and although the offenses were minor, I feel that they indicate the kind of boy he is.

We have tried reasoning with her about this, and have even forbidden her to see him all to no avail. We are certain she is seeing him when she leaves the house under other pretenses, and stays out until all hours of the night.

When we try to discuss the issue with her, she becomes rebellious and refuses to talk to us. Can you suggest a way we can effectively stop her from seeing him?

PERPLEXED

MONEY MATTERS

BY LINDA OLIG

Food is the most common family purchase and should be considered a daily investment in your family's health and well-being.

Food satisfies hunger and promotes health; it contributes to harmony in family living. Mealtime is one of the most important hours in the family routine — it is a time for enjoying good food, for education of children, for conversation and relaxation, and for family gatherings and recreation.

Sharing food with our friends and relatives helps establish feelings of friendliness and warmth. What we choose to serve our families and friends expresses our personalities and tastes, beliefs and emotions — and also our ages, activities, backgrounds, social standings and incomes, to a certain extent.

Our environments and the way we live have a large part in influencing the foods we choose to serve. For example, with the shift of living to the city and suburbs, nearly all foodstuffs must be purchased. Since we live longer, we spend more for food, and also for convenience features, due largely to the increased employment of housewives, the growth in size of families, and increased community-awareness and participation of housewives.

Family food buying also has been influenced by rapid developments in the entire economy — and these improvements have brought about increases in the variety and quantity of high quality foods available year round. Getting down to the raw statistics, approximately three-fourths of the foods we buy are processed in some way — and many are partially or fully prepared.

Believe it or not, families generally spend a smaller share of their incomes for food today than ever before because, even though food prices have soared, increases in incomes have more than balanced the food costs.

We all know that it is more fun to spend our money on new clothes, furnishings, or a colored TV — though we may not be conscious of it, we may all resent the money we spend for food.

This comes out with the knowledge that most of us "forget" to build food expenses into our family budgets, even though they are a big part of regular expenses. We pay regular payments, including rents or mortgages, utilities, car payments, and all other kinds of installments. We allow for insurance, hospitalization, and recreation. All of these items are usually paid for by check or are withheld from pay checks.

Food, on the other hand, is usually paid for with cash — cash that is all too often left over after all of the other bills have been paid — and there often may not be enough left over to buy the favorite foods of family members.

Also, since food is paid for with cash, we are much more aware of how much we spend for our grocery purchases.

Another fact to keep in mind when thinking of the cost of the regular trips to the grocery store is that approximately 20 per cent of all dollars spent there is not for food. The groceries stock many other home needs on the shelves, such as toiletries, drugs, cigarettes, paper products, cleaning equipment and supplies, laundry soaps, pet foods, magazines and books, cooking utensils and linens, and clothing, to a certain extent.

In the next few columns we will be devoting our attention to saving money on food — preparing for the trips to the supermarket, keeping track of food expenses, the convenience food dilemma, time and skills required to prepare food, the cost of eating out, planning for the week, specials and advertisements, reading labels, comparison shopping, national brands versus store brands, and many more topics of interest to the homemaker.

Annual Dinner

Featured guest speaker at the annual International Goodwill and Understanding dinner for the members of the Soroptimist Club will be Mrs. Robert H. Stoddard.

The dinner will be held at Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker on Wednesday evening, Oct. 27 — and Mrs. Stoddard's topic will be "International Friendships" incorporating her experiences as a founding member of the Mayor's Committee on International Friendship, a programmer for the committee, and assistant chairman of the Host Family Program; and a past chairman of the International Women's Group.

Members of the Soroptimist IGU committee served as chairmen for the dinner — and they are Mrs. Hugo F. Srb and Mrs. Oliver T. Joy.

Guest Speaker Is Author

Mrs. Helen Lowrie Marshall, a noted author, poet, lecturer and Woman of Achievement, credits much of her writing success to rewriting. "So many would-be writers," Mrs. Marshall suggests, "miss the boat because they are so satisfied with the first draft of their work. A good writer is never completely satisfied with his work."

Mrs. Marshall's secret slogan for her poetry is "lines that lift." Her nine books of poetry that have now been published by Doubleday of New York have served that purpose well, and are used as thoughts of inspiration by the over 300,000 persons who have purchased them.

Mrs. Marshall was in Lincoln young man, was visiting at their home. He stumbled over his oversized feet going up their stairs, which inspired her poem, "If I Should Stumble," and asks that if she should stumble, let it always be uphill.

Many of her poems are written in the middle of the night, as her husband attests. Sometimes poems seem to just over an idea in my mind for a long period of time, and (The following discussion is under the auspices of and in coordination with the staff members of the Child Guidance Center. Parents are invited to submit problems they might encounter with their children to: A Child's World, The Lincoln Star, 926 P St., Lincoln, Neb. 68501).

When parents challenge a young person's choice of friends, they are in essence casting doubt upon her ability to make responsible decisions. Because of the underlying nature of these attacks, the youngster feels she must defend her friend in order to preserve her own integrity.

Many relationships which would have been terminated with time, have been continued by a youngster trying to defy parental wishes; and, on occasion, marriages are contracted for the same reason. Such marriages usually end in tragedy because the young person is so busy defending her choice that she has little time or inclination to maturely assess the relationship.

Parents should remember as well, that a young woman's choice may not be as unfortunate as they think. It must be realized that many young men who have been in trouble eventually become responsible individuals. The young person may be able to perceive admirable qualities that the parents cannot or will not see. For the sake of everyone concerned, parents would be wise to take a deeper look at the young man in question.

What should parents do if they disapprove of their daughter's (or son's) choice of friends? If at all possible, they should realize that the youngster is experimenting in the establishment of interpersonal relationships; and they should be tolerant of her dating practices and methods of selecting companions. Trust and understanding on the part of parents goes a long way towards enabling their children to learn to make wise choices.

This is not to say that parents should not establish and enforce certain rules regulating dating behavior. Parents may be wise to tolerate the youngster's choice, but it is imprudent for them to grant total freedom. If parents are reasonable and fair in assessing dating partners, and if they refrain from undue criticism, the young person will probably accept and adhere to curfews and other regulations they establish.

on Tuesday with her husband, John Stanley Marshall, a retired civil engineer, to address the Woman's Wesleyan Educational Council of Nebraska which is celebrating its 75th anniversary. Mrs. Marshall was the guest speaker, and her talk followed the salad luncheon, which was held at St. Mark's Methodist Church.

Mrs. Marshall writes on inspiration. As an example, she relates that one day the preacher of their church, a sometimes poems seem to just pour out. She keeps all of her work tucked away until it is time to publish another book.

The poet's stop in Lincoln was part of a two-week tour she is taking to publicize her latest book of poems, "Starlight and Candleglow." Four other books have been compiled by Hall, marl, of Kansas City. One of her proudest accomplishments, however, is that all of her books have been done in braille by the Christian Record Braille Foundation of Lincoln.

MADE AND BOTTLED BY GUILD WINE CO., LODI, CALIF., ALC. 12% BY VOL.

Abby: tell him your reasons

DEAR ABBY: I have recently married a kind, considerate and generous man, who took on a divorced 40-year-old woman, plus her three rambunctious teen-agers and a cat.

He wants to move us out of our present home into a larger, more pretentious one. I would like to stay put for another four years, until my youngest is out of high school. My children have changed schools many times in their lives, and now they are happy, and I don't want them to have to adjust to another change. I believe the

Dining With Wine

Whenever the subject of wine is mentioned, one invariably thinks of France, for it is considered the producer of the greatest wines in the world. Its annual production of approximately two billion gallons—about 25% of the world's supply—makes it the second largest producer, excelled only by Italy. By contrast, the United States is not considered a major producer, making only about 3% of the world's supply.

The wines of France cover the widest and most complete range of types and are, by far, the greatest in each category. Throughout the world, the wines of Bordeaux and Burgundy are without equal; and the sweet wines of Barsac and Sauternes are the only ones comparable to the fabulous sweet wines of Germany and are considerably less expensive. France also produces the greatest of all distilled drinks, Cognac; and the Champagnes of the Rheims and Epernay districts are the finest in the world.

At one time the purchase of a bottle of French wine was a risky venture because of the unreliability of the wine merchants. With the enactment of the "Appellation controlee" laws in the 1930s, the most stringent controls were placed upon this vital industry. Thus, the purchaser of a bottle of French wine today is absolutely assured of the positive identification of the bottle of wine he is buying.

In addition to "Appellation Controlee" laws, other restrictions were imposed. These prohibit the indiscriminate increase in the vineyard acreage and the planting of certain strains of grapes in various districts. They also limit the amount of wine which may be pressed from an acre of grapes and require that certain levels of alcohol content must be maintained before the wine may be offered for sale.

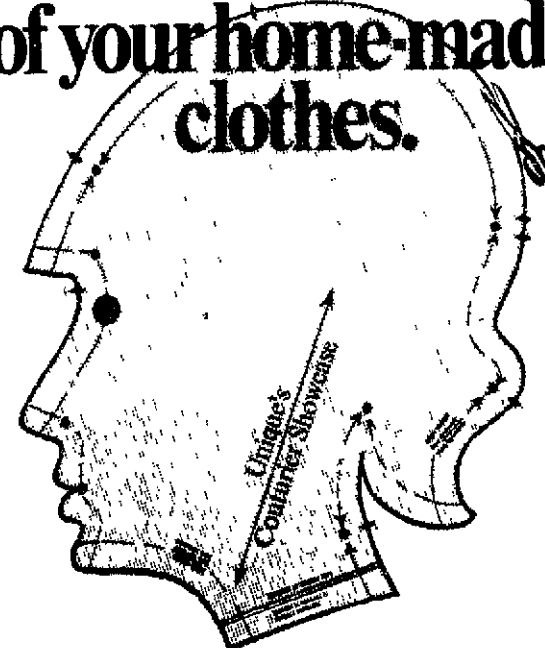

Although French wines were popular and in great demand throughout the world for hundreds of years, it is only since the enactment of these very stringent wine production control laws that the demand for the better French wines has exceeded the supply. There is a constant shortage of French wines, and this shortage becomes more and more acute. The demand continues to increase, while the acreage and production remains fairly constant, varying only moderately according to the weather and growing season.

There are four basic factors which determine the quality of French wine. They are: the type of grape; the types of soil in which the grapes are planted; the growing season; and the skill of the wine maker. In addition, there are a large number of minor factors which determine the ultimate characteristics which these wines possess.

The average Frenchman consumes over two hundred bottles of wine each year (the average American consumes about 5% of this amount), yet he seldom sees a bottle of top quality French wine, as practically all of the good wine is exported. One may find more bottles of good French wine on the shelves of Lincoln wine shops than are to be found in Paris.

Next week: a fabulous recipe with wine and some information on the most popular and most plentiful wine of France, which is also the wine most frequently requested by Americans.)

THE LINCOLN STAR, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27

Interesting Events

It is an exceedingly active week in Lincoln.

Beginning today, for example, and continuing through Friday is the St. Matthew's Episcopal Church Antique Show which has become an annual and anticipated event in Lincoln.

Each year the show attracts thousands of lovers of antiques, and each year there are more antiques and more dealers — and bona fide ones.

This year 17 dealers will be showing, and they come from not only Nebraska, but Minnesota, Colorado, Missouri and Kansas as well.

If the customers like to take their time and carefully examine items before they buy them, and since the doors open at 11 o'clock each morning, and do not close until 9 o'clock on Wednesday and Thursday there is no need to worry about lunch or dinner. They may be had at the church. On Friday, however, closing time is 6 o'clock so dinner will not be served.

In charge of the luncheon hour — and the food — on Wednesday will be Mrs. T. L. McKee, and we understand that one of the city's gourmet cooks, Mrs. Carl Georgi, is doing the dinner planning on Wednesday. On Thursday Mrs. Tom Lawrie will direct the food activities at lunch time, and Mrs. Robert Frisch will do the dinner honors.

It's lunch only on Friday, with Mrs. Richard Spencer at the cuisine helm.

TORN

DEAR TORN: You seem to be a very unselfish, sensitive and thoughtful woman. Tell your husband why you prefer to "stay put" rather than move into a more pretentious home. If he's as kind, considerate and generous as you say he is, he will respect you for your attitude, and defer willingly.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 71-year-old widow. I live alone in a little home which I own and I am afraid to be here alone at night.

Do you think I'd be the talk of the town if I let a man sleep in my basement? The man I have in mind is clean and respectable. He's a little retarded. Can't read or write, but he is honest. (He's done some odd jobs for me over the years.)

I have asked a few of my good friends, and they said, "Sure, why not?"

What do you say?

MRS. I. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: Sure, why not, indeed!

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The value of a hand invariably rises or falls as the other players at the table make their bids.

Thus, if you tried to assess West's hand at the point he opens the bidding as only slightly more than a minimum opening bid. This is largely because the hand has only 13 high-card points and there is considerable uncertainty about the trick-taking value of the hearts and diamonds. Neither suit is self-sufficient as trump.

But when East raises hearts the hand expands greatly in value, and in fact its potential changes so much that making as many as ten tricks becomes a highly feasible prospect.

West's pass of two spades must therefore be regarded as too conservative. He should have bid three diamonds instead. This might have elicited a further bid from East and led to a contract of five hearts, which would have gone down only one.

As the bidding went, though, South got to four spades and made the contract by careful play. West started with the K-A of diamonds, declarer ruffing the ace.

South's problem was to avoid losing three club tricks. Had he relied solely on East's having the ace he would have finished down one, but instead he placed his faith in an endplay that was practically sure to succeed.

After leading a trump to the ace and ruffing the last diamond, South crossed to dummy again and returned a heart, finessing the ten after East had followed low.

This unusual play rendered the defense helpless. West won with the queen but could score only one more trick for his side, whether he returned a heart, a diamond or a club. Whatever he did, South was bound to wind up with ten tricks.

Let The Goblins Get You

It may not be a dark and stormy night—outside, but who knows what the Haunted House is keeping a secret. If you have the courage to face ghosts, witches, a spooky graveyard, mummies and howls, all you have to do is go to the Haunted House at 1420 P St., either tonight or tomorrow night, and you'll find out just how fascinating a haunted house can be. If you visit the house tonight, you may not be able to stay away tomorrow night.

And just to make things even a bit more spooky, the Haunted House is open for 6:30 o'clock until 9 o'clock on both Wednesday and Thursday evenings, but to gain entrance you must go to the back door.

The idea of the Haunted House as a Halloween attraction in Lincoln isn't too old. As a matter of fact it is only about three years old, and those who enjoy it should express their thanks to the Lincoln Symphony Guild. It is the Guild's undertaking, and naturally it is for the purpose of making money for the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra.

Pictured are some of the gruesome things you will encounter—the graveyard—a mummy, and the third picture could be a zombie, or a witch without her broomstick.

But, you find out for yourselves.

Prison Is Tourist Attraction

BY JOAN COOK
(c) New York Times Service

Thousands of tourists pass through this picture-postcard New England village (population 3,000) each year, pausing to admire the mighty shade trees, now turned russet and gold, that line Main Street, the gracious white clapboard houses with their green shutters, or to catch the strains of organ music drifting from the 130-year-old St. John's Episcopal Church.

But it is the unexpected sight of the Maine State Prison showroom, an adjunct of Maine's only maximum security prison, that really catches the eye of travelers around Route 1 in these otherwise pastoral surroundings.

Open five days a week, from 9 p.m. to 5 p.m., with the exception of Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's and Easter, the showroom contains home furnishings, gifts and toys made by the inmates for sale to the public. Inmates also operate the shop, under prison supervision, and keep 100 percent of the selling price of articles made on their own time, less the cost of materials.

"There may be small novelty shops in other prisons making trinkets but I don't know of another operation like this one in the country," Warden Allan L. Robbins said as he patted one of the family's two Airedales that answer to the names of Spic and Span.

He said he thought the program an excellent one since it provides an opportunity for meaningful work (an inmate can earn up to $1,800 a year) and also serves as a training program.

"In the old days, after a man finished shoveling snow off the walk, he'd have to do it all over again just to keep busy," the warden explained. "Through this program the men are trained in various aspects of making furniture, doing cabinet work, learning finishing and refinishing."

"We try to teach good work habits and quality production, practical things that might help a man get a job. A lot of places teach how to build a bird house and things of that sort, but don't get into the actual construction of furniture," he continued.

Just when the idea took hold is not completely clear.

"I've been here for 22 years," Robbins, a former FBI agent, recalled. "And when I first came, the showroom was in a little house across the street from the prison. Later it was moved to its present location next to the prison."

Old-timers, he said, used to tell him that before the shop's existence, prisoners used to make simple shelves and the like for sale in the visitor's room.

Visitors from around the world, as well as the 50 states, have come to browse in the 40-by-60-foot showroom. This week 40 pieces of furniture and 383 hand-made articles were on display. Prices are maintained at a level comparable to those outside, and the workmanship is painstaking, the furniture exceptionally sturdy.

Among the anchor lamps, the hand-carved pheasant lamps and the figures of swooping gulls is one of the best sellers, a fishing schooner. Newfoundland Jack, entirely made by hand with tiny birch dowels and an inky pine hull.

Made by a "lifer," the boat was originally sold by itself, but customers thought so much of it they wanted a glass case to keep it in. Now boat and case are sold together for $26.50.

Ten men work in the shop in the summer, six in winter, said Russell Oberlock, the industrial supervisor who comes from nearby Warren. "The furniture is made during the working day, and the novelty items are done on the inmates' free time."

Upholstering, caning and refinishing also are done, and there is frequently a waiting list when the work is heavy.

according to officer Oberlock, who has been with the prison for more than 11 years.

So far this year, 21 men have already reached their $1,800 quota and another 25 on the brink, Oberlock said, adding that of 339 inmates, 241 take part in the workshop program.

FOOD

for goblins and guests

No one would consider handing out bread crumbs to the trick-or-treat brigade, and certainly bread crumbs wouldn't be the delight of guests at a Hallowe'en party—unless—

And it is that 'unless' we are interested in at the moment—and you will be, also.

Now apples for bobbing or eating, aren't especially new at Hallowe'en time. Neither are caramelized apples, or apples dipped in chocolate and the numerous other dresses in which apples go to parties.

But here is one apple recipe that is different—and will be the joy of party guests on Hallowe'en, and the trick-or-treaters never will forget them. In addition to the good taste this particular apple recipe also has a health benefit—bread crumbs. Here is what you do:

CRUNCHY TAFFY APPLES
6 apples

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup butter
1 cup enriched fine dry bread crumbs
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 cups vanilla caramels
3 tablespoons milk

6 medium apples

Melt butter over medium heat. Blend in bread crumbs and sugar. Cook about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until deep golden brown. Spread on ungreased baking sheet. Cool completely. Break into small pieces. Melt caramel candies over boiling water; blend in 2 tablespoons milk. Insert skewers or wooden sticks in stem end of apples. Caramel-coat one apple at a time and immediately roll in crunch crumbs. Refrigerate until caramel firms. If melted caramel stiffens while standing, blend in remaining milk.

Bicycle Larceny Increases

New York, N.Y.—Bicycle thefts are on the increase from coast to coast, and have become a major police problem, as well as a growing concern to parents. To have an $80 or $100 bicycle stolen is not only a tragic event in the life of the youngster who is the victim, but replacement will probably put a severe dent in the household budget.

As long as there has been a youngster careless enough to leave his new bike unattended or unlocked, there has been another youngster who wanted it bad enough to steal it, and for many years bicycle thefts rose with the increased numbers of children who rode bikes to school, on errands, to beaches or playgrounds.

The Bicycle Institute of America estimates that there are more than 50 million bicycles on the road today, and 1971 sales are expected to exceed 8.5 million. Of these, over 30% will be lightweight, multi-speed models... the kind favored by adults and older youngsters alike.

GRAND LARCENY

This new class of adult and young-adult rider, coming from an ever more affluent society, is spending large sums of money for its cycling pleasure. High quality, high performance bikes, equipped with 5-, 10- or 15-speed gearing devices, sell anywhere from $90 to $500. A $150 price tag is by no means uncommon. In most states the theft of such a bicycle is considered grand larceny.

The suddenness of the new bike boom, coupled with a prolonged dock strike and a critical shortage of basic component parts that are only manufactured abroad, has put these bikes in short supply and high demand. A most overnight, a thriving black market in bikes.

Organized rings of thieves, equipped with bolt-cutters and panel trucks are reported operating—particularly in college towns—all across the country. Such rings may steal 20 or 30 bikes at a time, drive them to another city, and sell them for half their approximate retail value.

In Eugene, Ore., an ad was placed on the bulletin board of the University of Oregon Student Union. The ad said, "10-speed bikes available... call between 5:30 and 6:00 p.m." The telephone, detectives found, was that of a campus phone booth. At 5:30 that evening a young man turned up and took orders for a large number of bikes.

We learned that he was going out to steal local bicycles to fill the orders he had taken," said Eugene detective Glynn Michael, who works with the department's Community Affairs Detail.

REGISTRATION AN ANSWER

Recovery rates vary from as low as 20% to as high as 90%. Mandatory bicycle registration and ability of the victim to identify his bicycle accurately contribute to a high recovery rate. Many police departments, on whom the administrative burdens of bicycle registration fall, have looked with a jaundiced eye on such programs in the past, noting the difficulty of enforcement, the paper work, and the expense in scarce funds and scarcer manpower that are entailed.

In light of recent increases in theft of high-priced bikes, however, many are giving registration programs a long, hard look. The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, for instance, is deep into a pilot study which would computerize bicycle registration and identification information on all bikes in that county and the 22 incorporated cities (including Los Angeles) that lie within its borders.

Proper identification and speed of reporting the theft seem to be the twin keys to quick recovery, according to Inspector Thomas M. Roselli, Commanding Officer of the Philadelphia, Pa. Juvenile Division.

"Once a bicycle is gone," Roselli warned bicycle owners in a recent newspaper article, "you'd better report it immediately. Unless the thief has a truck, he can't get very far with a bike, so sometimes an officer can drive the victim around the neighborhood, and if he's lucky, he might just spot his bike."

"However, after a few hours, it becomes nearly hopeless. The thief repaints the bike, or reassembles it with parts from other stolen bikes and this makes it tricky to identify."

PRACAUTIONARY RULES

While there is no way to make a bicycle burglar-proof, the Bicycle Institute of America suggests the following items as being helpful in the prevention of theft and the recovery of stolen bikes:

1. Lock your bike to a stationary object whenever you leave it unattended for however short a time. Use a heavy-duty, case-hardened chain and lock having a shackle of not less than $\frac{3}{8}$ in. diameter. While no lock and chain is burglar-proof, anything less than this will not even slow down a competent thief.
2. Lock your bike in a con-spectuous place, out in the open where an attempted theft is more apt to be noticed by pedestrians, auto traffic or police. Do not leave it locked anywhere overnight. Take it indoors.

3. Run the chain through both wheels and the frame before locking your bike to a bike rack or other such objects. If your bike comes with quick-release hubs, remove the front wheel and place it next to the rear wheel before running the chain through both wheels and frame. Some cyclists remove the front wheel and take it with them for added security.

4. Locking your bike to itself, that is, just locking the wheels to the frame, is no protection at all. The whole bike can be put in a car or truck and the lock removed at the thief's leisure.

5. List your bike, by description and registration or serial number, on the personal property floater of your home owner's insurance policy. Buy inexpensive bicycle insurance from your independent local bicycle retailer.

Airlines Tighten Security

•The New York Times

New York — Airlines at John F. Kennedy International Airport, plagued by massive cargo theft and attendant bad publicity, have begun tightening their security efforts.

Measures taken include provision of photographic identification badges for cargo handlers, television surveillance of far flung and easily plundered storage areas, extra lighting, high fences, special vaults for high-value shipments, paid informers and even phony "valuable" cargoes to lure would-be thieves into the open.

And, for the last two years, the airlines have claimed impressive gains in a fight against the mobsters and small-time pilferers who have given Kennedy the reputation of being the most crime-infested airport in the world.

But critics of the industry maintain that it has belatedly become security-conscious only because of proposals to install an anticrime watchdog agency over New York airports — and that statistics showing a drop in thefts are a cosmetic effort to cover a continuing commercial hemorrhage.

The Port of New York Authority Police, on the basis of statistics supplied by the airlines, reported that in 1970 cargo thefts at Kennedy totaled $1,445,386, but that in the first nine months of this year were cut dramatically to $355,928. Between 1966 and the beginning of 1970, while the volume of air freight at Kennedy doubled to nearly $10 billion, reported thefts quadrupled, from $877,350 to $3.3 million.

Council Pointed To

To explain the reported drop in thefts, the airlines point to the Airport Security Council, which they created in 1968 to coordinate a tightening of security at Kennedy, LaGuardia and Newark Airports.

A year earlier, following revelations by the New York State Commission of Investigation of organized crime's penetration of the air freight trucking and handling industry, members of the state legislature began pushing a proposal to extend the authority of the Waterfront Commission of New York Harbor to New York airports.

"We can almost say that we can foresee the day when we won't be having any thefts," said Joseph A. Sullivan, a 29-year veteran of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who became the Airport Security Council's director last March.

But, in recent testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Commissioner Richard J. Vander Plaats of the Waterfront Commission charged that the airlines' "loss figures are merely the visible tip of the iceberg and do not even begin to tell the whole story of cargo thefts at the airports." The Senate committee is considering the proposed legislation to extend the commission's authority to the airport.

'Sight-Of-Hand'

Vander Plaats, claiming that the airlines have indulged in "sight-of-hand manipulation of figures," said the Waterfront Commission had obtained from insurance companies a batch of paid claims for losses at Kennedy for 1969 and 1970, totaling $424,809 and $384,980 respectively. Of the 1969 claims, he said, $244,905 had not been reported by the industry to the Port Authority Police; of the 1970 claims, $305,876 had not been reported.

Subjecting these claims to further scrutiny, Vander Plaats said that between 1969 and 1970 the ratio of the classification of thefts to other classification of losses dropped from 68% to 22%, while all classifications other than thefts—"not delivered," "missing en route," "unclassified losses"—jumped from 21% to 66%.

"Obviously, with such a drastic shift in classifications, the reduction in thefts in 1970 reported by the airlines cannot be taken seriously," Vander Plaats asserted.

Sullivan, who had not seen the batch of claims, said that until all claims for the two years had been analyzed, "it is difficult to attach any significance to the statistics offered."

Tet Battles Surprised Johnson

Washington (UPI) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson says he did not expect the Tet offensive in Vietnam in 1968 to have the effect on the American people that it did.

"I was prepared for the effects of Tet, though the scale of the attacks and the size of the Communist force were greater than I had anticipated," Johnson said in his forthcoming book, "The Vantage Point." Excerpts were published in the Washington Post Monday.

"The offensive took place at the end of January. Two months later, Johnson announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

"I did not expect the enemy effort to have the impact on American thinking that it achieved. I was not surprised that elements of the press, the academic community and the Congress reacted as they did."

I Was Surprised

"I was surprised and disappointed that the enemy's efforts produced such a dismal effect on various people inside government and others outside whom I had always regarded as staunch and unflappable.

"Hanoi must have been delighted; it was exactly the reaction they sought."

Johnson said that looking back on early 1968, he believes he made a mistake in not saying more about Vietnam in his State of the Union address.

"Will Being Tested?"

"In that address I underscored how intensely our will was being tested by the struggle in Vietnam, but I did not go into details concerning the build-up of enemy forces or warn of the early major combat I believed was in the offing," Johnson said.

"In retrospect, I think I was too cautious. If I had forecast the possibilities, the American people would have been better prepared for what was soon to come," Johnson said.

Johnson said that in mid-1967, he rejected an "optimum force" suggestion by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then U.S. commander in Vietnam, for an increase in U.S. troop strength to 680,000. Instead, Johnson said, he approved a proposal to increase U.S. strength by 45,000 and to a total of 525,000 by June 30, 1968.

But Johnson also said he decided against a total and one-sided bombing halt at the end of 1967 because "it would be interpreted in Hanoi and at home as a sign of weakening will."

LBJ Gives 5 Reasons For Quitting

New York (UPI) — In his memoirs former President Lyndon B. Johnson gives five reasons why he decided not to seek re-election in 1968.

He doesn't mention the New Hampshire Democratic primary, in which he only narrowly defeated Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota. Johnson's decision not to run was announced a few weeks later.

Johnson lists these reasons for his decision in the ninth installment of his memoirs, published by the New York Times:

—His health. "I frankly did not believe in 1968 that I could survive another four years of the long hours and unremitting tensions I had just gone through."

—The chances for congressional approval of a tax increase, which he believed essential to fight inflation, would be "close to zero" if Johnson were a candidate.

—The possibility of new riots and turmoil in the cities.

—He was planning a "new initiative for peace" in Vietnam, and "I felt I should make it clear that my decision had been made without political considerations."

—His wife didn't want him to run.

Johnson says he had told friends he would not run again as early as the summer of 1965. He indicates he had firmly made up his mind not to run in November 1967.

Japanese Steel Firm Invited To China Fair

Tokyo (UPI) — Communist China has invited Nippon Steel, Japan's biggest steel company, to participate in the Canton Trade Fair that began Oct. 15. It was announced Nippon, the only Japanese steel firm barred from the Chinese market, decided last spring not to do any further business with nationalist China. A company spokesman said Nippon Steel will send a delegation to Canton this week.

$10.5 Million Claimed Lost By U.S. Steel

Pittsburgh (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steelmaker, said Tuesday it lost $10.5 million in the third quarter of 1971.

It blamed the deficit mostly on increased labor costs and poor business.

Income, however, for the first nine months of the year was off only slightly from 1970—$108.1 million compared to $108.5 million in 1970.

Per share earnings remained at $2.

U.S. Steel joins two other major producers, Republic and Jones & Laughlin, in announcing quarterly and nine-month losses. Another firm, National Steel reported its income during the first nine months dropped 26% from the same period last year.

Edwin Gott, U.S. Steel's board chairman, blamed the loss basically on three things: That the company was forced to shut down nearly all of its facilities during the threat of a strike in August; "staggering" costs resulting from the United Steelworker's new labor contract; and a lag in orders while customers use up inventories.

Conference On Scouting Slated For Senior Girls

Girl Scouting "as a social force" will be among the topics set for discussion this weekend as Senior Girl Scouts from eastern Nebraska gather at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

"To care is to dare" will be the emphasis of the conference, which will include high school age participants from Omaha, Prairie Hills and Homestead Girl Scout Councils.

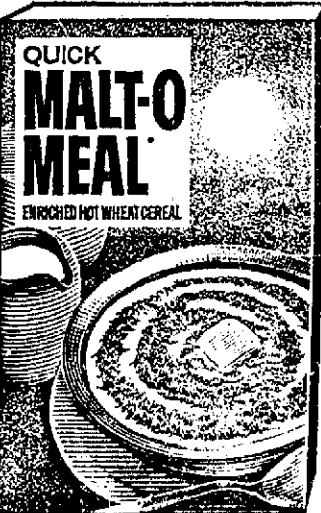

The conference begins Saturday morning with a panel discussion featuring state leaders and includes an evening discussion on scouting "as a social force."

It ends Sunday after final reporting sessions.

Twin Chimps Born At Zoo

Jerusalem (AP) — Jerusalem's Biblical Zoo recorded a rare twin birth of chimpanzees Tuesday. The twins, a male and a female weighing about 2.2 pounds each, were described as "very healthy."

Zoo officials said the mother, named Jackie, was in good condition. Charlie, the father, was observed swinging happily in his cage.

Cop Saw 'Everybody Scoring'

New York (AP) — A commission investigating police corruption heard testimony Tuesday that members of a special 20-man unit assigned to fight street gambling and dope traffic in Harlem averaged $1,500 a month each in protection money.

"Heavy scorers made about $3,000," said the witness, Waverly Logan, a member of the squad until he was fired last June on charges of dealing in narcotics. He testified without immunity and against the advice of his lawyer.

"It seemed like everybody was taking money and everybody had contracts," Logan told the Knapp commission.

Logan said when the unit was formed in 1969, members were in favor of honest law enforcement. But Logan added he did eventually wind up taking graft because "it seemed like the natural thing to do."

None Honest

He added, "I haven't met anyone who said he would not score."

Logan also testified about "flaking" — planting evidence on a dope suspect to justify his arrest. He said of that practice: "My conscience was weighing on me heavily."

He also described how police on raids kept money and narcotics that had been confiscated.

The witness also told of policemen buying information from dope addicts by giving them narcotics and of buying stolen property the same way.

The Knapp commission, whose chairman is Wall Street lawyer Whitman Knapp, was appointed 18 months ago by Mayor John V. Lindsay to investigate reports of widespread corruption in the city's 32,000-man police force.

Victims Complained

Besides shaking down numbers racketeers, Logan said he and fellow policemen divided up money they confiscated in dope raids — to the extent that the victims began complaining.

"It seemed to me that everybody around me was scoring," Logan went on. "I figured I wasn't actually hurting anyone by scoring. I think I was a light scorer. I didn't try and hustle."

The witness said a sergeant on the special squad gave him $250 to $300 collected from a narcotics suspect and told him: "It's all right to make a score when you don't have a guy for anything."

In earlier testimony, Logan told how police customarily swarmed to the site of a store burglary to help themselves to merchandise before the arrival of the owner. Recalling a burglary of a men's clothing store, Logan testified:

"Everybody looked fat because they were stuffing so many clothes down their pants. The crowd out there was laughing at us, because everybody was kind of fat with clothes."

Beaked Porpoises Called Dolphins

Miami — There are about 50 species of porpoises. For many years scientists divided them by classifying the blunt-nosed as porpoises and the beaked as dolphins.

Now they are all called porpoises — to avoid confusion with an unrelated game fish, the dolphin. Porpoises are mammals, not fish.

Sen. Ervin Says Rehnquist Good Man

Washington (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., a conservative Southern Democrat but an ardent defender of civil liberties, said Tuesday he thinks William H. Rehnquist "will make a good Supreme Court justice."

"I expect to support him," Ervin said in a telephone interview from his home in North Carolina. As Ervin spoke, liberal Democratic senators and their allies in civil rights and labor groups were making an intensive search of Rehnquist's background and record.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., told a news conference last Friday that he is concerned about Rehnquist's attitude toward government wiretapping and invasions of privacy.

"I hate to see somebody put on the Supreme Court if he really believes in lowering the bars and letting Big Brother come into our bedrooms," Bayh said.

Line Of Attack

This is the line of attack that Bayh and others are expected to take if they decide to oppose President Nixon's Supreme Court nomination of Rehnquist, an assistant attorney general and a Republican who formerly practiced law in Phoenix, Ariz.

Their research is directed in part at testimony Rehnquist gave before two Senate judiciary subcommittees of which Ervin is chairman, one on constitutional rights and the other on separation of powers.

When Rehnquist appeared before the latter subcommittee on Oct. 5 he wore a large campaign-type button that read: Save the Constitution. Ervin for President.

A reporter asked him, "How come?" With a laugh, Rehnquist replied, "I wanted to make a hit with the chairman. It doesn't say what year."

The 47-year-old Rehnquist testified against legislation proposed by Ervin to nullify a presidential order directing the Subversive Activities Control Board to take over from the attorney general the job of identifying subversive organizations.

Ervin called Nixon's order a usurpation of legislative power.

But Rehnquist maintained it was "a valid exercise of powers that Congress has specifically conferred upon the president."

Ervin and Rehnquist have disagreed on other legal and constitutional issues, but Ervin said that if all Supreme Court nominees had to agree with him on everything, he would be the only one qualified for appointment.

Honest, He Thinks

"Rehnquist has agreed with me on most fundamental principles of law," Ervin said in the interview, adding that "I think he is intellectually honest."

Bayh's "Big Brother" remark was linked to testimony Rehnquist gave last March before Ervin's constitutional rights subcommittee when it was investigating the government's collection of information about citizens, including Army surveillance of civilians in the late 1960s during racial riots and other disorders.

Ervin, asked about this, said that Rehnquist suggested that there was no constitutional barrier to the government placing any citizen under surveillance.

But Ervin said that under his questioning, Rehnquist qualified this and agreed that the government could not undertake such surveillance unless it had reason to suspect that persons were violating the law or were about to.

Ervin remarked that Rehnquist, in his job, "was counsel for the Justice Department and he had to defend them."

Fischer Beats Petrosian In Chess

Buenos Aires (UPI) — Bobby Fischer of the United States defeated former world champion Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union Tuesday to win the final candidate's playoff.

The victory gave Fischer, the 28-year-old chess wizard from Brooklyn, N.Y., the right to challenge current world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union for the title.

The playoff will be held next spring at a site to be determined by the International Chess Federation.

Petrosian, world champion from 1963 to 1969, resigned at the 46th move to give Fischer an unbeatable lead of 6½ points to 2½ with only three contests remaining. It was Fischer's fourth consecutive victory in nine games.

All-Out Attack

The 42-year-old Russian mounted an all-out attack during the end game but Fischer was able to solve it and practically wiped out all of Petrosian's pieces.

Petrosian at the end had only a knight and a pawn remaining after Fischer destroyed his attack.

The American had five pawns, with one heading for promotion.

Petrosian Wins 1

Fischer won the first, the sixth, seventh, eighth and the ninth games. Petrosian only won one, the second. Three ended in draws.

Fischer, playing whites, opened the game with his favorite opening, pawn-to-queen-four. Petrosian responded with a French defense.

After the middle game exchanges, Petrosian gambled on an all-out attack with his two rooks, a knight and his king-side pawns, but Fischer deftly managed to evade the trap.

Dead Woman Found Gagged With Black Tape

Muscantine, Iowa (UPI) — An elderly Muscantine woman was found dead in her home Tuesday and authorities speculated she was the victim of a robbery-motivated attack.

The death of Mrs. Estelle Reubner, 78, brings to four the number of Iowa women who have been murdered in the past 10 days. Although no connection has been found yet by authorities, three of the four deaths have occurred in southeastern Iowa.

Authorities said Mrs. Reubner's body was found bound and gagged with black electrical tape by her daughter, Mrs. Ambrose Hermann of Muscantine, after a delivery man became suspicious when he saw no one around the house.

Making Friends In Stillwater

While Oklahoma was doing little to improve its relations with Kansas State folks last weekend in Manhattan, Kan., Nebraska was making friends in Stillwater, Okla.

You can draw your own conclusions as to whether or not the Sooners were bent on running up the score against the Wildcats and most Kansas State fans have concluded they were. But there was no doubt in the minds of Oklahoma State faithful that the Huskers did not try to run up the score at Stillwater.

A press box worker at Oklahoma State stopped by NU sports information director Don Bryant's spot after the game. "We realize maybe you should have tried to beat us worse because of the ratings," he said. "But we appreciate the fact that you didn't."

"Your coach is a real gentleman."

Ratings often have led coaches to run scores up on foes when the opportunity arose with the most noted practitioner of that tactic in college football being Ara Parseghian at Notre Dame.

Winning margins in some years may be a factor in the ratings, but winning margins aren't going to have a thing to do with either Nebraska or Oklahoma being No. 1 this year.

Winning-Losing Will Decide

With Nebraska and Oklahoma being way out front of the other challengers in the polls, the only thing that will keep either one of them from winding up No. 1 is a loss.

Continued 75-28 Oklahoma wins might get the Sooners into the No. 1 spot, but the only thing that could hurt the Huskers would be a loss.

Winning by smaller margins might drop the Huskers to No. 2 one of these weeks, but that's the great thing about having that team you're fighting for No. 1 with on your schedule.

Things will be settled on the field, not in the minds of voters in Portland, Maine, and Pullman, Wash.

Colorado will be the first team to have played both Oklahoma and Nebraska, Iowa State will be the second and Kansas State the third.

Many of the voters in the next three weeks will be casting their ballots by those comparative scores. But when they cast their vote on the morning of Nov. 29, they'll be doing it on the basis of one score—Nebraska-Oklahoma—providing neither gets tripped up in the meantime.

To Wait Or Not To Wait

Officials of all bowls except the Orange may have some interesting decisions to make in mid-November.

Nov. 20 is the date on which teams can accept bowl bids and one bowl official has told us, "I don't think the bowls will wait past that date."

You can bet that if Nebraska, Oklahoma, Alabama and Auburn remain unbeaten, the Orange Bowl will wait past that date and will extend invitations to the two winners when the Sooners and Huskers clash on Nov. 25 and Alabama meets Auburn two days later.

The loser of those two games could find themselves in minor bowls if the other major bowls choose not to wait and they may not.

Officials of the Cotton and Sugar Bowls understandably might be reluctant to say they'd take the loser of either of those games, but if they choose not to wait, they could wind up getting losers anyway.

Unbeaten Penn State would appear to be a logical candidate for the Sugar and Cotton to be wooing, but if they take them on Nov. 20, they'd be gambling that the Nittany Lions would still be unbeaten after a Dec. 4, date at Tennessee.

Despite its upset by Southern Cal, Notre Dame still must be considered a leading bowl candidate, particularly by the Sugar Bowl with its heavy Catholic population in New Orleans.

If Notre Dame can beat LSU on Nov. 20, you'll likely see them in New Orleans on Jan. 1 against Penn State in which case the Cotton Bowl likely would wait and take the loser of the Nebraska-Oklahoma game to face Arkansas.

Football vs. Show Biz—A major decision facing many Nebraskans will come on Nov. 6 when they will have to decide between watching the Bob Hope show in person in Lincoln or sitting at home to watch a night telecast of the LSU-Alabama game to be announced this week as ABC-TV's Wild Card game of the 1971 season.

—HIGHLY-REGARDED FRESHMAN HELD TO 41 YARDS—

Wayne Defense Stops Kearney's Kropp

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

During the Wayne-Kearney football game Saturday a Kearney fan was reported to have said, "Would the 'real' Tom Kropp please stand up and go in the game."

When this was relayed to Wayne coach Del Stollenberg he said, "It may have been very true, but the 'real' Tom Kropp was in the game. He just had to face our defense."

Stollenberg's Wildcats held the Antelopes scoreless for the third straight year in taking a 28-0 win.

And Kropp, a highly-regarded freshman running back, was held to 41 yards on 11 rushes. Stollenberg feels the big reason Wayne stopped Kropp was tradition.

"The seniors haven't given up a point to Kearney in three years and they wanted to keep it that way," he explained.

In 1960 the two teams played to a 0-0 tie and the Wildcats won 24-0 last year in addition to Saturday's 28-0 blanketing. The last time Kearney scored on Wayne was in 1968 when the Antelopes took a 23-15 victory.

"Our defense has been pretty solid for us all season," Stollenberg said.

"Our offense made our

8 Huskers On Nomination List

... AP NAMES DISTRICT 5 CANDIDATES

Kansas City (AP) — Eight members of the No. 1-ranked Nebraska football team and six of the No. 2-ranked Oklahoma squad were nominated Tuesday for the 1971 all-America team by the Associated Press District 5 football panel.

The nominations from Nebraska are four offensive players, guard Dick Rupert, quarterback Jerry Tagge, back Jeff Kinney and slotback Johnny Rodgers, and four defensive players, safety Bill Kosch, tackle Larry Jacobson, middle guard Rich Glover and end Willie Harper.

The six Oklahoma players are quarterback Jack Mildren, halfbacks Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt, center Tom Brahoney, tight end Al Chandler and one player from the defensive unit, end Ray Hamilton.

5-7 Duenas Doesn't Know He's Small

Boulder, Colo. (UPI) — Reserve quarterback Joe Duenas of Colorado thinks big. That's one reason for the Buffaloes' 27-7 Big Eight victory over Missouri Saturday.

Colorado had a 3-0 lead midway in the second quarter when the 5-7, 170-pound athlete was called into action. He immediately directed an eight-play scoring march that ended with his nine-yard touchdown run.

Duenas also took part in two downfield laterals to John Tarver that resulted in touchdown runs of 35 and 24 yards. Field goals of 39 and 47 yards by J. B. Dean rounded out Colorado's scoring.

"A guy is only as small as he thinks he is, and Joe Duenas doesn't know he's small," said Colorado coach Eddie Crowder.

Crowder said he decided to change quarterbacks "because we hadn't done a thing—not because the fans were yelling for Duenas. The fans don't run my game."

"I had intended to play Joe some anyway. He's so quick and has a different style. He gives the game a change of pace. He's the best we have at handling the downfield lateral action."

"If he breaks downfield, they have to converge on him or it's a touchdown, and he has the knack of making a good pitch at that moment."

Crowder, who has to prepare his team for No. 1 Nebraska Saturday, admitted he was worried about Colorado's passing game. Starting quarterback Ken Johnson completed only one of nine attempts and had one pass intercepted. Duenas failed to complete any of four attempts and one was picked off.

"We still aren't throwing the ball well," Crowder said. "We should have been able to rip

Sooners On Way To Stats Sweep

New York (AP) — Oklahoma's wishbone-T juggernaut is shooting for a rare offensive triple crown in college football this season.

The powerful Sooners padded their lead in three attacking categories — total offense, team rushing and scoring — with their 75-28 triumph over Kansas State last Saturday.

If they can maintain this pace in the remaining games, they will become one of the few teams in history to make a sweep of these categories.

In rushing for 711 yards against Kansas State, breaking the previous mark by 66 yards, the Sooners boosted their rushing offense average to 486.7 yards a game — 143.1 yards ahead of second place Alabama.

Even should Oklahoma be held to zero yardage in the next two games, Alabama would have to average 440.5 in its next two games to assume the No. 1 spot. Such an eventuality appears remote.

The Sooners' total offense average of 562.2 yards is ahead of the college record of 562.0 set by Houston in 1968.

The Sooners are leading a

Ten other players were nominated in the board's first action of the season, three from Iowa State, three from Kansas State, two from Oklahoma State and two from Kansas.

The other nominations:

Iowa State-Quarterback Dean Carlson, linebacker Keith Schroeder and defensive back Matt Blair.

Kansas State — Offensive guard Mo Latimore and linebacker Joe Colquitt and Keith Best.

Oklahoma State — Flanker Dick Graham and defensive back Tom Carraway.

Kansas — Center Mike McCoy and defensive end Eddie Sheats.

Tom Anderson, sports editor of the Grand Island, Neb., Daily Independent, said Rupert is "probably Nebraska's best all-America candidate. He is the best blocker in the Nebraska offensive line, has excellent speed and quickness in pulling and leading plays."

Of Mildren, Anderson said, "He is a different type of quarterback than Nebraska's Tagge but can probably direct Oklahoma's triple option offense better than any other in the nation."

The other major college District 5 board members are Joe McGuff, sports editor of the Kansas City Star, Fred White, sports director of WIBW, Topeka, Kan., and Bob Hurt, columnist of the Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Two More Defenders Join In NWU Scoring

Two more defensive specialists got into the scoring column Saturday as Wesleyan rolled by Concordia, 28-20, for the Plainsmen's seventh straight victory of the year.

And if injuries persist the defense will be called upon even more if NWU is to continue its winning ways. Regular quarterback Dave McGrane became the second player in less than a week to undergo surgery among Wesleyan performers.

Dave suffered a separated shoulder early in the second half against Concordia. A further examination revealed the injury also included torn ligaments and surgery was necessary. Ironically, it was McGrane's left (non-throwing) shoulder which was injured on a running play. Earlier in the week defensive star Dennis Coudeyras underwent surgery to repair a knee problem suffered at Bethel College.

Meanwhile, leading rusher Darrel Wubbels is still walking with a cast on his injured ankle. This could provide monumental problems this week as Wesleyan takes its team to Doane for a showdown of unbeaten.

Last week's victory put the current club in an exclusive group. Only the 1911 team ever stood at 7-0 in the 75-year football history at NWU. That 1911 team finished at 7-0 and is the only unbeaten and untied team in the school's record book.

Tom Parminter and Dave

Michel were the defensive heroes against the tough Bulldogs. Their scores now represent the 12th and 13th team members to put points on the board this year. Eleven have tallied TD's. And that's not bad for a club with only 38 healthy players at present.

The quarterbacking chores now rest with sophomore Ross Stephenson and freshman Andy Federle. Stephenson filled-in in fine fashion Saturday. He found Bobby Gill with two long touchdown aeriels that allowed Wesleyan to come from behind and nip Concordia.

Carp, Bullhead Requests Nixed By Economics

Requests by city governments for carp and bullheads to be stocked in municipal lakes on a put-and-take basis can no longer be filled by the Game and Parks Commission, according to Willard Barbee, Commission director.

The Commission's seining crew, which provided catchable-size fish for city lakes in past years, was discontinued last June for economic reasons. However, requests for more carp and bullheads have continued to arrive. Some of the fish sent to city lakes were a by-product of fish management operations, but most were the result of a special effort by the seining crew.

The decision to discontinue the seining crew was prompted by a change for the better in Nebraska's overall fishing picture. Improved fishing in the eastern part of the state through new waters such as the Salt Valley Lakes around Lincoln took care of much of the fishing demand in the eastern part of the state.

'Pink Goose' Not Game At Crescent Lake

That pink "goose" wandering the area around Crescent Lake is really a flamingo, says Crescent Lake National Wildlife Refuge Manager, Ron Perry.

The flamingo honks like a goose, but that's where the similarity ends, Perry points out. The bird is hundreds of miles outside its range, which is normally limited almost entirely to Florida. Refuge personnel speculate that it is an escapee from a zoo, but thus far no owner has been located. It is protected under Nebraska law, so hunters in the area should be on the look out for it.

Omaha — The Omaha Mustangs will play the Dallas County Packers Saturday at 8:00 p.m. at Rosenblatt Stadium to finish out their home season for the year.

Pruitt Top Back For Third Time

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — As Colorado publicist Fred Cassotti says, "Greg Pruitt makes a sham out of running with a football."

Pruitt also is making a sham out of the Big Eight's Back of The Week award. He won it Tuesday for the third time in four weeks.

Pruitt's performance against Kansas State last Saturday was breathtaking. He carried the ball 19 times for 294 yards, breaking Kansas' Gale Sayers record of 283 yards set in 1962 against Oklahoma State.

The "hello-goodbye" halfback now has gained 1,113 yards on 92 carries for an incredible 12.1 average. In his last four games — against Southern California, Texas, Colorado and Kansas State — he's gained 905 yards rushing.

"He's got great quickness and lateral movement," said Kansas State coach Vince Gibson. "And once he gets in a one-on-one situation, he's impossible to tackle."

Pruitt was a unanimous choice of the three-man panel, despite several other outstanding performances.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers returned seven punts for 170 yards, a conference record, including, a 92-yarder. He also caught three passes for 33 yards and ran for 29 yards.

Kansas State quarterback Dennis Morrison completed 29 of 48 passes for 317 yards. The 29 completions also were a single-game record by a Big Eight player.

Other nominees were Iowa State tailback George Amundson, who gained 199 yards rushing; Oklahoma State flanker Dick Graham, Colorado fullback John Tarver and Kansas cornerback and kick returner Lee Hawkins.

A GREAT NEW HEARING AID

It is the most unusual hearing aid the writer has ever seen in the many years in this hearing aid field. It's remarkable! This aid is truly a revolutionary advancement for the average hard-of-hearing person — an Audiologist in Norway has written "The most significant advancement in Hearing Aid design since the transistor . . . I truly believe that the new MAICO MARK 100 will offer the most hard-of-hearing persons the most dramatic hearing improvement they have ever known. I would be glad to compare it with any other hearing aid now in use that is in a similar power range, or even those who may have a greater gain — HEARING IS BELIEVING! Call or write me for an appointment in our office or in your home for a MAICO MARK 100 demonstration, 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Nebr. — Phone 432-5597.

Tankers Planned
Tokyo — Future tankers may dwarf even today's mammoth 326,000 tonners. A 447,000-ton ship is expected to begin carrying crude oil from the Middle East to Japan in 1973. And Japanese shipyards have drawn plans for 500,000-tonners. Even million-tonners are under consideration.

THE RYATT

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

Twenty-nine nations were at war with Germany in World War I.
Bourbon makers spent nearly $16 million on magazine advertising in 1970.
Adolf Hitler seized Austria in March, 1938.
Americans bought $192.7 billion of life insurance in 1970, an increase of $34.4 billion over 1969.
Women were forbidden to attend the early Olympic Games. The athletes can prove it in the nude.
Benito Mussolini was the son of a blacksmith.
There are 18 schools of veterinary medicine in the United States.
Uncollected grass clippings can become a haven for insects and disease in lawns.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It:
One letter or symbol stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's for the two O's etc. Single letters appear in the length and formation of the words. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to help you find your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 2 or more, subtract 4. If the result is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you right.
